States Told To Beware of Attacks With Nerve Gases

Booklet Warns Of 'Silent' Offensive With Colorless and Odorless Chemical

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

The Civil Defense Administration warned the public yesterday of the possibility of attack by odorless and colorless "nerve gases" and outlined "effective" defenses against the potential weapon.

This first discussion of steps to be taken in case of a gas attack came from a 250-page booklet, entitled "Health Services and Special Weapons Defenses."

The comprehensive CDA report covering nearly all possible dangers as related to medical preparedness was written as a guide to state civil defense agencies.

"The most likely chemical weapon—nerve gas—acts quickly," said the Federal agency, "is detected with difficulty, may cause death in a few minutes to an hour and does not affect large areas."

The gas was developed in World War II by the Germans, but was never used. It affects portions of the nervous systems which control breathing and circulation.

Injections Urged

An "effective" treatment for "nerve gas" victims, said the Government experts, is prompt injections of Atropine, a drug commonly used to enlarge the pupil of the eye for examination.

The CDA report minced no words on the various grim possibilities that could face the Nation.

It is urged all "critical target areas"—Washington is one—to "start immediately" to set up a civil defense health service.

"Developments in atomic, biological and chemical warfare have created a need to devise new civil defense plans which must recognize the most challenging possibility inherent in these new methods of warfare—that we could have, in a short span of time, tens of thousands of living casualties requiring immediate treatment."

Caution Against Alarm

Federal civil defense experts, however, repeatedly cautioned the public against alarm.

One top CDA official told reporters most large cities would be "in pretty fair shape in six months." He had been asked how long it would take the major municipalities to carry out the report's recommendations.

CDA said a "resourceful enemy" could launch various kinds of germs against persons, animals, food, water supply systems and crops "either by sabotage or open attack."

Germs and insects destructive to plants and animals could be imported from abroad via the mails, the report suggested.

The enemy might use biological warfare agents through sabotage, said the agency, "to neutralize strategic industries or to disrupt high level administrative services by incapacitating key personnel."

At a press conference, Federal civil defense officials elaborated on the "nerve" gas possibility.

Nerve gas now is the "most ef-

Ex-Wife Says Remington Gave Secret Formula to Red Agent

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
ANN REMINGTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—William W. Remington turned over Government secrets to Miss Elizabeth Bentley, the confessed Communist courier, for transmission to Russia, the former Government employe's divorced wife declared on the witness stand here today.

Mrs. Ann Moos Remington swore in Federal court where Remington is on trial for perjury that at a Washington meeting with Miss Bentley he "was very excited" about information which he said was "top secret or words to that effect." She said Remington wanted to get it to Russia "as soon as possible."

The information was a formula for making explosives from garbage, a formula Miss Bentley first told about in congressional hearings. The value of the formula has been in dispute ever since.

During today's sessions, with Mrs. Remington the only witness, the slight and soft-spoken 34-year-old woman told a story which generally corroborated Miss Bentley's earlier public testimony about Remington and what she said were his efforts to aid the Soviet Union during the war years while he was an important War Production Board official.

Cross-examination began at the afternoon session and will continue Thursday. Most of it centered on the question of just what constitutes being a Communist Party member. Remington is charged with lying when he told a grand jury last summer that he never had been a party member.

One of Four Va. Prisoners Is Recaptured

Police in a 13-State area were on the alert last night for three of four prisoners who escaped from Virginia Prison Camp 11 at Culpeper, Va., early yesterday after overpowering a guard.

The fourth escapee was apprehended by State Police and prison guards six miles from the prison camp about nine hours after the break. He was Curtis B. Fultz, 30, of Wise County, Va., who participated in another break from the camp October 24 only to be recaptured the following day.

Still at large last night were Raymond J. Blais, 24, of Pawtucket, R. I., serving a two-year term for burglary; Orvil Richards, 27, of Roanoke, Va., sentenced to a total of 24 years for storebreaking and previous escape attempts, and Roy Allen Kelly, 22, of Wise County, Va., who was awaiting trial on two highway robbery charges.

All of the escapees, described as "desperate" by prison officials, were wearing brown prison clothing, State Police said.

The men escaped from the camp by unlocking a door from the main prison hall with an improvised master key. They first used a hacksaw to cut a half-inch steel bar in the window of a small cell block in which they were confined, prison officials said. After escaping from their cell, they overpowered Jailer L. R. Crismond and left him bound and gagged.

Fultz, after his recapture, told police he was "left behind" when he became entangled in the window of the cell block. He said he believed his three companions, after overpowering Crismond, fled in an automobile they stole from in front of a house near the prison.

Fultz was traced by bloodhounds to a wooded area near Buena, where he surrendered without a fight, according to police. He said he was given breakfast by a farm family nearby a few hours earlier, but fled the farmhouse when he realized his hosts were "getting suspicious."

Several hours after the break, an automobile was reported stolen from in front of the house of R. J. Clatterburk, who lives about 1000 yards from the prison camp. The car in which the men were believed to have made their getaway was described as a black, two-door 1941 Chevrolet with Virginia license 487-472.

Care Urged In Operation Of Oil Heaters

An urgent appeal to Washingtonians to use caution when operating portable oil heaters was made yesterday by D. C. fire marshal Raymond C. Roberts.

In listing 10 "Don'ts" in the use of the heaters, Roberts stressed the fact that during the past five years in the District portable oil heaters have caused 1053 fires costing $306,395 in damages. These fires, he said, resulted in 27 deaths and injuries to 196 persons.

Roberts said he was afraid Washington's current cold wave might bring greater use of the portable oil heaters and asked local residents to observe these 10 rules in their use:

1. Don't place a portable heater in or near a doorway or at the foot of a stairway where it might block an exit.

2. Don't place a heater where it might be easily tipped over, especially by children.

3. Don't put the heater near curtains, bedding, or other combustible material.

4. Don't put the heater on an insecure support, such as a chair or table from which it might fall.

5. Be sure there is adequate ventilation in a room where a heater is being used. At night, open a window.

6. Don't let children play near a heater, or play with a heater.

7. Don't fill a heater while it is either on, or hot from use. Use a funnel or a safe metal contransfer oil.

8. Don't use a portable heater for any purpose except that for which it was designed.

9. Don't purchase second-hand heaters without competent advice.

10. Don't tilt the oil reservoir. Repair leaks at once.

Area Temperatures May Dip to 5

Cold yesterday continued and was likely to go to 12 above in the District and from 5 to 8 in the suburbs. District firemen reported 35 local alarms yesterday for fires in homes, many caused by overheating. Weather Bureau people predicted a rising mercury today. Further details on Page B-1.

U. N. Bloc Plans New Peace Move

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Dec. 27 (U.P.).—The Asian-Arab bloc is planning a new "major effort" in the United Nations to ease the Far East crisis, it was learned today.

Spurred by Communist China's rejection of the U. N.'s cease-fire effort, 12 of the 13 Asian-Arab states that initiated that frustrated move held an emergency Christmas Eve session to consider another approach.

Delegation sources said the 12 nations would meet again later this week.

It was believed the group was planning to press for General Assembly adoption of their temporarily-shelved proposal for a peace parley on broad Far East issues.

This belief was heightened by the fact that the Philippines—the thirteenth sponsor of the cease-fire move—was not invited to the new series of urgent meetings. The Philippines was the only one of the 13 that refused to sponsor the peace-parley proposal, introduced at the same time as the cease-fire resolution but shelved because of United States opposition.

The three-man cease-fire team met today, ostensibly to consider its "final report" to the Assembly's main political committee, which is due to convene again next week.

The meeting was held at the new offices of Assembly President Nasrollah Entezam of Iran in the United Nations' new glass-and-marble headquarters building in Manhattan.

Entezam and India's Sir Benegal Rau were the regular committee members present; R. G. Riddel again sat in for Canadian Foreign Minister Lester B. Pearson.

The 12-nation proposal for a peace conference on a broad range of Far East issues—such as Formosa and Chinese Communist membership in the U. N.—touches the heart of the problem of halting the Korean fighting.

Chou En-lai, Communist China's Foreign Minister, said last Saturday, in announcing rejection of cease-fire overtures, that Peiping's price remained: withdrawal of U. N. forces from Korea; departure of the United States Fleet from Formosa; and admission of Peiping to the U. N.

The United States has steadfastly maintained that it will not even talk about other Far East issues until a cease-fire had been nailed down.

Yanks Fight Red Chinese In 4 Clashes

Bulletin

TOKYO, Thursday, Dec. 28 (AP).—Four clashes with Chinese Communists 28 miles north of Seoul were reported today by the United States Eighth Army.

These limited actions, the largest involving a Communist battalion, were fought at or near Korangpo, two miles south of the Thirty-Eighth Parallel.

Along the parallel, at points 35 miles north and northwest of Seoul, the Eighth Army said the Chinese 38th and 39th armies have been massed.

The two armies, each of three divisions, form part of a Communist front line force of nearly 500,000 which appears to be getting set for an offensive.

By Robert Eunson

TOKYO (Thursday), Dec. 28 (AP). — Nearly half a million Chinese and Korean Reds massed along the thirty-eighth parallel today for a big blow that may fall at any hour.

Military sources in Tokyo expressed confidence that the waiting and outnumbered United Nations army will deal the enemy punishing blows when the Communists unleash this second invasion of South Korea.

General MacArthur estimated the total Red force at 1,350,000 men. This great mass of enemy troops was either in Korea or in reserve in Manchuria.

Tones Front

Around-the-clock air blows hit the Red troop concentrations, tanks and lines of supply in an effort to put the enemy offensive off balance before it could get under way.

Fighters and bombers were off at dawn today despite predictions of cloudy weather. They went out as night-flying B-26s returned from 36 missions. The Far East Air Force flew about 500 combat sorties Wednesday.

The biggest air blow was dealt by Okinawa-based B-29s against the Red staging area of Kumhwa, 20 air miles north of the thirty-eighth parallel. The raiders started a series of fires.

One returning airman, Capt. Jack T. Evans, a bombardier, of Springfield, Ill., said "at least 90 percent of our bombs hit aiming points in the target area."

About 190 tons of high explosives were dropped on Kumhwa and three other targets between the thirty-eighth and thirty-ninth parallels.

Lieut. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgeway, new commander of the United States Eighth Army, toured part of the nervous, 150-mile Allied front by jeep as evidence mounted that the Communists, first expected to strike Christmas Eve, were ready now.

South Korean troops tore apart two Communist units threatening the approaches to Seoul, the half-empty republican capital.

Allied fighters and light bombers killed or wounded more than 800 Reds Wednesday in attacks on Communist troops concentrating for the offensive.

General MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters reported in a war summary that 446,406 Reds were massed along the 150-mile front ranging across Korea in the vicinity of the thirty-eighth parallel.

Of this number, 277,173 were

Griffis Named Envoy to Spain, Ending 5-Year U. N. Boycott

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

In obedience to a recent vote of the United Nations Assembly, —and to pressure from Capitol Hill—the United States will soon have an ambassador in Franco Spain for the first time in five years.

The new ambassador in Madrid, the White House announced yesterday, will be Stanton Griffis, 63-year-old investment banker, motion picture executive and contributor to Democratic party funds. Griffis had already served as Ambassador to Poland, Egypt and Argentina.

Spain's new ambassador in Washington will be former Foreign Minister Jose Felix Lequerica who has been stationed here for some time as inspector of embassies for the Spanish Foreign Office.

The Griffis appointment will symbolize the end of an ambassadorial boycott that began in 1946, when the U. N. Assembly recommended that all member states withdraw the heads of their diplomatic missions from Madrid. Its reason was that Spain had a totalitarian government which was put into power by Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy.

The United States, like most other members, complied, but continued relations through an embassy headed by Paul Culbertson as charge d'affairs.

The U. N. decision, reaffirmed year after year, became increasingly disliked in certain sections of Congress and at the Pentagon. Last January, in a shift of policy, Secretary Acheson told Congress that the American delegation would work actively for a repeal of the 1946 resolution, and last November 4 the Assembly finally rescinded it.

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee commented yesterday that he was "pleased that we have established normal diplomatic relations with Spain." And Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), who has campaigned unceasingly for closer relations with Spain, called the Griffis appointment "one of the greatest things that has happened in this country for many years."

President Truman announced the choice of Griffis in spite of having told a press conference last month that it would be a long, long time before he would name an ambassador to Madrid.

Although Congress voted a $62,500,000 loan to Spain last summer over the President's objections, the Franco government has not yet received a penny of

U. S. Steel Gets Official Nod On New $351,414,000 Plant

The Government gave a go-signal to United States Steel Corp. yesterday to erect a $351,414,000 steel mill, believed to be the biggest single steel-expansion project in history.

The plant is to be located near Morrisville, Pa., on the Delaware River opposite Trenton, N. J.

It was one of 32 defense plant expansion projects approved yesterday for tax benefits by Chairman W. Stuart Symington of the National Securities Resources Board. Rapid tax write-offs are permitted on such projects. Such certificates now amount to more than a billion dollars for the steel industry alone.

The new, completely integrated Morrisville plant will produce 1,800,000 ingot tons of steel annually. It will be called the Fairless works in honor of Benjamin F. Fairless, United States Steel's president.

Also certified was a $46,631,420 project of the National Tube Co., a United States Steel subsidiary, to be erected next to the Fairless plant. Two other United States Steel expansion projects were approved for tax benefits in other areas. These were:

Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co., a $41,525,000 project to boost the subsidiary's capacity from 2,850,000 tons to 3,350,000 tons annually.

Geneva Steel Co., Salt Lake City, Utah, $4,263,000 expansion of the Geneva, Utah, plant to boost its capacity from 1,400,000 tons to 1,500,000 annually.

These are in addition to other U. S. Steel expansions which include new facilities at Pittsburgh, Gary, Indiana, and South Chicago, as well as the construction of three new ore-carriers and a Great Lakes limestone boat.

Construction on the Fairless works will start early next spring, U. S. Steel announced, and will be completed by the end of 1952, as will the other U. S. Steel projects. Some steel will start coming from the plant within six to 12 months after construction starts.

Cobbler's Son Vows to Support Daughter of Oil Man McCarthy

GLENALEE McCARTHY AND HER NEW HUSBAND

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 27 (U.P.).—Big George Pontikes, the cobbler's son who married an oil millionaire's daughter, told friends today he figured he could make a "decent living" for her.

The 19-year-old Rice Institute football player eloped on December 2 with Glenalee McCarthy, 17, whose father is Glenn McCarthy, owner of oilfields, a refinery, a chemical plant and a hotel.

Pontikes, the son of a Greek immigrant shoe repairman, wouldn't talk to newsmen. But a close family friend pictured the youth as alternately angry and bewildered.

"I married Glenalee because I love her, not because her father has a lot of money," he told the friend, who demanded he not be identified. [The Associated Press reported that Pontikes attended the wedding.]

"I can't understand why her father is unhappy about this. He apparently knew we planned to get married sometime."

Glenalee, a senior at Houston's Lamar High School, had told classmates many times that she would marry George when she was 18. December 31 will be her eighteenth birthday.

The secret marriage occurred December 2, at Waco, Texas, be-

Korea Canadians Being Withdrawn; Free for Europe

OTTAWA, Dec. 27 (U.P.).—Defense headquarters said today that most of a Canadian military advance party in Korea will be withdrawn, adding to speculation that plans to send any more of Canada's Special Service Brigade to Korea have been abandoned.

The announcement said all but 45 members of the 345-man advance party which Canada sent to Korea last fall will return to Fort Lewis, Washington, in about a month.

The party was sent to Korea at a time when it was believed the entire Canadian Special Service Brigade of 11,000 men would be sent to fight with the United Nations army in Korea.

But return of the bulk of the advance party to Fort Lewis, American staging area for Canadian soldiers, was interpreted as meaning any plans to send the whole brigade to Korea have been abandoned. It also cleared the way for eventual movement of the Canadian force at Fort Lewis to Europe.

Dollar Slumps in China

LONDON, Dec. 27 (AP).—The Peiping radio reported today the United States dollar is slipping in Red China. A broadcast monitored here said the rate quoted by the Bank of China slumped yesterday from 30,000 Chinese dollars for one United States dollar to 27,360 for one.

Russian Army At 4.6 Million, France Warns

PARIS, Dec. 27 (U.P.).—France today warned that Russia has an army of 170 divisions totaling 4,600,000 men in addition to satellite armies totaling 950,000 men.

Defense Minister Jules Moch made the estimate during debate on the billion-dollar rearmament bill that the government is trying to push through a reluctant National Assembly before January 1.

[The Assembly tonight voted down a Communist move to shelve the government's one billion dollar special rearmanet budget, the Associated Press reported.

[The vote, in which the Communists were defeated on a point of order, was 412 to 176. But this and other procedural arguments delayed the actual debate on the rearmament budget. A final vote is not expected before Thursday, the Associated Press said.]

Moch said the figures on Communist armed strength in Europe dated back to the beginning of 1950 and were the latest in the possession of the French government.

He added that Russia also has 18 "air armies" and that the Soviet military budget for 1950 totaled about 20 billion dollars.

Premier Rene Pleven's government used the figures in its do-or-die fight to gain Assembly approval of a 355-milliard-franc (about $1,014,000,000) rearmament bill to help France build a 20-division army by the end of 1953.

Almost half the money will have to be raised through increased taxes, and the Assembly, with general elections coming up, has adopted a rebellious attitude.

France has pledged herself—with United States aid—to contribute a 20-division army and 28 fighter plane groups as her share in bolstering western European defense against communism.

Of the 355 milliard francs, about 400 million dollars will come from United States credits in 1951.

Girls Should Start School Before Boys, Scientists Told

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

CLEVELAND, Dec. 27.—Boys should be older than girls when they start their schooling, the American Association for the Advancement of Science was told here today.

It isn't that boys are duller, it's just that they don't mature as fast as girls, said Dr. Frank R. Pauly, research director of the Tulsa, Okla., public schools.

Though girls are "probably ready" to begin first-grade at the age of six years, Dr. Pauley said, boys of the same age are still three to eight months too young for the step.

He proposed that separate legal age requirements be established for school entrance, and said he based such a recommendation on his results of a survey of school records of the past 15 years for Tulsa students.

Under the present single-age standard, the educator said, boys lag behind girls in school work, resulting in "many unnecessary frustrations and mental hygiene problems (in boys) which plague parents and teachers for years."

"Ideally," said Dr. Pauly, "a person's entrance to public schools should be based on a comprehensive physical and mental test program, to take care of the frequent exceptions which inevitably occur."

But the more practical approach to the problem, he conceded, would be new state laws setting up different age requirements for boys and girls entering the schools.

Dr. Pauly said his growth-maturity findings are also borne out by a separate study of I.Q. (intelligence quotient) tests of the school-age sexes. His study of the "norms" now set for 6-year-olds shows that when broken down into the sexes the girls average

Lower Draft, Then Drilling In Reserve Are Planned

Hearing on Program To Begin Next Week; Ever-Ready Force Of Millions Is Goal

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Upwards of seven years military service—full and part-time for nearly every young Amreican man—is proposed under a far-reaching manpower program to go to Congress next week.

The plan—now being whipped into final shape by top officials of the Pentagon and other Government agencies—calls for nothing less than universal service during the foreseeable future for male youths reaching military age.

Hearings have been scheduled by Senator Lyndon Johnson's Preparedness subcommittee beginning Wednesday, January 3. The group promises a thorough investigation of the entire program—the first, broad comprehensive study to be made of the vital question—before drafting detailed legislation.

Summary of Program

Some final decisions have yet to be made in the Administration's plan, but reliable Pentagon and Capitol Hill sources said it can be summarized as follows:

(1) Expanding the armed forces to 3,500,000 men and maintaining at that level will require the services of all young men of draft age for some years to come.

2. If the country is to be safe with no more than 3½ million men in uniform, the National Guard and active drilling reserves must not only be expanded, but be put in a much greater state of readiness by additional training and equipment. And most important—units must be filled out with fully trained men—not the green recruits that officers and non-coms now must work with on weekly drill nights and at summer camps.

3. The above—plus the shortage of instructors, equipment, camps, etc.—means that the old concept of universal military training as recommended by the Compton Commission does not fit present needs. The commission was appointed by President Truman to recommend a program of universal military training. It was headed by Dr. Karl T. Compton. The commisison's plan called for six months training in a separate UMT corps, during which time the youths were not in the armed forces, followed by service in the ROTC, Guard, reserves, etc.

4. Instead, continuation of Selective Service coupled with the concept of universal military service is required. The two may be kept separate, either in different bills or sections of the same bill, so that UMS—or UMT—eventually can supplant Selective Service.

5. Under this program, young men would serve in the armed forces for the required draft period and then be assigned to a fully organized drilling unit of one of the reserve components. Such forces would be revitalized and be given additional training so that they would be ready for

BBC Will Lay TV Trap for Ghost of Catherine Howard

LONDON, Dec. 27 (U.P.).—The government-owned British Broadcasting Corp. is going to try to televise the ghost of Catherine Howard, whom King Henry VIII beheaded in 1542, it was announced today.

Catherine, who was Henry's fifth wife, is one of Britain's best-authenticated ghosts. She roams the "haunted gallery" in suburban Hampton Court Palace, where Henry frolicked with his girl friends.

On January 10—there is no significance in the choice of date—three BBC television cameras will be focused on the chamber in hope that Catherine appears. Technicians will have sound apparatus ready to record any ghostly moans. There will be a special infra red spotlight in case that Catherine does appear but ordinary light does not reveal her.

Little Question Seen On Senate GOP Rule

In New Congress

Attack Near On Anti-Red Control Unit

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senate Republicans last night appeared set to continue their present "big-three" leadership—Senators Taft of Ohio; Millikin of Colorado and Wherry of Nebraska—at a party conference January 3.

In contrast, Senate Democrats faced a two-way contest for leader at their own party organization caucus on January 2.

With almost solid Southern backing, Senator Ernest W. McFarland, (D., Ariz.), still held a clear lead in pledged votes for the top Senate Democratic post.

House Contest Routine

But Administration Senators supporting Senator Joseph P. O'Mahoney, (D., Wyo.), said they were not even thinking of withdrawing his name. Regardless of the outcome, they predicted both names would go to a showdown vote. Voting will be by secret ballot, a factor both camps claimed would operate in their favor.

Across the Capitol, a similar round of party caucuses at the year's start will be mostly routine. With only token party byplay, Representative Sam Rayburn, (D., Tex.), will be nominated and reelected Speaker of the new House.

Return of Representative John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), as majority leader, and Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.), as minority leader should be merely a formality.

Except for an occasional suggestion some of the top Senate GOP jobs "ought to be passed around," return of the present ruling Republican leaders in the Senate appeared equally routine.

Thus Taft, in the role of chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, would continue to be GOP "boss man" in the closely divided new Senate (Democrats 49, Republicans 47).

No Upset Indicated

In the two other top Republican spots, Wherry would continue to operate as floor leader and Millikin as chairman of the party conference, unless there is an unforseen upset.

Reelection of Massachusetts' Leverett Saltonstall as minority whip and North Dakota's Milton R. Young as conference secretary should round out the ticket.

The only disputed Senate Republican contest developing centered around the lone GOP vacancy on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Oregon's Wayne Morse, long a candidate for the post, has the backing of ailing Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.). He appeared scheduled for the spot before bipartisan foreign policy lines broke in the last election.

Although Taft is nominally keeping "hands off" this race, Taft supporters in the Senate are generally supporting other candidates than Morse.

Entries include at least one other GOP "Young Turk," Vermont's George D. Aiken; Vandenberg's Michigan colleague, Senator Homer Ferguson, and a stalwart follower of Taft's foreign policy line, Homer E. Capehart (R., Ind.).

By The Associated Press

The Administration appeared headed for trouble yesterday with the new Congress over the five persons named by President Truman to the Subversives Activities Control Board.

Chairman McCarran (D., Nev.) of the Senate Judiciary Committee said he had heard "some rather serious comments about some of them."

"I think there will be a demand for hearings," he told reporters, adding that the committee probably would start looking into the appointments soon after the new Congress organizes next Monday. He did not elaborate on what he said he had heard.

The five-member board, named by President Truman last November 27 and now serving under recess appointments, is composed of Seth W. Richardson of Washington, chairman; Peter Campbell Brown of New York; Charles M. La Follette of Virginia; David J. Coddaire of Massachusetts and Miss Kathryn McHale of Indiana.

No action has been taken on the nominations by the Senate. This means that Mr. Truman will probably have to re-submit the names for confirmation after the new Congress convenes.

Thus far there has been little public criticism of the appointments. But some lawmakers have said privately they intend to question particularly the qualifications of La Follette and Miss McHale for the posts.

The board was set up under the so-called McCarran Antisubversive Act which Congress passed over President Truman's veto at the last session.

Its job primarily is to administer the section of the law dealing with the registration of Communist and Communist-front organizations. The board, acting upon a complaint from the Attorney General, decides what is a Communist, or Communist-front organization, which are required to register under the law. Its decision is subject to review by the courts.

McCarran has been highly critical of the way in which the law has been administered and has promised an early investigation.

He disclosed that he will head a Judiciary subcommittee which has the three-fold task of investigating (a) the administration of the McCarran Act; (b) administration of other antisubversives laws, and (c) the extent, nature and effects of subversive activities in and out of Government.

"All of the traitors to America have not yet been apprehended or convicted," McCarran said.

2 States Left Out of the Original 13 in House

The Washington Post

ONLY ELEVEN—Stars for 11 States line the marble mantle behind the Speaker's desk in the House of Representatives. North Carolina and Rhode Island were left out of what Americans always believed were the original 13 States. Special Setup For Scientists' Draft Urged

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Mobilization of scientists into a special service which would allocate scientific manpower to meet military and civilian needs alike has been proposed by the American Institute of Physics.

A similar plan has also been recommended by the Federal Government's Interdepartmental Committee on Scientific Research and Development.

The two plans have been submitted to the Manpower Office of the National Security Resources Board, which has been studying the problem of how to deal with the Nation's limited scientific manpower in the present emergency and under full mobilization.

The recommendation of the American Institute of Physics—a cooperative organization of professional societies in the field of physics—proposes the setting up of a new class under Selective Service—Scientific and Technological Service.

Draft-liable men who show a certain degree of competence in science or technology, as measured by a standard to be adopted, would neither be inducted into service nor deferred, but instead placed in the new class.

This class would be small numerically, according to the institute, but would include many who would ordinarily be physically disqualified from serving in the armed forces.

Most efficient use of this special pool of manpower would be directed through a National Board of Scientific and Technological Personnel. Men in the pool not assigned to the armed services would be held in approved civilian positions of employment or training. All cases would be under continuous review.

Draft-age scientists refusing to cooperate with the national board would be referred back to their local draft boards for reclassification—and probable induction into the armed forces.

The American Institute of Physics would also seek to mobilize scientists over draft age through the national board on a voluntary basis, relying on good will and patriotism to make the idea successful during the period before general mobilization is ordered.

The Interdepartmental Committee of Scientific Research and Development suggested the establishment of a National Scientific Service, to provide technically-trained individuals for the Defense Department and for essential industrial, educational, and Government activities.

The National Scientific Service would register all scientists and engineers, including students in training. The board would then ascertain that they are utilized in the most efficient manner for the country's over-all welfare.

Both proposals for the mobilization of manpower have met with varying reaction among other scientific groups. Yesterday, the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists expressed extreme doubt whether national defense would be "really aided" by such an approach.

"Of all the human activities, except art, science is one of the least susceptible to direction, even by the most enlightened authorities," declared an editorial written by Eugene Rabinowitch, editor.

Local Needs To Control Doctor Draft

The Department of Defense yesterday announced that from now on its calls for reserve medical officers will take into consideration community medical requirements.

Such a policy already is in effect for draft-liable doctors, who will be called into the armed forces via Selective Service.

Extension of this policy into the reserves, excluding those medical officers attached to Organized Reserve units—is in line with the Defense Department's program of encouraging draft-liable doctors to join the reserves rather than wait for compulsory induction.

To Set Up Screening Process

Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg said yesterday the department does not want to strip America's communities of all its professional medical people and will establish a screening procedure to be put into operation no later than April 1.

Under the new setup, the Army, Navy, or Air Force must submit to the Secretary of Defense any proposal to order up medical reservists. The proposal is then passed on to Dr. Richard L. Meiling, director of medical service, who will take up the proposal, in terms of armed services' needs, with the department's Armed Forces Medical Advisory Committee (Cooper Committee).

The call for doctors and dentists and other medical personnel is then cleared with the National Health Resources Advisory Committee (Rusk Committee) of the National Security Resources Board to determine the effect of the call on civilian needs.

Cleared with Advisory Board

Before any individual reservist is then called up for duty, his name will be cleared with the local Selective Service medical advisory boards, to determine whether the specific individual is "essential" to the community and therefore should be deferred; or whether he can be spared for the armed forces.

Final decision on the proposed reservist calls, and on the specific individual calls, is made by the Secretary of Defense.

In the case of those doctors who prefer to wait for a draft call—and with loss of $100 a month bonus pay given commissioned officers—the decision on deferment is in the regular local draft boards, subject to the regular system of appeals.

Mrs. Rosenberg said yesterday that 19 percent of draft-liable doctors being examined for reserve commissions are being rejected for physical disabilities.

U. S. and India to Sign Accord

The United States and India will sign an agreement today under which an undetermined number of American technical experts will be sent to India and about 150 Indians will come here for technical training in the next two years.

The agreement will be signed in New Delhi by Ambassador Loy Henderson and Sir Girja Bajpai, Secretary of the Indian Ministry of External Affairs.

It was the third such general agreement to be signed within a week under the Truman Administration's Point-Four program of technical cooperation with other nations. The others were with Brazil and Liberia.

Dr. Henry G. Bennett, United States technical cooperation administrator, said the agreement "creates a magnificent opportunity for two great nations to work together for their mutual progress and well being."

Bennett described the Point-Four method of technical cooperation as "the most realistic and most practical way of bringing two people closer together in growing understanding and respect."

The Point-Four program in India will be the biggest undertaken so far by the United States. Bennett has tentatively allocated $1,200,000 for India, chiefly for salaries and equipment needed to put American technical skills to work in that country.

As soon as the general agreement has been signed, India will submit specific projects for technical help in agriculture, river-valley development and transportation. American technicians already are carrying on three technical cooperation projects in India, one of them a successful effort to increase crop yields in the United Provinces

MATS Unveils First Flying Hospital Ward

The Military Air Transport Service yesterday unveiled the first "hospital ward" evacuation plane designed prmarily for the transport of miltary casualties from battle zones to the United States.

In the past, miltary patients have been flown in cargo planes modifed only by the additon of litter brackets for stretchers.

The new ship, designated the C-54M, is the first of 30 being prepared for casualty evacuation. It leaves National Airport today for Japan, and the others soon will be placed in service, according to the MATS.

Since air evacuation usually is a one-way operation, the C-54Ms can be converted quickly to cargo use on return trips overseas.

Among the features for patients in the new plane are:

A lightweight galley equipped to provide hot meals for patients in flight.

A heating system that provides constant interior temperatures in varying climates and ventilation controls that enable each patient to adjust the amount of fresh air he receives.

An adjustable system of stretcher suspension that provides an 18-inch minimum space between stretchers though there may be as many as four litters in a single tier.

Vibration-proof stretcher slings that eliminate jarring to the patients in flight and landing.

A built-in nurses' medical chest with space for storage of drugs and medical equipment and individual desks for nurses who are provided with direct communication systems to flight crews.

A method of spraying the plane interior with insecticide automatically.

A special cabin interior insulated against noise, heat and cold.

Means to Halt Red Pincer Threat Cited

By the United Press

The United States may have to face a world-wide Communist "pincer movement' alone unless this country works with other free nations to rearm and defend both America and them, the National Planning Association said last night.

It released a report of its international policy committee in direct conflict with the views of former President Herbert Hoover. He suggested last week that the United States pull back from Europe and Asia, consolidating American forces in rock-like strength on this continent.

"Working in the closest possible cooperation with the other Western democracies, we are entitled to have high hopes of the outcome" of a war with an expanded Communist Russia, the report said.

"If however, because of blindness or wishful thinking or lack of vision or courage, we fail to heed the storm warnings that are flying, a conquering adversary writing the history of a vanished dream of human freedom may say with some justice that we deserved our fate."

The NPA group also called for continuation and expansion of our point four plan for economic aid to backward areas, and a stepped-up propaganda program.

It said our "present superiority in automic weapons" may give the Nation a "brief breathing spell," but added no time must be lost.

"The balance of power, which has shifted so gravely to the disadvantage of the free world, must be restored as promptly as humanly possible," the report stated.

The 20-man committee headed by Chairman Frank Altschul painted a grim picture of Soviet Russia's aims in building up its military force "at an alarming rate."

"While it talks of peace, it prepares aggressively for war," it said.

The report said the Chinese Reds seem bent on expanding through Korea, Indo-China, Malaya, Tibet, and Nepal, while Russia threatens Iran, the Middle East and the Persian Gulf region.

"The portent is clear," it added. "If these expansionist plans are not held in check, the North American continent may find itself caught in a vast pincer movement between Asia, with its limitless manpower, and Europe, whose vast industrial potential has come under the sway of the Soviet Union."

Astoria Hotel

Eisenhower's Headquarters Taking Shape

PARIS, Dec. 27 (AP).—Decorators and carpenters moved into the Astoria Hotel today and began converting it into Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's temporary headquarters.

Versailles, historic Paris suburb, may be the permanent headquarters, but the management of a large hotel there denied yesterday that negotiations already were under way to acquire it for SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe).

The Astoria, only a few yards from the Arc de Triomphe, was used by German officers during the Nazi occupation and was taken over by the U. S. Army at the 1944 liberation. It was built in 1906 with German capital.

A detachment of the U. S. Army's European command, which operates a military supply line through France to Germany, has just moved out of the hotel to a new headquarters at Orleans.

Russia Insists Japanese Aid U. S. in Korea

MOSCOW, Dec. 27 (U.P.).—The official Communist party newspaper charged anew today that the United States is using Japanese military personnel in Korea.

[Russia has an accord with Red China under which assistance would be given if either country were attacked by Japanese forces. —Editor's Note.]

Pravda carried a Tass news dispatch from Shanghai which said six Japanese minelayers, staffed by Japanese coast guardsmen, were anchored at Wonsan on the Korean east coast.

Tass said its information came from a Japanese sailor recently returned from Wonsan. The dispatch said also that many Japanese infantrymen, wearing American uniforms and insignia, were taking part in the Korean war.

At the same time, the Soviet navy organ Red Fleet said Japan already was an effective "base for American aggression in Asia" and that Gen. Douglas MacArthur is stepping up preparations to increase the Japanese army and navy and remilitarize the country.

Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, pointed to V. I. Lenin's prophecy that the outcome of the struggle between socialism and capitalism "ultimately depends on the fact that Russia, India, China, etcetera comprise a gigantic majority of the population."

Torresola Widow Freed of Charge In Assassin Case

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (U.P.).—Mrs. Carmen Torresola, 21-year-old widow of the gunman slain in the attempt to assassinate President Truman, was released today and the conspiracy charges against her were dropped.

U. S. Commissioner Edward McDonald said there was not enough evidence to support the charge of conspiring to harm the President.

She had been held in jail since her arrest November 3, unable to raise $2000 bail.

McDonald also released Mrs. Rosa Collazo, 42, whose husband, Oscar Collazo, is awaiting trial in Washington on charges of slaying a Blair House guard in the assassination attempt November 1. Mrs. Collazo was released on her own recognizance, although she had previously been free on $2000 bail.

Quaint Plaint Irks Iranians

By The Associated Press

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 27 (AP).—A week-old sitdown strike by six deputies to Parliament and 10 newspaper editors against the government's closing of newspapers has given the Iranian Parliament the air of a boarding house.

The demonstrators sleep on the floor in committee rooms, warm meals on heating stoves and entertain a steady stream of visitors with bitter attacks on Premier Ali Razmara.

They are protected by a centuries-old Persian practice of sanctuary called "bast," and so may not be molested. Although the government detests the situation, meals and shelter must be provided under "bast" rules.

The demonstration started December 20. Three National Front Deputies carried bed-rolls into Parliament and announced they would stay until attacks on the press were stopped. They soon were joined by three other deputies and 10 newspaper editors.

The immediate issue was the suppression of three newspapers and the jailing of two editors on charges of violating a press law which forbids insulting government officials.

The two editors were freed and the three newspapers were given permission to resume printing this week, but the demonstrators said they will continue until the press law is changed.

'This Is Really Living . . .'

Wounded Trio Gets Home for Yule Holiday

The best holiday ever is being enjoyed in Washington today by three wounded Marines who missed a Korean Christmas, courtesy of the Red army.

An exploding mortar cost S/Sergt. Vernon J. Plummer, 34, his right leg on a hill just north of Seoul three months ago.

Sixty hours of sub-zero cold cost Sergt. Philip M. Sabato, 28, a pair of frostbitten feet. He had been hit earlier by an exploding grenade.

And a Chinese concussion grenade knocked Corpl. Richard S. Ray unconscious until he woke up on a hospital ship off Hungnam 14 hours later.

But all three ended up in Washington for Christmas.

Plummer is on 30 days leave with his wife, Cecile, an FHA statistical clerk, at their home, 1227 Simms pl. ne. He is due back at the United States Naval Hospital, Oakland, Calif., on January 19 for a six-month stay.

"They have a new kind of leg out there I'm interested in and want to get," he said yesterday. "That's why I'm not coming back here to the Bethesda Hospital."

Plummer got his on September 29, only eight days after he landed in Korea.

Enemy Counterattack

"We had just attacked this hill, and just secured it," he said. "Then they started a counterattack with mortars. The first one hits me right in the leg. And they had to take it off. I got a little more shrapnel in me but it didn't amount to much."

A veteran of eight and a half years in the Marine Corps, Plummer made a landing with the First Marine Division in New Guinea in World War II, and was returned to this country with a fungus infection.

Corporal Ray just did get to Washington in time to taste his Christmas turkey. He arrived at 4 p. m., quickly called his home, 4007 21st. ne., and ran smack into the incredulity of his 16-year-old brother Jerry.

"You know who this is," he asked over the phone.

"No," said Jerry.

"This is your brother, Dick."

"Yeeeah," the younger brother smirked.

"This is Dick. You know me—Dick."

"Quit clowning."

Mother Nearly Faints

Finally, Dick's mother, Mrs. Marguerite Ray, came to the rescue, but she said she nearly fainted when she heard her son's voice.

Ray got his trying to protect the escape route for retreating U. N. soldiers near Hungnam. Among his souvenirs from the Naktong River line, Inchon and Wonsan are a hernia and the memory of a bout with dysentery.

Sergeant Sabato was wounded November 29 by a Chinese grenade while fighting with the Fifth Regiment, First Marine Division, in the Chosin Reservoir sector. It was the day before his outfit began the march back to Hagaru.

During the long trek back, Sabato said he got in a truck with the wounded. The 60 hours he spent there, lying still, cost him a pair of frostbitten feet. Now on 12-day leave from Bethesda Naval Hospital, Sabato is spending his time like man of "complete relaxation."

A combat veteran of World War II, Sabato escaped injury at Tarawa, Iwo Jima and Saipan. He arrived in Washington December 23, and is spending his leave with hs wife, Clara, at 1617 Holbrook st. ne.

Youth Facing Military Life

combat shortly after M-day—not the eight months or more now necessary for National Guard units. Some units would be in a greater state of readiness than others.

(6) Thus the service to be required of most young men would be full-time service of from 24 to 30 months—27 months is reported to be the most likely term—followed by about five years in a part-time drilling force like the National Guard.

7. Not only must the draft period be upped from the present 21 months, but other changes in Selective Service are required. Lowering of the entrance age to 18 is likely, plus a lowering of draft standards and perhaps taking some veterans with not too extensive World War II service. It is in this realm that some decisions are not yet firm, officials stated.

4F Exemptions to Go

8. Very definitely, the day of widespread 4F exemptions is waning. Under such a program as planned, almost all usuable young manpower must be taken.

How soon the full program can be put into effect is another matter. It cannot be done overnight, but it seems that both the Executive Branch and Congress are coming face to face with the problem of effectively using our most valuable yet most limited resource—manpower.

Several months ago the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee asked President Truman to have the interested Government agencies submit comprehensive recommendations. They pointed out that our enemies are rich and we are poor in the quantity of manpower and we must make the most intelligent use of our human quality.

Since then Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall has devoted the better part of his time to determining military manpower goals and improvement of the Guard-Reserve readiness condition. Assistant Secretary Anna Rosenberg has been almost full time on the problem, and it has been explored by the other interested Government agencies—the Department of Labor, Office of Education, National Security Resources Board, etc.

Adenauer Sees 'Partnership' Link in Future

BONN, Thursday, Dec. 28 (AP).—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today said the relationship between West Germany and the free nations of the West is "on the way to developing into a real partnership."

In a year-end statement prepared for the Associated Press, the Chancellor again stressed his goal of equality:

"The federal government is fully aware of its responsibilities as a member of the community of free nations and is convinced of the necessity that peace and freedom must be defended.

"Indispensable" Symbol

"But equality, as the most important symbol of freedom, is indispensible for the realization of international justice upon which alone a lasting peace can be based."

Adenauer has frequently insisted West Germany must be accepted as an equal partner before she contributes troops to the West European defense system.

The Chancellor pledged that the main goal of his government in 1951 will be to contribute "with all our energy to securing and maintaining the peace of the world and to support all honest efforts in that direction."

Domestically, he said, West Germany has made great economic progress during 1950. He emphasized the home-building program, which he said has topped all similar European projects. Housing Minister Eberhard Wildermuth said 340,000 new homes have been built in West Germany in the last year.

Production Index Up

In Frankfurt yesterday, United States High Commissioner John J. McCloy said West Germany's production jumped in 1950 98 percent of normal to 128 percent.

West Germany's total exports were valued at $740,000,000 more than last year, he said, and coal production has advanced from 356,000 tons a day to $400,000 tons.

McCloy said "Germany will not be sold out over the conference table" in any new Big Four talks. The possibility of arranging such talks were discussed in a recent exchange of notes between Russia and the three Western powers.

McCloy said he had been instructed to recgard the matter of German rearmament as urgent "and not limited by consideration of a four-power conference.

He expressed hope that talks between the Allies and the Germans on the problem will be resumed soon after the end of the holiday season.

Atomic Radiation 'Dog Tags' Made For Navy's Men

By The Associated Press

The Navy said yesterday it has developed two types of atomic radiation "dog tags" which appear to fill the requirements for the protection of Navy personnel.

Both detector devices were described as simple, rugged and inexpensive, retaining their sensitivity in storage and under extreme heat.

One type uses crystals which normally are transparent but turn blue when exposed to gamma rays generated by a nuclear explosion. A doctor can determine the degree of a patient's exposure to radiation by comparing the shade of the "dog tag" with a color chart.

Silver-activated phosphate glass is the sensitive element in the second type. Gamma rays turn the glass to an orange color under ultra violet light. The Navy said that a quick measure of radiation intensity can be made visually and that a more accurate measurement can be determined by a simple and compact photo electric "reader."

Both types were developed by the Naval Research Laboratory and sponsored by the Bureau of Ships.

Record Budget For Defense Asked by Tito

BELGRADE, Dec. 27 (U.P.).—Marshal Tito's government today asked Parliament to approve a record-breaking defense budget to arm Yugoslavia against the threats of the "present international situation."

The 1951 budget earmarked 16.7 percent of the nation's expenditures for defense, as compared with 7.1 percent in 1950.

The budget set aside 29,100 billion dinars (582 million dollars) for defense out of a total budget of 172,662 billion ($3,474,920,000).

The defense appropriation amounted to 27 percent of the funds allocated to the Federal Government, as distinguished from funds for Yugoslavia's six Republics. The budget covered both federal and local expenditures.

The budget was submitted by the Lower House's economic and finance committee.

The budget also called for increases of 13.5 percent in social welfare and public health expenditures and 15.6 percent for education and cultural projects. The only sizable cut was in administrative expenses, which will be 11.5 percent less next year.

The budget was slightly less than the 1950 budget of 173,746,000,000 diars ($3,474,920,000).

Romanian 'Trespasser' Slain by Border Guards

BELGRADE, Dec. 27 (AP).—The official Belgrade radio said a Romanian officer was shot to death today for trespassing on Yugoslav territory and 150 Romanian soldiers fired "many shots" across the border in an attempt to recover the officer's body.

Yugoslav border guards did not reply to the fire, the raido said.

There was no explanation why the Romanian crossed the border near the village of Radujevo. The Foreign Ministry said it had asked the Romanian government to join in appointing a commission to investigate.

Output Pool Is Proposed

BRUSSELS, Dec. 27 (AP).—Belgium's Foreign Minister, Paul Van Zeeland, was reported today to have submitted a plan to the Atlantic Pact Council suggesting European nations can pool their armament production, possibly reducing the cost to America.

The plan was said to provide guarantees to manufacturers throughout Europe that their products would be bought and paid for, thus providing the necessary encouragement for a speed-up in production.

It suggests that the program can be financed largely by a clearing-house system of balancing credits and debits, pooling of excess profits taxes from armament manufacturers, and the pooling of all credits, including those from American aid to help take care of deficits. Bonuses for armament workers also were suggested as an incentive to higher production.

Pvt. Smith, Korea War's First 4-Way Amputee, Arrives Here

Military Air Transport Service plane No. 8146—equipped to carry wounded men—brought Pvt. Robert L. Smith to Washington last night.

On Pvt. Smith's request, no pictures were taken; there was no interviewing by newspapermen.

"Not yet," Air Force spokesmen said.

All that actually happened at Bolling Air Force Base was that Pvt. Smith, 20 years old, Serial 133342768, first quadruple amputee of the Korean war, was lifted from the plane into a large ambulance.

A group of GIs handled the blanket-covered litter swiftly. Then Pvt. Smith was driven to Walter Reed Hospital for medical treatment.

There was no elaboration of his injuries beyond what the Army has announced: That Smith was slightly wounded in one arm while fighting November 27; that frost bite made amputation necessary; that he lost both hands above the wrists, both legs below the knees.

About half the news that came to the party of newspapermen concerned the meeting between Smith and his mother, Mrs. Clara Smith of Middleburg, Pa.

Mrs. Smith had originally planned to meet him at Bolling. She was delayed by a cold. She plans to come here today, or later this week.

But somewhere or other on the cross-country flight from California, Smith had heard of the plans.

At Bolling, he told Capt. William Lookadoo conrerning the pending meeting:

"It's a great surprise."

"He smiled when he said that," Lookadoo said. "It was a wholesome smile."

Lookadoo, public information officer at Headquarters Command of the Air Force, was one of the three officers who asked Smith whether he would consent to having his picture taken. The others were Brig. Gen. Morris J. Lee, commandant of Headquarters Command, and Col. Henry J. Alman, Bolling base commander.

After a few minutes in the plane with Smith, Lookadoo announced that the decision was "no."

The rest of the news about Smith comes from Capt. Eleanor A. Geovanelle, of St. Marys, Pa., the nurse aboard MATS plane No. 8146.

Had Smith said anything on the flight from Westover Field, Mass., to Bolling?

"He didn't particularly want to talk. He had a little pain," she said. "He slept after medication. He only answered questions."

What does he look like?

"He's a good-looking chap," she said.

Color of hair, for example?

"It looks like a crew cut to me. Dark."

How did he seem?

"He didn't look bad to me," she said.

Didn't he say anything at all?

His traveling companions?

From Westover Field, Mass., to Bolling came five other litter cases, seven ambulatory patients. From Mitchel Field, N. Y., where some of the patients were dropped off, two other litter cases, and three ambulatory patients.

The only other information Captain Geovanelle had to give was that Pvt. Smith was mannerly — it was her word: "mannerly."

"He has good manners," she repeated.

Red Korean Attack Held Long Planned

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 27 (AP). Gen. Douglas MacArthur charged in a United Nations report released today that Chinese Communists made plans to invade Korea months before U. N. troops crossed the thirty-eighth parallel.

The report, covering military operations in Korea for the two-week period ended November 30, said that the Chinese plans "for the active and aggressive intervention in the Korean war were undoubtedly developd early in the summer."

Communist China has said that Chinese "volunteers" took up arms in Korea to defend their country against United States aggression. The first United States patrols did not cross the thirty-eighth parallel until October 8. During the early U. N. forces were defending the Pusan perimeter deep in Southern Korea against strong Red Korean attacks.

The report, MacArthur's tenth of the war, said that "the vast quatities of personnel and material now poised (November 15-30) along the Yalu River and agressively employed against United Nations forces in Korea far exceed the most elaborate requirements for the establishment of a purely defensive structure along the Korea-Manchurian boarder."

"It is evident," the report continued," that the assembly of such an array of force could not have been effectively accomplished overnight. These factors, considered with other pertinent manifestations, certainly indicate that plans for the active and aggressive intervention in the Korean war were undoubtedly developed early in the summer."

The United States delegation also made public MacArthur's ninth report, covering the first two weeks in November, in which he branded Chinese Communist intervention "an act of international lawlessness far exceeding that of mere brigandage." The reports are sent to the U. N. secretary-general for distribution to members of the Security Council.

On war crimes, MacArthur estimated that the number of victims of atrocities committed by the North Koreans totaled 35,00 up to November 15. He reported that in one mass execution North Koreans dropped 50 men and women civilians down two wells and dropped two large rocks on top of them.

Wallace Sees China Favor Vital to U. S.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace stated today the United States needs a friendly China desperately because "Russia and China in complete accord can eventually dominate the world."

He declared that the United Nations—with both Russia and China as members—should help eastern Asia in agricultural reforms and industrial expansion.

The former Vice President, who ran unsuccessfully for President on the Progressive ticket in 1948, stated his views in a group of articles in the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, on long-range U. S. policies in the Far East.

He contended that Asia is headed inevitably toward "tremendous agricultural reforms and industrial expansion." He added:

"She will not long remain subservient to those who help her—whether they be Russian or American. She will learn what they have to teach and follow her own path, being most friendly, of course, to the nation which helps her most."

Wallace contended that Mao Tse-tung, head of China's Communist Government, "desperately needs both our capital and our technology

Fast New Jets On Full Alert Over N. Y. Area

The Air Force announced yesterday its first operational unit of all-weather jet fighters is now standing 24-hour guard over New York and adjacent critical target areas of the industrial East.

The watch is being maintained by the fifty-second all-weather fighter wing, stationed at McGuire Air Force Base, Fort Dix, N. J., which has been equipped with new Lockheed F-94s.

The F-94 is a fast-climbing, radar-equipped jet plane designed to intercept enemy bombers in good weather or bad, daylight or darkness.

It has a combat ceiling of about 45,000 feet and a speed of more than 600 miles an hour.

The F-94 is an improved version of the famous Lockheed F-80 Shooting Star, one of the first Air Force jets, which has been the combat workhorse of the Korean war.

It is armed with .50 calibre machine guns and carries a crew of two—the pilot and a radar operator.

The new interceptor also is equipped with "after-burner" apratus which gives its jet engines additional power for speedier climbing.

While its exact rate of climb is secret, the Air Force said squadrons of F-94s could engage enemy bombers at high altitudes within a "few minutes" after the alarm was sounded on the ground.

The fighters and their crews are on a 24-hour standby alert, as many other unts of the Continental Air Command have been since the Korean war began.

Allies Brace for Red Assault

Chinese Reds and the rest North Koreans.

(No explanation was given as to how headquarters arrived at these exact figures.)

The war summary said eleven reconstituted North Korean divisions have been identified in the past twelve days through prisoner interrogations. This raised the total of identified North Korean units to 23 divisions and three brigades.

"It is reasonable to assume that the capability of placing several additional North Korean divisions in the field in the very near future," the summary added.

Ridgway took over command of the unified allied ground army in Korea Wednesday after a brief visit with President Syngman Rhee of the Republic of Korea at the presidential palace.

"I aim to stay in Korea," the new commander told Rhee.

Ridgway flew to Korea from Washington to take the place of Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, killed in a jeep accident north of Seoul Saturday.

Five divisions of the United States Tenth Corps, evacuated from northeast Korea through the Hungnam beachhead, were added to the Eighth Army as Ridgway took over.

With the additional troops, the Eighth Army also was given the responsibility for guarding the entire U. N. front in Korea.

The augmented Eighth is deployed across the width of Korea in mountainous defensive terrain fronting the thirty-eighth parallel, the arbitrary dividing line that once separated Red North from Republican South Korea.

The Army commands all approaches to South Korea, Tokyo military sources said. It is prepared, the sources added, to hit hard any Red force launching a southward drive.

As Ridgeway visited Rhee at the presidential palace, Seoul residents poured out of the city for sanctuary in the south. Most went on foot. Other jammed trains and ship. Some had automobiles.

Allied authorities estimated that nearly half of Seoul's one million residents had left the city, threatened with its second Red invasion in six months.

Rhee said he and his top Government officials would stay in Seoul until the Eighth Army asked them to leave.

The two Chinese Red companies encircled 32 air miles north of Seoul were trying to make a breakthrough in the Chongong sector which would have put them on one main highway to Seoul.

The North Korean regiment that was encircled and wiped out had penetrated the United Nations defense lines 2 miles to the outskirts of Chunchon, rail and highway center 45 miles northeast of the Republican capital.

A high ranking officer of the United States Ninth Corps, defending the front north of Seoul, said the Reds were continuing to build up their forces north and northwest of Seoul.

"They are ready and capable of attacking us at any moment," he said.

The plains area northwest of the Republican capital was reported alive with Red patrols.

Chinese Red troops were reported showing themselves in broad daylight with greater frequency.

Fifth Air Force fighters and light bombers Wednesday inflicted about 500 casualties on a Red troop concentration near Chorwon, 50 miles north of Seoul, and killed or wounded 300 other Communists in the Hamhung area, just north of the evacuated Hungnam beachhead in northwest Korea.

In the mountainous eastern sector of the front, nearly 100 Reds surrendered to U.N. ground forces without a fight, after a flight of F-51 Mustangs had repeatedly raked their area with vicious machinegun fire.

Dr. Compton to Get First Proctor Award

CLEVELAND, Dec. 27 (U.P.)—Dr. Karl T. Compton, one of the Nation's foremost scientists, will be awarded the first William Proctor prizes from the Scientific Research Society of America, it was announced today.

Dr. Compton will be awarded the $1000 prize at Friday's session of the 117th convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

French Retake Fortress

DAPHUC, Indo-China, Dec. 27 (AP).—Mobile French reserves raced north 27 miles from Hanoi just before dawn today and reoccupied this hill fortress, which the Viet Minh had captured in a fierce night attack.

Ho Chi Minh's Communist-backed troops, numbering nearly 3000, did not attempt to defend the fort. They vanished into nearby hills just ahead of the French relief column.

Daphuc was the center of the biggest rebel attack since October, when French forces vacated their long string of frontier posts facing Red China.

Simultaneously with the assault on Daphuc, guarding Hanoi's northern defenses on highway No. 3, well-coordinated attacks were made on French positions along a 25-mile arc on each side of the key post.

Heavy guns, mortars and automatic weapons blazed as the rebels launched their diversionary thrusts at five fortified posts and two brick watchtowers. But Daphuc was the only position the Viet Minh really tried to take over, and nowhere did the attack continue after daybreak.

West Zone Barges Held

BERLIN, Dec. 27 (AP).—Three West German barges carrying scrap metal from Berlin have been held for four days in the Soviet zone, Allied officials reported today. They said they were pressing an inquiry with Russian authorities, who have conducted a sporadic "battle of barges" with the West this year.

Policy on Yalu Dams Subject to Revision

By Conferees

U. S. Loans For Shelters Approved

Senate and House conferees reached tentative agreement yesterday on provisions to authorize Federal loans for air raid shelters which would serve as garages or subways in peacetime.

The provision, urged by several large city mayors, was included in the national civil defense bill. The clause would permit the Reconstruction Finance Corp. to lend up to 250 million dollars for "self-liquidating" civil defense projects. This was a Senate provision which the House yesterday accepted.

Conferees will meet at 10 a. m. today to complete the compromise $3,100,000,000 preparedness measure.

Final action by Congress is set for January 2.

If China is branded as an aggressor, the United Nations command may yet decide to blow up the great dams on the Yalu River that provide power and light to half of Manchuria.

Responsible officials said yesterday that the whole subject of the power installations "logically" would be subject to review if the Chinese Communists formally reject a cease-fire and if the U. N. formally finds them guilty of aggression.

Up to now, the same officials said, it "has not seemed wise," either politically or militarily, to destroy the dams. It has been the settled policy of the U. N., with firm American support, not to bomb Chinese industrial or other targets in Manchuria, as long as there was any hope, officially, of keeping Communist China out of the Korean war.

The same thinking applied to the power dams on the Yalu, partly in North Korea and partly in Manchuria. Technically it might have been possible to destroy the dams on the Korean side, although such bombing might have led to a mistaken bombing of Manchuria and to a political "incident."

Even after the Chinese intervened in force in Korea, the same policy of restraint has been followed, with the approval of the State and Defense Departments and the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The United States approved the recent efforts of 13 Asiatic nations to bring about a cease-fire, and neither the United States nor other U. N. members were disposed to torpedo the peace efforts by bombing the dams at this time.

Some Pentagon officials, when asked why the dams have not been attacked, have told reporters to ask the State Department. State Department officials have said the decision was largely a military one.

But, like many other decisions since the Korean war began, this one was described authoritatively as a joint political-military policy, approved by the highest civilian and military authorities and by President Truman himself.

The question of the dams was raised a week ago by Representative-elect Alfred Siemanski (D., N. J.), who just came back from duty as an army public relations officer in Korea.

According to Siemanski, the troops in Korea "are saying that a cartel has a stake in these projects," and that therefore the installations had been spared.

Officials here said this was sheer "nonsense," and insisted that there were weighty reasons not to destroy the dams at this time. But they emphasized that the decision was not final, and could be reversed if the Chinese persisted in their attack on the U.N. forces.

Industry Gains Reported by 3 Satellites

LONDON, Dec. 27 (AP).—Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia and Poland, all under Kremlin pressure to increase industrial output, said today they've done it in 1950.

Agencies of the three Communist nations announced statistics for the year, most given in percentages.

The Polish press agency said the industrial phase of the first year of Poland's six-year plan has been mainly fulfilled and heavy and light industries, chemicals, electrical agencies and railroads are generally about a month ahead of schedule. Sugar production was 70,000 tons above the planned 830,000,000 tons, the agency said.

Production in Czechoslovakia has been 32.8 percent above the 1937 level, whereas last year it was only 11.6 percent higher, according to the Prague newspaper Lidova Demokracia. The 1950 output of factory machinery and other investment goods has been 63.9 percent higher than in 1937, it said, and that of consumer goods 16.7 percent higher.

Bulgaria's Cabinet announced industrial output was 23.3 percent above the 1949 level and that this topped the five-year plan by 42.2 percent. Four times more meat products were reported sold than in 1949.

U. S. Warns Of Gas Attack

fective" anti-personnel weapon against a civilian population, the experts said.

It could be produced in large quantities, they explained, and "would involve nothing like the amounts of scarce materials that go into an A-bomb."

Officials stressed that an atomic attack on a large city still is the worst disaster possibility from the emergency health standpoint.

On the defense side, CDA said a "simple inexpensive disposable type of gas mask is needed for the general public in target cities."

Dr. Oscar Hunter, head of civil defense medical care services here, said plans have not reached the point of considering purchase of gas masks for District residents.

He declined comment on how the District—operating on a civil defense financial shoestring—stood in regard to the Federal agency's recommendations.

He said his medical advisory committee would hold a "dress rehearsal" on disaster planning some time next week.

On gas attack protection, CDA further pointed out that persons living on upper stories would be safer than those on lower levels since the gas is heavier than air and hugs the ground.

Shelters and large buildings, the report recommends, should be equipped with filters to prevent entry of gas.

Discussing overt biological warfare, CDA says germs could be spread by aerial bombs released by plans or from submarines approaching port cities, or possibly by guided missiles. Creation of aerosol clouds also was stressed.

The agency also warned that saboteurs could prepare gas and germs in "clandestine" laboratories in this country.

"The best defense—other than internal security measures—against this form of warfare," CDA said, "would be to expand and maintain rigid safeguards for water and food supplies."

The Government emphasized, however, that this country already has a "defense organization," on Federal and State levels, fighting epidemics spread by germs.

The report detailed organization charts for emergency ambulance service, first-aid stations and standby hospital facilities for use in event of enemy attack.

CDA recommended completely mobile first-aid stations. For a city the size of Washington, it stated 96 stations and more than 18,000 attendants would be required for an air explosion of one Hiroshima-type atomic bomb without warning over the city.

Dr. Hunter said present thinking on the local front conforms with these suggested figures.

Other developments highlighted by the medical report:

1. The agency recommends a preliminary listing of all blood donors who could provide type "O" blood, which can be given to anyone. It is estimated 120,000 pints will be necessary during the first three weeks after one A-bomb attack.

2. The Government is developing an all-plastic blood container to replace the glass bottles now used at blood banks.

3. CDA cautiously indorsed "dry-dressing" burn pads for mass treatment of burns which would result from an atomic attack. The cellulose and guaze wrap-around pads are not new but there is some division in the medical profession over the merits of the pads.

the money. Tomas Suner Ferrer, the Spanish Undersecretary of Commerce and Industry, has been talking with officials here, but has wanted to use the loan for consumer goods.

But on November 15 the Economic Cooperation Administration issued a statement saying that the credits would be used "for productive purposes likely to make a substantial improvement in the Spanish economy." The Government here is still studying specific projects submitted by the Spaniards, but so far, an informed source said yesterday, none has been approved.

Griffis, the new ambassador, was born in Boston, and educated at Cornell. He has been chairman of the board of Paramount Pictures, of the Madison Square Garden Corp. in New York, and of Brentano's bookstores. In wartime he worked with the Office of Strategic Services in 1942-'43, headed the domestic motion picture bureau of the Office of War Information in 1943-'44, and went to Sweden for the Foreign Economic Administration in 1944-'45.

For a short time after the war he was director of United Nations relief for Arab refugees from Palestine. Then he went to Argentina on the understanding that would serve a year as Ambassador, and it was reported that he had been promised an important diplomatic post in Europe. He resigned the Argentine post on December 1.

Exports Rise, British Show

LONDON (Thursday), Dec. 28 (U.P.).—An official summary of world trade published today showed the British Commonwealth to be the world's largest trading area with a marked increase in the proportion of world exports over prewar levels.

The official percentages of exports and imports in world trade were listed as follows for the years 1938 and 1949:

	1938	1949
World exports
Commonwealth	25%	29%
United States	14	21
Europe	37	28
World imports:

Austrian Ships on Danube Sail Red Zone 1st Time in 5 Years

VIENNA, Dec. 27 (AP).—With Russian consent, tankers bearing the Austrian flag sailed the Danube River in the Soviet zone of Austria today for the first time in five years. Until today, Austrian ships had not dared to sail through the Russian zone.

Three tugboats and nine tankers of the Austrian Danube Shipping Co., arrived in Vienna tonight after a 120-mile trip downstream from Linz in the American zone.

They came to collect 3200 tons of oil.

Shipping officials said Russian water police treated the ships with the "utmost courtesy" when they crossed the line between the American and Russian zones.

The agreement for the movement of the ships was made between the Austrian Danube Shipping Company and OROP, the Soviet-controlled oil concern.

The Austrian shipping company previously had refrained from moving traffic through th Soviet zone because it feared th ships would be taken as "forme: German assets." The Germans during their occupation of Austria, took over the Danube Shipping Company.

REMINGTON—Fr. Pg. 1

Remington's Ex-Wife Talks

Mrs. Remington today reiterated yesterday's testimony that he had been a member.

She said at one point with considerable feeling that she was "a very reluctant witness" and that it was "extremely hard for me to testify against the father of my children." She added that she held "no malice" for her ex-husband but was merely trying "to tell the truth as I remember it."

During the day she testified that:

1. Before marrying Remington, whom she did not love but thought she might come to love, she made him promise that he would continue to remain in the Communist party. She said he said he would and they were married in June, 1939.

2. On their Mexican honeymoon, they looked up a number of Communists to whom Joseph North (now a writer for the Communist newspaper, the Daily Worker) had given them letters of introduction.

3. On the way back from Mexico, they stopped at Knoxville, Tenn., to see Remington's friends from his year with the Tennessee Valley Authority. It was during his TVA days, Mrs. Remington explained today, that Remington was a party member. She said they discovered that two of his former party associates, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hart, had quit as a result of the Hitler-Stalin pact.

4. Back in New York, the Remingtons enrolled in the Communist party's workers' school for a course in Marxist economics. But they quit, the defense brought out, after Remington "heckled" the teacher and, his former wife said, he tried unsuccessfully to talk "real economics" in the classroom.

5. They "rang doorbells" for Earl Browder in 1940 when that Communist leader ran for Congress in a special election. They were "disappointed" when he made a poor showing.

6. They contributed $100 and sent a letter with the money to the Communist magazine New Masses. The letter, signed with fictitious names to "protect" the Remingtons, she said, was read to the jury from the magazine which published it in May, 1940. It said that the contribution came from a wedding present (of some $4000) which they had banked for "a rainy day" and that the Remingtons considered that "a very rainy day has come" when the New Masses "needs money."

Defense Attorney William C. Chandler alter indicated that the magazine's money appeal which led to the contribution resulted from trouble with the postoffice over its mailing privilege. He also stressed a sentence in the letter in which the Remingtons said that "We do not always agree with your editorial policies . . ."

Mrs. Remington said that when they moved to Washington in May, 1940, they first lived on Fulton st. —she couldn't remember the number—and her husband went to work for the National Resources Planning Board.

Mrs. Remington served as executive secretary, she said, of the Washington Peace Mobilization and her husband helped draft leaflets for the group. District Attorney Irving H. Saypol, who is prosecuting the case, called the jurors' attention to the fact that this was during the war-time period of the Hitler-Stalin pact when the Communist Party in this country was for peace.

Mrs. Remington said she thought she was "organizing" the peace group, one of a number around the country, but discovered later that "I was a figurehead." Finally, she added, "they eased me out."

In November, 1941, the Remingtons moved to Alexandria where they found it more difficult, she said, to see North who was their contact with the Communist Party. Finally, because "we felt out of touch with the party work" "and because we wanted to help more, do more," they asked for a new contact.

Through North, she said, they met in New York Jacob Golos, described by Miss Bentley as the key Communist spy leader in this country. In turn, she said, Golos introduced them to "Helen," who turned out to be Miss Bentley.

There were "several meetings" between the Remingtons and Miss Bentley, she testified, in 1942 and 1943. Once they picked her up near 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. and drove "to a more secluded place on the Mall."

At these meetings, she said, Remington would give Miss Bentley pieces of paper and they would pay her their Communist Party dues. It was at one such meeting that Remington turned over the explosives-from-garbage formula.

At another, Miss Bentley presented them with Christmas presents "from the party"—a tie for him, a scarf for her. The scarf was produced in court today, a small brown and white one. Mrs. Remington said she thought the idea of party Christmas presents very inappropriate.

At one point, Mrs. Remington said, they tried to get two friends, Joan and Bernard Redmont, to "make contact" through Miss Bentley. Mrs. Remington said Redmont indicated he was a party member and that Mrs. Redmont later said she also was. Redmont is due in New York next week from Paris where he is a magazine correspondent. He is expected to testify.

Chanler, in his cross-examination, brought out the informality of Mrs. Remington's asserted membership in both the Young Communist League and the Communist Party.

She testified at one point that "being a Communist was largely a state of mind"—she left the party in 1946, she said. She declared that she signed "some sort of paper" to join the YCL at Bennington College and did get a card. But she had no card and signed no paper when she first joined the party while a Columbia University graduate student.

A fellow student, she said, "thought I was close" to the party in her thinking and so he took her to her first meeting.

Oil Man Fumes At Elopement

fore Justice of the Peace Nash Oliver.

Word of it got out yesterday. McCarthy held out for 24 hours. But today he confirmed the wedding. He obviously was not happy. He appeared both hurt and angry, and spoke guardedly.

But Glenalee went to St. Paul's Methodist Church tonight with her family for the wedding of her older sister, Mary Margaret, 19, to Harry Richards, jr., a Texas A. & M. College student and scion of a Houston banking family.

The McCarthy family let it be known a few hours before the wedding that Glenalee would be in the entourage, as matron of honor for her sister. Five-hundred persons received invitations to the affair, one of the city's big social events of the winter.

In confirming the elopment of Glenalee, McCarthy said:

"They are married. We don't have any plans right now. We haven't had time to talk about it."

Glenalee, a spirited, pretty blonde, brought a cycle full turn when she ran away to marry Pontikes. Twenty years ago, her father, ambitious but broke eloped with Faustine Lee. She was only 16, and the daughter of a multi-millionaire oilman. The couple, in parental disfavor, started their married life in a $15-a-month apartment.

four points above the "norm," and boys average four points below it.

Dr. Pauly said his proposed double-standards law would not only "give the boys a more even break in scholastic attainment," but would also save taxpayers from 150 million dollars to 300 million dollars a year, nationally, in repeat and make-up classes for the boys.

Another speaker at today's AAAS meetings said that television is no real problem to school children, unless their parents make it so. At the same time, he said, television offers "the greatest potential boost to education since the invention of the printing press."

"Unfortunately," said the speaker, Dr. Paul Witty, of Northwestern University, "television, By "plateau," he said he meant that both media ignore educational variety by finding a program that appeals, "like Hopalong Cassidy and other western" and sticking to that same level.

Educational Lack Scored

Basing his comments on a survey last spring of 2100 schoolchildren, their teachers and 1700 parents, in Evanston, Ill., Dr. Witty said all found but little of educational value in current TV offerings.

His survey also showed, he said, that the families of 90 percent of primary grade children there have television sets; that movie attendance of children there is only one-third what it was in pre-TV days, and that one-half of the teachers and one-third of the parents interviewed reported TV problems with the school children.

Such problems, Dr. Witty said, include drowsiness, disinterest in schoolwork, and a significant fall in reading and outdoor recreational activities of the TV watchers.

Average 3 Hours a Day

The survey, he reported, showed that children averaged about three hours a day watching television, to their parents' average of 3½ hours daily in homes with TV sets. Children whose parents did not have sets averaged 1½ hours daily, watching television at the neighbors'.

TV programs noted by the survey showed, in order of their popularity:

Children: Hopalong Cassidy, Howdy-Doody, The Lone Ranger, Milton Berle, Arthur Godfrey, Small Fry, Sports, and Kukla, Fran and Ollie.

Parents: Godfrey, Berle, Sports, and Fred Waring.

Dr. Witty, director of NU's psycho-educational clinic and professor of education, advocated that about 20 percent of TV time should be allotted to educational programs, "or TV, like radio, will become purely an entertainment medium."

Police Arrest 'Single-Action' Numbers Suspect

A man police described as a "walking single-action man" was arrested by vice squad detective yesterday and charged with operating a lottery and possessing slips.

He is Owen W. Robbins, 34, of 1315 13th st. nw., who was arrested in the 1900 block of 14th st. nw. at about 3:10 p. m. yesterday by vice squad men. Robbins posted $1500 bond for his appearance in Municipal Court today.

Capt. Roy Blick, of the Vice Squad said Robbins takes bets on numbers singly, in order of their appearance, rather than on the three digit combination. Blick said detectives found $117 in small bills on Robbins as well as a quantity of numbers slips.

World Telephones Total 70,300,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (U.P.)—Telephones are ringing around the globe as never before, the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. said today in reporting a record 70,300,000 phones in the world, an increase of more than four million in the last year.

The United States led with 40,709,398. This country had an average of 27.1 phones for every 100 persons, with Sweden in second place with 22.8. Canada was third. New York, with 2,956,832 telephones, had more than any other city.

Americans talked more over the telephone than citizens of any other country, an average of 355.1 phone conversations having been completed by each person in 1949, or 13 more than the year before.

Ethel Dupont Roosevelt Weds Detroit Attorney

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 27 (U.P.)—Mrs. Ethel Dupont Roosevelt, former wife of Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., was married today to Benjamin S. Warren, jr., Detroit attorney, in the home of her brother at suburban Greenville.

It was the second marriage for both. The bride divorced the late President's son in Nevada on May 21, 1949, after 12 years of marriage. Warren, 38, was divorced in Nevada last September from the former Ritchey Farrell, Nashville, Tenn.

Among those present at the wedding ceremony were the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dupont, and the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Benjamin S. Warren, a widow.

After a wedding trip, the couple will reside at Grosse Pointe Shores, Mich.

Mrs. Warren has two children by her first marriage, Franklin D. Roosevelt, III, 12, and Christopher Roosevelt, 8.

Oldsmobile Will Make Rockets for Bazookas

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 27 (U.P.)—Oldsmobile division of General Motors today announced it will make 3.5-inch rockets for the Army's new super-bazooka as its first defense contract since World War II.

The rockets will be produced at the engine parts plant here. The original work force of 300 on the project will be increased to 1000 when the rockets are in production.

Skinner said Oldsmobile will continue to build automobiles for civilian use while meeting its defense schedules.

Schenley Industries Order Price Freeze

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP).—Schenley Industries, Inc., today announced a price freeze on all its beverages, pharmaceuticals, cooperage, feeds and other products, effective immediately.

Lewis S. Rosenstiel, Schenley chairman, notified all executive and department heads: "No price change is to be made by any of our companies for any item sold in the United States."

In a few cases, the company said, some price changes had been established before the Economic Stabilization Agency asked a voluntary price freeze December 20.

Six-Day Police

No one is to be blamed for the inability of the Metropolitan Police Department to institute a five-day week as voted by Congress. Superintendent Barrett has shown a commendable regard for the protection of the community in declining to shift to the five-day week so long as there are insufficient men to do it. Recruitment for the Police Department is difficult at a time when there are more attractive jobs in private industry, though the Washington department has signed up 195 of the 300 additional men authorized. However, increased details, military leave and normal turnover leave the force 216 men short of its goal.

Actually continuation of the six-day week for police will be no particular hardship at the moment, for in the national emergency everyone must work harder and the 48-hour week may become general. But in all fairness the police deserve pay for the extra day off which has been authorized. We hope Congress will recognize the new situation by permitting five-day-week funds to be used to pay straight time for the sixth workday.

Saving The Wounded

Despite the wholesale increase in the number of casualties since the Korean reversal, it is comforting to know that wounded GIs are receiving the best medical care in history. One of the most impressive records of the Korean campaign has been rung up by the as yet largely unsung heroes of the Army Medical Department. Initially in Korea only about 1 percent of the men who once received medical attention subsequently died of their wounds. Preliminary estimates in recent weeks indicate that this figure may be raised to slightly over 2 percent—but even that is a marked improvement over the 4½ percent rate in World War II and the 8 percent in World War I. Actually the casualty rate has been cut in half in five years.

Probably the principal factor in this remarkable record is the high professional competence of military doctors, a great number of whom have received specialized training in military and civilian hospitals since 1947. Doctors are present as far forward as battalion aid stations a short distance behind the actual front; however, company aid men, who often rescue the wounded from the field of battle, also are trained to give medical treatment.

Once in the hands of doctors, the injured man, if his wounds are serious, is evacuated by the speediest means. Helicopters have been used extensively to supplement ambulances in pockets or otherwise in places where roads are bad; indeed, the Medical Department is now ordering helicopters as integral items of equipment. After preliminary withdrawal to an airstrip, the wounded men are carried to general hospitals in Japan. Those whose wounds will not permit their return to duty within 120 days are brought by air to hospitals in this country.

Certainly the courage and skill of the medics is a bright spot amid the grimness of war. It is a heartening commentary that out of the brutality of battle should come continual advances in medical techniques that emphasize the value of human life.

Government Spending

From the beginning of the fiscal year to December 21 the Federal Government spent 1.745 billion dollars less than during the corresponding period last year. Government receipts, on the other hand, rose by 826 million dollars, while the July to December 21 deficit dropped from nearly three billion dollars to 416.2 million dollars. This record is proof that Government spending for defense and deficit financing have contributed very little to inflation in recent months. Private spending is chiefly responsible for the inflationary upsurge that followed the outbreak of the Korean war. Although scare buying has subsided, private expenditures have been maintained at extraordinary high levels. For instance, it is estimated that December retail sales will set a record for any single month. And for the time being retail sales will probably remain at high levels, since consumer incomes (which provide the basis for an expansion of retail trade) will steadily rise as the Government increases its own spending for guns, tanks, planes, etc., unless these additional outlays are offset by higher taxes.

Recent and prospective wage increases and overtime pay also swell consumer incomes and accentuate inflationary pressures. At the same time, supplies of civilian goods will be reduced as the defense program expands, and the resultant scarcities of goods in great demand will give another fillip to prices. Furthermore, the spectacular increases that have already occurred in prices of some industrial raw materials have not yet been fully reflected in a rise in retail prices or, for that matter, in the wholesale prices of manufactured goods. That will come later. Consequently it would be foolhardy to cite the temporary shrinkage of the Government deficit as an excuse for delaying imposition of direct price controls or refusing to levy heavier taxes on personal incomes. Price controls are needed to curb the kind of inflation that results from the existence of an inflated volume of consumer purchasing power. And much heavier taxes are needed to cut down the volume of new purchasing power that is created whenever the Government spends more than it receives from the people.

New England Revival

The Boston Federal Reserve Bank reports that by September many areas in New England that had serious unemployment problems a few months ago were worried about meeting expanding labor needs, although no general labor shortages had appeared. Most of this rapid improvement in employment conditions antedates the Korean war; the effect of increased defense spending is only beginning to be felt. What a 40-billion-dollar military procurement program will mean in the way of industrial windfalls for New England is indicated by the fact that during World War II New England manufacturers were awarded 9 percent of all prime supply contracts and about 30 percent of the contracts for textiles and textile products.

Since it is generally agreed that expenditures for defense will remain at extraordinarily high levels for the indefinite future, New England's unemployment problem can be considered solved. Nevertheless, those plans that public-spirited citizens have been studying for the development of new industries in the region to absorb superfluous labor should be held in reserve. They may be a help in time of trouble when or if wars and threats of war vanish and the country returns to a normal peacetime routine.

Speaking Out Of Turn

In opposing any change in the Federal wage-hour law requiring payment for overtime work at time and a half rates of pay Secretary of Labor Tobin has spoken out of turn. His public statement is, in effect, an attempt to influence the decisions of the Wage Stabilization Board which is responsible for formulating a wage policy that will help to curb inflation. Teamwork is essential in these critical times, and every top-ranking Government official should recognize the impropriety of appeals to the public to support his personal views.

Not only has the Secretary of Labor spoken out of turn, his reasoning is open to attack. The additional payments required for overtime work, he says, "act as an incentive for drawing workers into essential production jobs and in reducing absenteeism." He evidently has little faith in the willingness of American workers to sacrifice a few hours of leisure in the cause of national defense.

Mr. Tobin also stresses the fact that "if a longer work week is necessary, it can be put into effect under existing law." However, that "if" implies a doubt as to the desirability of longer working hours, which undoubtedly will be required as mobilization is stepped up and more men enter the armed services. The pinch of manpower shortages is already beginning to be felt and will be intensified in the near future. The new Director of Mobilization, Charles E. Wilson, said last week that a 44-hour work week would speed production, and President Truman warned the public in his recent broadcast that longer hours of work would be necessary to reach war production goals.

Although Mr. Tobin raised no objection to longer working hours per se, "if necessary," retention in the wage-hour law of the provision for time-and-a-half rates of pay for overtime would lead to an increase in average wage costs per unit of output. For the sake of avoiding further inflation the overtime pay provisions of existing law should be suspended during the emergency.

Mr. Griffis' Post

It is not the best of appointments that the President has made in filling the vacant embassy in Madrid. Stanton Griffis does not share the views of Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson that an American Ambassador should take abroad with him the ideals of his country and guide his conduct accordingly. This was shown by his mission to Peron's Argentina. When he got back, the influence of his environment was still strong upon him, and in a speech in New York he spoke almost as an apologist for Peron. And the consequent criticism left him unmoved. He feels he owes no duty to the State Department to clear his speeches, as other representatives do, and, presumably, he will take this independence with him to Franco's capital.

Sounding off of this nature is more than evidence of indiscipline in our diplomacy. It makes for confusion and misunderstanding and misgivings abroad about our leadership. Mr. Griffis may feel he has earned his independence by his liberal gifts to the Democratic Party chest, and the President may feel that because of this, Mr. Griffis deserves indulgence. Neither case, of course, has any merit; diplomacy is a service which requires a pattern of conformity. It is intolerable in times like these to let our representatives shoot off their own heads and upset abroad an apple cart which has been erected with great care and trouble at home.

Otherwise Mr. Griffis has generally done well in his various posts in diplomacy. He did a capital job for the United Nations and the Arab refugees. He has never had such a responsible and delicate role as he has just been given. This newspaper is glad to see ambassadorial relations restored, but the significance of the post warranted more care in the selection of the Ambassador. Madrid is a hot spot as well as an embassy, the capital of a country the true conditions of which are hidden behind a dictatorship—a dictatorship which, from an American point of view, is unpretty. The Ambassador there needs discretion and fidelity to policy, as well as the vigor that Mr. Griffis will undoubtedly display.

Peace: A Seller's Market

The purport of the note dispatched last week by the Department of State to the Soviet government is just about as clear as diplomatic language permits. Even with the clock so close to the apocalyptic hour, the note acknowledges a willingness, even an eagerness, to turn back the hands. All that is asked is some evidence of good faith by the Russians, some trustworthy indication that they, too, desire a means of escape from the crisis into which the world has been plunged. But, considering the course of Soviet conduct from the end of the war till now, and the unconcealed aims of the Communist revolution, it is asking a great deal. And this, of course, explains the gloomy and pessimistic tone taken by Secretary Acheson at his pre-Christmas press conference and in his discussions in camera at the Capitol with certain Senators.

The Soviet note of November 3—to which the American note, prepared after consultation with the French and British, was in effect a reply—had proposed another conference of the Foreign Ministers of the powers represented in the Potsdam agreement of 1945. The purpose of the conference, as outlined by the Kremlin, would be to discuss the provisions of the agreement which relate "to the demilitarization of Germany." Now the fact, of course, is that Germany has been thoroughly demilitarized everywhere except in the Soviet zone of occupation. There a large and formidable army has been assembled under the supervision of the Soviet military and has been equipped with such weapons of aggression as tanks and artillery, thus giving the lie to the Soviet pretense that this warlike host is really a police force, that its existence does not constitute a violation of the Potsdam agreement and that it is not an abiding threat to the peace of Europe and the world.

Apart from a few persons, mainly blind and willful pacifists or incorrigible fellow travelers, no one believes that the Kremlin would be willing to demobilize this east German army in return for a promise by the Western powers to abandon their belated plans for the rearmament of Western Germany. Besides, the Neo-Naziesque militarism of Soviet Germany, is merely one of various evidences of the Kremlin's determination to bring the entire world within the orbit of its power. Therefore, with perfect reasonableness and propriety, the American note suggested that > any discussions should include equally [with the questions of Germany and Austria] the principal problems whose solution would permit a real and lasting improvement in the relations between the Soviet Union and the United States, Great Britain and France, and the elimination of the cause of present international tensions throughout the world.

The sad truth is that permanent settlements of disputes and conflicts with Soviet Russia are out of the question. The reasons are to be found in Communist doctrine; and it is important to remember that the Soviet imperialists do not think in nineteenth century terms of nationalism, but in those of the international class struggle which inevitably takes on the character of an international civil war. Short-term arrangements are, however, quite possible whenever the Soviet government finds them expedient. Just as Communist economic doctrine permits such temporary compromises with capitalism as Lenin's New Economic Policy, so in the international field such temporary retreats from the goal of world revolution as Stalin's program of "socialism in one country" are also possible. But in each of these cases the policy was determined by internal exigencies and by the relative weakness of Soviet Russia in relation to the non-Communist world.

Thus it is unlikely that the Kremlin in the present awareness of its power is in a mood to make any settlement that would curtail the initiative it now possesses. Yet the Kremlin is like other governments in at least one point: that if it can gain its purposes without war—and hence without risk of defeat—it would prefer to do so. It is probable, therefore, that short-term pacific arrangements with the Kremlin may still be made—at a price. Just what the price might be, is hard to say; but it would surely be a stiff one. It might include, for example, the surrender of the non-Soviet sectors of Berlin. It would almost certainly include an arrangement concerning Japan, following the pattern of the Potsdam agreement, and designed, of course, to permit Soviet Russia to pursue in Japan much the same course it has pursued in Germany.

To accept such arrangements as the Russians are likely to propose would, then, involve the surrender of all that the United States has sought to accomplish in the international field. It would be an abandonment of our allies abroad to their fate; and it would certainly extinguish the last hope among the potential allies beyond the Iron Curtain. Nevertheless, such arrangements would fully accord with the doctrine of those who now propose a general concentration of American power upon the defense of this hemisphere.

Orthodox Orange Juice

YOU FIND in your mail an appeal to join a movement to promote the drinking of orange juice at the end of breakfast instead of at the beginning. Ah, at last public interest in your favorite cause!

For years now you have fought this fight singlehanded. You have endured the dark, suspicious looks of waiters and waitresses, who were outraged by your attempts to upset the gastronomical status quo. Often you have yielded to their obstinacy to avoid scenes.

But now you have group support! What's more no mention is made of dues.

You grab your pen to sign the enrollment card . . . But—er wait! Didn't you firmly resolve never, never to sign any card or petition, never to join or sponsor anything—not even a band of angels? . . . You'd better look at this thing again. In these times people have to be careful . . .

A scene flashes before you. A confused, cringing figure, you are testifying before a congressional committee. An inquisitor is shouting: "Isn't it true that you once signed up with an undercover group to revolutionize the drinking of breakfast orange juice?" . . . You guiltily nod your head.

MERCIFULLY, the scene fades. But it has left you shaken. You lay the pen down, study an accompanying newspaper clipping containing a long list of signees. The names are eminently respectable—Dr. Montague Brougham, an indisputable stuffed shirt if there ever was one; Miss Jennie May Barnacle, Col. Rossiter Clamm, Mrs. Huntington Rhinestone. Still—what good has association with the right names ever done other victims of investigations? It's the wrong names you're judged by.

You look further down the list. William K. Blink. Now who is HE? And wait—what's this? ETAOIN SHRDLU! In capitals! A foreign name if there ever was one! And so sinister sounding.

Again you see yourself testifying. "Is is not a fact," someone is shouting, "that you collaborated with this nefarious, foreign agent Etaoin Shrdlu in this so-called 'Citizens' Committee' to change the old established, American method of drinking orange juice?"

You shudder as the scene fades. Then you see yourself in a Government office seeking a job. Etaoin Shrdlu bobs up again! You next see yourself in an office in private industry. There's a report on you—and Etaoin Shrdlu! You're not regarded as a sound character. You see your landlord handing you a notice to vacate, your grocer refusing to sell you food.

Oh come now, you're being silly and hysterical, you tell yourself. This is a perfectly legitimate and respectable cause, this drinking of orange juice at the end of a meal. Didn't your physician order it? And isn't he right up in the AMA hierarchy? Besides you like your juice better that way.

WHAT'S MORE it's an old British custom. No wait—you'd better skip that. Socialist orange juice! That's what you've been drinking! Maybe you'd better be more careful now in public restaurants.

Well, anyway if Etaoin Shrdlu were a dangerous foreign agent he wouldn't join under that name. He'd sign up as Hiram Haycross or J. Abercrombie Brown. Besides—say wait! Why is Etaoin Shrdlu such a familiar sounding name? Where have you seen it? . . . Ah! now you remember! Why it's the classic compositors' mistake that occasionally gets into newspapers!

Now weren't you silly to get alarmed about nothing. Still—you can't tell who might join this movement later. It'll be impossible to check on the genealogy and connections of everyone who signs the cards. Remember what happened to Mrs. Rosenberg!

Oh, it's probably a good enough movement you tell yourself, but you'd better stay out of it. Something might come up some time and at the very least you'd be called a confused dogooder by the cliche set. Anyway there are too many organizations and meetings.

Yet—that's the only way people can ever get anything done. The Barons of Runnymede who started it all saw that. And how far have you gotten with your unilateral campaign on the orange juice issue?

You pick up the card, then put it down. Of course you're in full sympathy with the movement but you just aren't the crusading type. What are you then? . . . The play-it-safe type? Your lips instinctively curl.

Still one has to be realistic, face facts, use common sense these days. This is an unusual time, a critical time. We're fighting to defend . . . to defend . . . Well what? . . . Human freedom . . . of course.

Suddenly you grab the pen and write your name in bold, black letters.

Letters To The Editor

Communications must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communications can be returned.

"Throwing The Book"

Your December 23 editorial, "Throwing the Book," showed a lot of red faces among the stupid and duped not only in Maryland but up and down the land. It might serve also somewhat as a call to self-examination, if not as a "call to conscience" to the editorial and newsrooms of our newspapers—especially those which, while shrieking for freedom of the press in carrying out their self-imposed burdens of "getting at the facts," molding public opinion, etc., can, at the same time, pour out multipaged streams of banality serving only as carriers of excessive and unnecessary advertising.

Of course there are not many that stoop to downright fraud and dishonesty as seems to be the case in the false picture and conversation episode "contrived" in the Maryland case.

Will the citizens of the Maryland Free State be happy in their choice of their new representative in the Senate and his administrative assistant? What will their attitude toward their constituency be? What, for that matter, will be their mutual feeling toward each other, in their daily associations in the coming six years, now that they have "won"?

What action will the Senate take in this case or to prevent such shenanigans in the future? The primal motive of survival might suggest the need of defensive measures, for who can say but that there may be yet other victims?

Ambassador Cowen

Reports reaching the Philippines to the effect that United States Ambassador Myron Cowen would be replaced have done nothing but to dismay the great majority of Filipinos.

The general feeling here is that by removing Mr. Cowen from his Philippine post, Washington would be depriving the United States Embassy in Manila of an American official who is the best informed by far on the Philippine situation.

This is more lamentable because of the fact that at a time when the United States Government owes it to the Filipino people that the financial aid outlined in the Bell report should go direct to the people and not to the pockets of corrupt public officials, the United States Government would be removing the only American official who can be expected to exercise that supervision efficiently and with understanding.

Mr. Cowen not only has endeared himself to Filipinos and Americans alike, but also has indicated his determination to have the Quirino administration clean house in accordance with the Bell mission recommendations, a circumstance that has earned for him the unwarranted hostility of the top leaders of the administration.

As a matter of fact, it is held most probable here that any other United States Ambassador to the Philippines less familiar with local conditions than Mr. Cowen would fall easy prey to the corrupt clique running the present administration.

"Letter To A Soldier"

I want to take this time to praise the article written by the Rev. A. Powell Davies entitled "Letter to a Soldier in Korea." Dr. Davies should be sincerely commended for his deep understanding of what America must face today, and what our boys are fighting for in Korea.

In simple but decisive words, he has told the American people that in order to avoid this menace, which has openly destroyed the weak nations, we must and are slowly becoming awakened to the reality of the situation. Until now we have blindly attempted to avert such a catastrophe as we now face in Korea, but it has been a futile attempt.

With this in mind, we democratic nations must unite under all circumstances, face the true facts and first strive to avoid this threatening global war. Once this is done, then must we begin to establish our doctrine of democracy, but also with the realization that democratic ideals take a long time to form in countries which have never known what true democracy is and that it is futile to try to indoctrinate democracy on hungry and impoverished people with a shadow of dictatorship close behind.

Give us more articles like "Letter to a Soldier in Korea."

"Loyal" Opposition

It becomes appallingly clear that we Americans are being ill served by the Republican "loyal" opposition. Their latest formal attack on Secretary Acheson makes this devoted and patriotic American sound like a lonely voice in the wilderness.

It may be that our legislators reflect only their own deep-rooted antipathy to probity, courage and honor. If that be the case, we are facing the darkest period in our history. And if the Senators and Representatives are truly representative of the sentiments of the country, our opinion-makers, the press and radio, have done America a distinct disservice. Truly, in this tragic age, we have saddled ourselves with a troupe of Falstaffs without the redeeming features of the humor.

Mr. Hoover And The Loss Of Europe

May I, as one who has worked abroad for four of the past seven years as a newspaper correspondent, offer certain comments on the speech of Mr. Hoover?

Nobody, it seems to me, has sufficiently emphasized the moral aspects of the Hoover proposal. We live so far from Europe that it is an effort to imagine what they are thinking, even for those of us who have recently been there.

We cannot withold troops from western Europe and base our strategy on Mr. Hoover's "perimeter" without denouncing the Atlantic Treaty, which incidentally is now the law of the land. To do so would, I venture to predict, turn millions of Europeans into steely-hearted enemies of the United States, cause mass conversions to communism, and precipitate the fall of the Continent, perhaps not excepting Britain, without much fight. Just such despair after Munich caused Czechoslovakia to fall into Hitler's hands unresisting, to be the least difficult of the eastern countries for the occupiers, and to fall in turn into the hands of the Communists.

All this leaves to one side the moral consequences within America. The self-loathing, the paralyzing sense of guilt, the helpless frustration as the terrible process of setting up Peoples' Republics begins in Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Brussels, and Rome.

Mr. Hoover did not approve the Atlantic Treaty, and he may feel that he is already entitled to say "I told you so," but he ought not to advise us to do something which is illegal and seems to many of us wicked, without recognizing some of these consequenes. He seems to anticipate such criticism by accusing Europe of having let us down first. He says they are lagging in rearmament, lack the will to resist, and have not supported us in Korea. I say from observation that these statements are false and tendentious.

European rearmament looks slow chiefly because in the past few months the Russians have seemed to be ready to move against us soon, instead of in 1952 or 1953 as we once supposed. No European war minister has a worse record than Mr. Louis Johnson. Europeans put recovery ahead of rearmament, just as we did, and for the same reasons, but with the added reason that a rise in living standards was essential in the cold war. Internal communism was the great danger. Hence the Marshall Plan, which has been a great success, although Mr. Hoover opposed it.

European will to resist is certainly there. I speak of France, where I was stationed till last August, and of Britain. France wants another occupation rather less than we do, but until she is rearmed she will be tempted by the argument that there is some "neutral" solution to her awful strategic dilemma. The real problem of France is that she has lagged in capital development. Her industry is not capable rapidly of creating a great armed force. The Monnet Plan officials who have been responsible for her program of capital development are now in a most unhappy state as they see resources switched from power and heavy industrial construction to the production of the consumers' goods of an army—guns and uniforms and vehicles.

Mr. Hoover and some of his fellow citizens may suppose that the French industrial backwardness is a sign of inferior moral capacity, "lack of the will to work," or the infiltration of socialism. One doesn't have to go so far afield; France was occupied during the Second World War, when Britain, Germany, Russia and the United States made their great leaps forward in capital development. Today, in all her austerity, Britain is richer in everything that makes modern industrial society—everything, in fact, but food—than France.

I do not mean that there is not a morale problem in France. There is, but the way to solve it is not to hand down ultimatums like those Mr. Hoover proposes, but to do what the United States Administration has been doing—steadily urge, advise, "needle" and bargain for French compliance with realistic necessities. Only so can the questions of German rearmament and the participation of Spain be solved.

Mr. Hoover says his proposals are not "appeasement," and compares them unfavorably with Tehran and Yalta, and he also says Britain is "flirting" with appeasement of China. Tehran and Yalta did not turn over to Russia one tenth the territory Mr. Hoover now proposes to turn over to her without a fight.

Appeasement used to be semantically a good word; that is why it was put forward—in the columns of the Times of London, I believe—to cover Chamberlain's proposed line of surrender to German force and dynamism. It is now a negative word, and is used to smear. Hard as it is for democratic governments to do, it is likely that we will frequently have opportunities to make hard-boiled bargains with our enemies in the "not war, not peace" period ahead.

Some of these bargains will constitute admissions of defeat, temporary and partial, on our part. Such an admission was realistically made by the Soviet Union when the Berlin blockade proved a failure. The word appeasement ought not to apply to such bargains, which can offer opportunities to spread Titoist heresy in the enemy ranks, save the lives of innocent civilians, or give us access to strategic raw materials. Above all, they can gain time, which is what we so desperately need. I take it that Britain's wish to recognize the Chinese Communist government at the U. N. is inspired by such motives.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

A Steadfast People

A FEW weeks ago at a meeting in the Pentagon General Marshall spoke informally and off the record about some of the things that troubled him in our partial mobilization. His remarks have now been made available and they show him to be very much concerned with the question of popular support of military preparedness over a long period of time.

Lippmann

He told of a conversation he had had when he returned to the Pentagon in September. A high official there had asked him, "Do you consider that I am naive to say the American people has learned its lesson?" He had replied "I don't think you are naive. I just think you are incredibly naive, because when you come to this tension and it becomes a monotonous tension without all of the excitement that keeps booming up such tensions, the bottom will drop out, unless we have completely changed." Twice before, at the end of each world war, General Marshall had seen,—indeed he had himself been, as he put it, "bumped" by—frantic demobilization of the army, and it is not going to be easy to convince the old soldier that this could not happen again.

THE PROBLEM which General Marshall was facing exists in all free countries—how can the people be persuaded to prepare for war without being lashed perpetually into a fury of warlike excitement? The problem is special and acute in free countries which are surrounded by water. The British nations and the United States have never yet been willing to raise large standing armies except in time of war. Thus in Britain there is the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force but there is not a Royal Army.

Mr. Hoover's recent speech, however misinformed and badly reasoned its conclusions, stems from the same deep-seated prejudice and tradition of the free island peoples against large ground armies in time of peace. Mr. Hoover, who spoke some weeks after General Marshall's talk, confirmed dramatically the existence of the problem that worries General Marshall so much.

IF THE problem can be solved, the solution is, I believe, to be found in the Pentagon, the State Department, and the White House. It is not primarily and fundamentally a problem, as General Marshall seems to imply, of public relations and of mass psychology and all that sort of thing. The problem arises from the lack of a national doctrine defining the vital interests of this country and the method of their promotion and defense. The solution of the problem lies in the formulation of a national doctrine in the realm of grand strategy which the President and all his top officials really agree with,—and one which will stand the test of actual experience, be it in Korea, Formosa, or western Germany.

The problem of how to win sustained popular support for large armies is not soluble by a mere appeal to popular emotions—to the emotions of fear and hatred on the one hand, or of utopian and millennial hope on the other. For the long pull the minds of the people have to be won. The appeal has to be not to their viscera but to their brains, to their common sense and their sober judgment. If that is not done, if instead of persuasion, reason, evidence, and candor, the people get only pronunciamentos, hand-outs, ipse dixits, hot adjectives and stale platitudes on the issues of life and death, then their passions will have nothing solid to sustain them and nothing that is decisive to guide them. The result will be what we are suffering today, a violent oscillation of opinion between the extremes of appeasement and of provocation.

"FOR IF the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle." We need not deny that the issues have been as difficult as any that statesmen have ever faced. But even at that it cannot have been necessary that the trumpet should give such very uncertain sounds as it has given off during the year 1950.

The answer to the question which General Marshall has raised—will the people be steadfast—is that they certainly will not be if their responsible leaders are not steadfast. Popular opinion will remain highly unstable as long as the responsible leaders of the people are themselves so unstable, indeed so little the masters of their own decisions and even of their own private emotions.

Matter of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

The Acheson Case

NO experienced observer of Congress can any longer doubt that a major turning point is fast approaching. The mounting neurosis of the Senators and Representatives was all too clearly disclosed in the squalid circumstances of the Republican vote on Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson. If this mood is not immediately dispelled, an actual majority will be converted to the policy of scuttle-and-run of former President Herbert Hoover, or even to the abject program of surrender of Joseph P. Kennedy.

Unjust as this must seem to any one who knows his real record, the rapid retirement of Secretary Acheson is the only cure in sight. In the present circumstances, when the survival of this Nation and of freedom in the world hang upon the outcome, the misfortune of the individual cannot be considered. Nor is it defensible, when the stakes are so great, for any man to take the purely personal view that he "will not quit under fire."

Only one question thus remains to be answered, in the controversy about Acheson that rages in the White House and everywhere else in the Administration. This is the question, whether the President is right in repeatedly asserting that there is no use replacing Acheson, because any one who follows Acheson, and advocates the same policy will get into the same trouble. This is the final argument, the clincher, as it were, that Truman uses to answer the innumerable Democratic leaders and high officials who press for a change at the State Department.

THERE is a simple way to see the complete falseness of the President's argument. Imagine the political situation that would now exist if Truman had done everything that obviously needed to be done about foreign and defense policy in the last two crucial years.

By November, 1948, Soviet war preparations already visibly threatened world peace. But the President rejected the late James V. Forrestal's rearmament budget, brought in Louis A. Johnson, and made a hollow mockery of the whole Forrestal-Lovett program for Western strength, typified by the Atlantic Pact. Again, in September, 1949, the explosion of the Soviet atomic bomb obviously demanded most urgent consideration of measures to maintain a safe world power balance. But the President soothingly claimed that the Soviet bomb "changed nothing," while Johnson leaked the gross untruth that the evidence proved the Russians did not have the bomb after all.

By the spring of this year, National Security Council Directive No. 68 had been signed, and Secretary Acheson was talking about "total diplomacy." But the President was telling his press conference that the prospects for peace were "better than at any time since 1946," and promising further cuts in defense appropriations.

And on June 25, the Korean aggression made the real nature of the world emergency clear to the blindest eyes. But the President damped the instantaneous surge of national energy and will power by talking about "police actions," and refusing to consider anything beyond "gray mobilization."

IF THE President had shown real leadership, on the contrary, the country and the Congress would have been told, again and again, in clear plain language, about the national danger. The Congress would have been confronted with great measures for meeting this danger. Men like Senator Robert A. Taft and Senator Homer Capehart, to name two, would certainly have opposed these measures, pretending that the danger did not exist, as Senator Taft in fact did pretend.

Then, when Korea had proven the danger was real, the dominant election issue would have been the isolationists' refusal to deal with the threat of Soviet imperialism abroad, rather than imaginary "softness toward communism" at home. Without Truman's silly optimism and Louis Johnson's false "economy" to muddy the whole picture, the contrast would have been clean-cut, between those who had been for national defense and those who had been against it. And the isolationists would have been beaten.

PERHAPS the President's present passionate loyalty to Acheson derives in part from Truman's belated realization that the Secretary of State gave him the right advice after all. Apparently Acheson began to warn the President of the need for a different course as early as February, 1949, when he is said to have presented an important memorandum on the world picture. Certainly he had warned the unheeding President by last winter, when he sponsored National Security Council Directive No. 68, only to see it ignored. Indeed, it is curious that Acheson did not ask to be relieved of his duties, since his advice went for so little for so long.

Looking back over the record, there is no injustice in the demand that some one be punished for all the Truman Administration failures and follies of the last two years. The injustice lies in the fact that the chosen scapegoat is Secretary Acheson, who was the man most nearly right.

But there is no time, in the terrible onward rush of events, for the confused country to disentangle the comparative rightness of Secretary Acheson from the continuous bad judgment of President Truman and the dark guilt of Louis Johnson. The country must be brought to a new mood. The authority of the national leadership must be restored.

A great debate about the Nation's peril must replace the present poisoned bickering about personalities. And only Dean Acheson's resignation can accomplish these vital ends before disaster overtake us.

McCarthyism

By Marquis Childs

Undermining Free Society

TOWARD the end of the year now expiring certain incidents occurred which suggest a pattern of grim meaning for the future if they go unheeded. They are linked by the same threat of hate and fear deliberately exploited for political gain.

Childs

First, was the use of fraud and deception on a calculated and wholesale scale to defeat Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland. Tydings had been chairman of the Senate committee investigating charges of communism in the State Department and he was to be eliminated because he drew up a majority report rejecting the charges. A picture was faked showing Tydings talking to Earl Browder, former head of the Communist Party, and this faked picture was circulated throughout the State.

Second, was the plot to smear and destroy Mrs. Anna Rosenberg by false charges of communism. Mrs. Rosenberg's name was before the Senate for confirmation as Assistant Secretary of Defense in charge of mobilizing manpower. This plot was anti-Semitic in origin and intention, following the crooked logic of the Fascist-minded who say that all Communists are Jews and, therefore, all Jews are Communists.

Third, was the effort to drive Drew Pearson off the air and out of the press by the Communist smear. This last was the work of Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin. Significantly in the other two incidents McCarthy's name also figured.

WHAT McCarthyism means is, it seems to me, becoming increasingly clear. There should be no delusions about it on the part of anyone enjoying the privileges of a free society.

It happens to be true, that many of the values of that society have in the turmoil of the past 20 years been debased and even degraded. That is true particularly of the radio where commercialism has put news and opinion in competition with the show business. One result has been sensationalism and distortion of the news.

But this is not the same as an open attack on the faith and the freedoms on which our society is based. And that, in my opinion, is what McCarthyism adds up to.

At the base of our society is mutual trust in the fundamental good will of most Americans. That trust was shamefully abused by a few Communist conspirators, some of them naive dupes, others consciously doing the will of Moscow. That source of danger has been removed.

From a different angle McCarthyism similarly attacks this trust. The attack is being directed from behind the sanctions of a free society. Thus the statements made by members of Congress on the floor of the Senate or House are not subject to the laws of libel. A photograph carried in the free press is not detected as a fake even though it bears the label "composite."

SOME people appear to have been attracted to McCarthyism because they do not like what is happening in the world and they think that McCarthy will help to restore "the good old days" of the past. This is exactly the mistake that some Germans made about Hitler. They hated the Weimar Republic and everything it stood for and they looked to Hitler to help restore Prussianism. They soon were caught up in the tragedy of their error.

Senator McCarthy has been compared to the late Huey Long of Louisiana. This seems to me hardly a valid comparison. Long launched his meteoric career with a program for making over his own State. While it was utterly corrupt and cost many times what it should have cost, it did give the people of Louisiana new schools, new roads and so on.

The significant difference is that Senator McCarthy has never made a single constructive proposal. Beginning with his intervention in behalf of the German prisoners in the Malmedy massacre, which had as one result the driving of former Senator Raymond Baldwin of Connecticut out of the Senate, down to the present, McCarthyism has been a destroying force.

How far this force will go it is impossible to say. Our form of society is peculiarly defenseless in the face of such an attack.

After the November elections Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio is reported to have discussed with some of his close associates ways and means of shutting down or restricting "the McCarthy one-man show." It is certainly a problem for the Republican Party.

But it is far larger than that in its scope. It is a problem for everyone who values freedom of choice in a free society. In the heat and passion of political partisanship it may not be apparent what is really at stake. And when it is finally realized, the values on which our society rests may be undermined. It may be too late.

CIO Calls Truman Price Plan 'Shoddy Christmas Present'

The CIO assailed President Truman's voluntary price control program yesterday as "cruelly deceptive" and said his call for a price rollback to December 1 was a "shoddy Christmas present" to the Nation.

Chairman Emil Rieve of the CIO Economic Committee said in a statement that price standards set by the rollback order are "poorly drawn" and "actually invite price increases" on many items.

Rieve said the time has passed for attempts at "piecemeal stabilization." The Economic Stabilization Agency's pricing standards, he said, "will not roll back the cost of living, which is already at a new postwar peak. They will not even stop living costs from spiralling still further."

"Any appeal for 'voluntary' price controls is a well-meaning but empty exhortation," Rieve said. "After our long and sordid World War II experience, have we not learned that price rules without enforcement powers and penalties are futile?"

He noted that the CIO is already on record with full support for a stabilization program which is "fair and equitable." But he added that the Defense Production Act must be amended so that "real—not phony" price controls can be enforced.

"If the economy is to be stabilized," Rieve said, "it can no longer be done piecemeal. It just doesn't make sense to freeze the earnings of workers in a few selected industries, when the prices of the products of only these particular industries become frozen."

Greeks Order U. S.-Made Rain

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 27 (AP).—An American rainmaking firm has been engaged to attempt to ease the critical water situation in Athen, Greece.

Clouds in the vicinity of the Marathon Dam, 20 miles north of the city, will be seeded both from the air and from the ground. Alvin Sturrs, 43-year-old pilot and meteorologist, has gone to Athens to direct the program, which is being carried out under auspices of the Economic Cooperation Administration.

Charles S. Barnes, president of the Precipitation Control Co., here, announced today that the program would start in about six weeks after all equipment is installed. Equipment all be flown there.

Flames Destroy Block Of Taunton Industries

TAUNTON, Mass., Dec. 27 (U.P.).—A general-alarm fire destroyed an industrial block and drove 50 persons from nearby homes into zero weather early today. It was believed loss might total nearly $500,000.

The blaze broke out in the Brown Equipment & Manufacturing Co., plant where trailer trucks and parts are made and spread to the J. C. Murray Co., and the Gregg Silver Co., in the same three-story brick building.

Wounded From Korea To See Show Tonight

A Christmas entertainment show will be held tonight at 7 for about 250 wounded men from Korea at the Walter Reed Hospital in the Red Cross Auditorium.

The entertainment will be provided from the Old New Orleans supper club and restaurant. Included in the show will be several dance and singing teams with Frank Coviello and his orchestra. In addition, a beauty contest and fashion show will be presented by 20 local girls.

The Oxford Grey Flannel of classic tradition

MADE FOR US BY LEBOW

THE GENTLEMANLY CHARACTER of this suit will be recognized at once by men who aim for a certain well-bred "understatement" in their attire. They will approve the unpadded, natural shoulders and the unaccented waistline; the trousers which are cut without pleats—the smart center vent, pockets with flaps and the restrained tone of modesty and good taste which generally prevails.

College and career men will give this indispensable suit full marks. It is meticulously tailored by Lebow for accurate fit and shapeliness, in a dark grey oxford flannel that is supple and silky to the touch, but remarkably sturdy in service. The three-button, single-breasted model, adopted by so many well-dressed gentlemen, is correct for all occasions.

Sabath Sets Record In Congress Service

By the United Press

Representative Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.), 84-year-old "dean" of the House of Representatives, will set a new record today for continuous service in Congress.

Sabath, who has served under eight Presidents starting with Theodore Roosevelt, will pass the mark set by former Senator Justin S. Morrill of Vermont, who died in 1898.

Morrill's combined, uninterrupted service in the House and Senate covered 43 years, nine months and 24 days. Sabath, who entered Congress March 4, 1907, surpasses Morrill's record today.

Former House Speaker Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois served 23 full terms in the House but they were not continuous. He was absent during the 52d and 63d Congresses.

Sabath's career almost might have been taken from the pages of Horatio Alger, author of the "rags-to-riches" ideal of American opportunity. He came to the United States from Zabori, in what is now Czechoslovakia, a penniless immigrant hoping to get enough money to buy a farm.

But he got into American politics and later went to Congress where he became a powerful and colorful figure. As chairman of the House Rules Committee, he has an important voice in deciding the order in which legislation flows to the House floor.

Tax Expansion Plan Due Soon From Truman

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Any idea President Truman would not seek new taxes to support the Nation's military expansion was dispelled yesterday by two sources.

An important Government official, who would not be quoted by name, said the President would submit to Congress within a few weeks his request for new Government revenues.

White House Press Secretary Joseph Short told reporters Mr. Truman would make known "his views and recommendations on the new taxes necessary for the defense program at an appropriate time."

Short's statement amplified a remark he made Tuesday night, after a Blair House dinner, that he doubted any new taxes would be requested in January. In some quarters his remark was interpreted as an indication that a request for new and higher taxes would be postponed indefinitely.

"It is poistively certain," Short said yesterday, "that a much broader and expanded tax program will be necessary to meet the heavy costs of the defense program in the calendar year 1951 and subsequently."

The high Administration leader who requested anonymity said representatives of the Administration and congressional tax leaders will begin talking over tax matters soon after Congress convenes January 3.

Before Short issued his amplifying statement yesterday morning, Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) earlier said he was disturbed by what the presidential secretary had said Tuesday night. Kem said the American people were faced with a disagreeable choice between higher taxes and less nondefense spending, or further inflation and serious economic disturbances.

Grain-Fed Lambs Reach All-Time Record Price

CHICAGO, Dec. 27 (A.P.).—Grain-fed lambs pushed to new all-time record price of $32.50 a hundred pounds today in an active livestock trade. Beef steers also edged their top quality up to make a new high mark since last January.

The previous record for fed lambs was $32.25, set March 31, 1949, and matched Tuesday. The sheep market generally was steady to strong. In the cattle trade, the day's top price was $39.50. Most hogs were 50 cents a hundredweight lower, in reverse of Tuesday's storm performance. Receipts ran about 20 percent higher than expected.

Spring! Spring!

LEWISTOWN, Mont., Dec. 27 (U.P.). — Joe Sagehen, Indian, breezed into Lewistown and bought his squaw open-toed snakeskin shoes. "No more winter moccasins," he said. "First time I've ever seen jack-rabbits turning brown before St. Patrick's Day."

Two More Named To History Group On Truman's Idea

President Truman yesterday named two members of the National Historical Publications Commission to assist in carrying out the new functions given the commission by Congress last September.

The new members are George M. Elsey, administrative assistant to the President, and Richard H. Shyrock, history professor at Johns Hopkins Institute, Baltimore. Both will serve without salary and will retain their present employment.

Functions of the commission were broadened at the suggestion of Mr. Truman after the first of a projected 52-volume series of Thomas Jefferson's writings was issued last May. Speaking at the Library of Congress May 17, the President said there was "a need to collect and publish the writings of the men and women who have made major contributions to the development of our democracy." He said he alluded not to the writings of political figures alone, but also to those of great figures in all the arts, sciences, and professions.

Parley on New Guinea Closes in Deadlock

THE HAGUE, Dec. 27 (A.P.).—Holland and Indonesia ended their conference on the future status of West New Guinea today without agreement on who is to rule that rich territory.

The failure to agree left West New Guinea under Dutch rule, but the Indonesians said such status was without their approval. Indonesia has demanded that the territory, which they call West Irian, be incorporated into the year-old Indonesian Republic. The Indonesians rejected a compromise proposing joint Dutch-Indonesian rule.

Producer Tom Only Demands: Trust Me

By Richard L. Coe

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE: "Thomas Hammond Presents" introduces a new line to the Nation's theater programs, and the three words are starting a Nation-wide tour at the Gayety, where Edward Arnold is the fortnight's star . . . Hammond, an apple-cheeked but solid citizen of Washington State, is a mere 27-ish who's already gone down the drain to the tune of $173,000 for Alfred Drake's ill-fated "The Liar." . . . But Hammond turned every cent of that loss into experience to go on, and he's learned a fortune . . . Didn't know anything about the theater when he graduated from high school, but visiting a writer-brother in Hollywood, he caught the bug . . . Got started as an usher at Grauman's Chinese, worked up to assistant to a producer at Metro after a stint in the Navy . . . When he decided to assert himself by setting up Broadway shop . . . Unlike the days when the Brothers Shubert came out of Syracuse, this is harder to do, since plays cost so much more to launch . . . Producers now have to deal with angel's money; individuals just don't have that kind of cash . . . Tom, serious and sturdy, has been getting people to trust him, and with a modest production cost and an established star thinks the "Apple" tour should repay his investors . . . Took him six months to get over the nervous reactions of "The Liar" flop, but he's bounced back the way an ambitious producer should . . . "This is the sort of business," he says, "in which you either dive in and get wet or you just don't have any part of it. You can learn only from experience and I've gotten a lot of that. Arnold's a great person to work with and my investors have obeyed my one request: trust me. They go to rehearsals, visit backstage, but have no voice in either the play, casting or production." . . . While Hammond's age seems exceptional, it's really not. The Shuberts, Al Erlanger, A. H. Woods and Florenz Ziegfeld all started "presenting" at a young age and experience propelled them into lifelong careers . . . Talking with Hammond, you're pleased to discover he sees the untapped potential of road audiences; he's insisted on a $3.60 top for "Apple," which is a lot smarter than the $4.20 his elders have been unsuccessfully urging on him.

BARBARA REINWALD, 4418 14th st. nw., won first place in the Metropolitan's pre-Christmas show for a Lionel electric train set . . . She had to say "Why I would like to win." . . . Here's what she wrote: " . . . because my little brother has just come home from the hospital because he had polio and I think it would be a very nice get-well and Christmas present." . . . So Barbara's brother got a mighty nice gift from his sister and, after five weeks in the hospital, he's probably going to be able to walk again, reports his mother.

GLORIA SWANSON and Jose Ferrer got some of the nicest New York notices of the season in their revival of "Twentieth Century."

SEES HIM: Josephine Hull whose reactions at seeing Jimmy Stewart's "Harvey" makes Keith's current comedy one of the year's merriest

. . . Brooks Atkinson found it "vastly enjoyable," with Miss Swanson (making a risky return to Broadway after one previous and feeble effort) "playing with the relish and flavor of a good trouper having an uncommonly fine time." . . . Howard Barnes, in the Herald-Trib, called it "a jubilant revival," the "Sunset Boulevard" star "matching the more theatrically experienced Ferrer in every scene, a demonstration of soaring talent." . . . These reviews suggest the ANTA Playhouse revival will be transferred after its two-week run to the Fulton for a full-blown engagement.

CHARLOTTE GREENWOOD is another oldtimer whose Christmas was brightened by raves in the papers, just as we forecast "Out of This World" would bring her; evidently Charlotte is once more a toast of the town . . . The Greenwood-Martin Broones Christmas greeting this year, by the way, was a recording of two of his songs, sung by Doris Day, "David's Psalm" and "The Everlasting Arms." . . . Bet Mrs. George Marshall, whom you know as Corinne Griffith, is pleased about the hit of her old pal Charlotte.

GEORGE THORNTON is an oldtimer who'll be making good a 10-year-old promise this very morning when he plays in "The King of the Golden River," with the Clare Tree Major Children's Theater of New York at the Hotel Washington . . . George is a dwarf and one Christmas here he played one of the little men in "Rip Van Winkle"; while autographing programs for youngsters, he promised to come back the next Christmas in "The King of the Golden River." . . . The play was given, but Thornton couldn't act in it; he'd had a paralytic stroke which kept him in hospital six months. . . . That was 10 years ago, and he's since put aside his chicken farm retirement idea and will be back in "The King of the Golden River," just as he promised the kids, who by now must be about to have kids of their own.

LISA GARDINER will narrate Friday afternoon's "Hansel and Gretel," when the Washington School of the Ballet and the National Symphony present this special afternoon program at Constitution Hall; there'll be more than 100 youngsters in the cast and "real scenery," promises Miss Gardiner, designed for the trick platform by Jack Montgomery Riddell.

IONIA ZELENKA was to have been playing leads at Arena Stage, but instead she's produced an eight-pound girl . . . Jim Lithgow, local actor, visiting old haunts from NY, where he's gotten a toehold in TV acting . . . Arthur S. Kany, drama reviewer of the Dayton (Ohio) Herald, visiting his AP picture-editing son. . . . Connie B. Gay expecting the Grand Old Opry gang to arrive by air Sunday morning for their big New Year's Eve show at the Armory; "no reservations," says Connie. "There'll be 5000 seats on sale at the Armory that night for three bucks a throw." . . . Matt Windsor getting ready to reopen the Club Cairo, 1615 Q, which he did last night.

Hoff and Davis Put on Reserve Branch Boards

By S. Oliver Goodman

Two new branch directors have been appointed by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, it was announced here yesterday.

Charles W. Hoff has been named to the board of the Baltimore branch and Archie K. Davis has been placed on the board of the Charlotte branch.

Hoff, president of the Union Trust Co. of Maryland, succeeds W. Bladen Lowndes whose term expires December 31. Davis, vice president of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. of Winston-Salem, N. C., succeeds N. S. Calhoun.

Both new directors will take office on January 2 and will serve three-year terms.

NAMED TO BOARD: Ernest E. Norris of Washington, president of the Southern Railway System, has been elected a board member of the National Industrial Conference Board, Inc., for a one-year term. The NICB, founded in 1916, is an independent, nonprofit organization which gathers, tests, distributes and explains facts essential to the establishment of management, labor, governmental and economic policies.

PLYMOUTH PREVIEW: The 1951 line of Plymouth cars was unveiled yesterday at the Statler Hotel here in a preview for area dealers and press and radio-TV representatives. A. B. Dowd, Plymouth merchandising manager, announced that the new models will go on display publicly on January 13. To assist in identifying the various models, Plymouth this year has established three distinct series: the Concord, the Cambridge and the Cranbrook. Redesigned inside and outside, the models have many mechanical improvements which will be revealed next month.

Dowd

HECHT DIVIDENDS: Directors of The Hecht Co. yesterday declared regular quarterly dividends of 40 cents a common share and 93¾ cents a share on the cumulative preferred stock, both payable January 31 to stock of record January 8.

FORMER LEGISLATOR: Milton R. Morgan, newly-elected executive vice president of the Arlington Trust Co., served six terms in the Virginia General Assembly. During two terms, he was chairman of the House Committee on Insurance and Banking. He was appointed State commissioner of banking in 1939, which post he will resign at the end of this year to take over the Arlington position. Morgan began his banking career with the State Bank of Charlotte County shortly after 1900. From 1936-37, he was president of the Virginia Bankers Association. He currently is president of the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks.

Morgan

GAS DIVIDENDS: Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday declared regular quarterly dividends as follows: 37½ cents a common share; $1.12½ on cumulative convertible preferred, and $1.06¼ on cumulative preferred. The dividends on the senior issues are payable February 10 to stock of record January 25, while the common dividend is payable February 1 to stock of record January 15.

ODD LOTS: Business failures increased to 174 in week ended December 21, compared with 150 in preceding week, Dun & Bradstreet reported . . . Food Fair Stores, Inc., Philadelphia, registered plans with SEC to sell 80,000 shares of accumulative preferred stock . . . Robert T. Keller, works manager of the Chrysler Tank Arsenal during the last war, has been named general manager of the new Chrysler Delaware Tank Plant . . . Remington Rand, Inc., and Japanese business interests have formed a manufacturing and distributing organization in Japan . . . Schenley Industries, Inc., has ordered a price freeze on all its products, effective immediately.

EARNINGS: Beatrice Foods Co. reported net income of $2,645,745 or $2.45 a common share for the nine months ended November 30, compared with $3,086,201 or $2.87 a share in the same 1949 period. Other earnings statements:

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THAT WAS A pretty fair pitch Happy Chandler cut loose at the major league club owners the other day, and it could help him to save his job at a time when they are seriously thinking of handing him a 100 percent salary cut.

Into their laps he tossed the equivalent of a certified check for $7,370,000 representing the fruits of his negotiations with a razor blade company for the radio and television rights of the next six World Series. The assumption is that baseball owners are not insensitive to money in such a large amount.

POVICH

It was a well-timed stroke by Chandler to impress the on-the-fence owners who are neither in his camp or solidly against him, with his efficacy as their high commissioner. Obviously he was able to rally behind him in his stress with his employers, the same sponsors who in previous years had found him friendly to deal with.

Even as a partially-repudiated commissioner who was almost voted completely out of office two weeks ago, Chandler retained the authority to negotiate radio and video contracts for the big leagues, and he has put it to whopping use in his own behalf.

SUCH INTRANSIGEANT foes of Chandler as Fred Saigh of the Cardinals and Del Webb of the Yankees are not calculated to undergo any change of heart despite the big deal that Chandler arranged, but in other directions he probably found new friends. It is significant that Charles Comiskey of the White Sox, who cast an anti-Chandler vote at St. Petersburg, praised him for his television deal.

Saigh remains unappeased in his hunt for Chandler's scalp and pointed out that he is unimpressed by the big figures. "Television is still in its infancy, and tying us up to a six-year contract might not have been a good deal," said Saigh. But his opposition is no greater a worry to Chandler than previously, because the commissioner long has recognized Saigh as an implacable enemy.

When Chandler took over his job from the late Judge Landis in 1945, the World Series and All-Star game broadcasting rights were being knocked down to the radio sponsors for a flat $100,000. There was no television, of course. Chandler promoted baseball's take to $175,000 from radio, $800,000 from television within four years and is proud of that feat.

CHANDLER COULDN'T please all of the club owners even when he was able to lift the television revenues from $200,000 in 1949 to $800,000 in 1950. To most, that latter figure was positively thrilling, but even during the last World Series it was heard that while Chandler was upping the price to the razor blade people to 800 grand, an automobile firm had ready an offer of a cool million.

The fecundity of television is such that in the light of the millions of home sets that will be produced before the end of the current six-year contract, Chandler's price to the sponsors may, indeed, have been cheap. But there will always be a doubt as to how much the sponsor traffic can bear, and meanwhile Chandler has gotten enough dough in to relieve the owners of most of their worries.

The $7,350,000 will take care of all the owners' player-pension-fund worries, and more. They are not only being relieved of a yearly assessment of about $15,000 for the pension fund, but will have a nice melon to cut up otherwise. Chandler didn't invent television, of course, but he is putting that by-product of the game to excellent use for the club owners.

THE PRO-CHANDLER forces, headed by Warren Giles of the Cincinnati Reds in the National League, and Clark Griffith in the American League, now have new fodder for their campaign to get Chandler re-elected. Money in the bank has always been a persuasive argument and they will use it to the utmost to swing a valuable vote or two the commissioner's way.

Chandler will learn his fate at the February 3 meeting in New York. Since he was denied a renewal of his contract two weeks ago, when the opposition which needed only five votes to unseat him polled seven, the reaction has been in Chandler's favor. His position has improved from hopeless to good, and the more spirited Chandler backers now declare "He's in."

If the voting is in his favor on February 3, it will not be because Chandler himself was idle. As an old election-hardened Kentucky politico he learned how to use patronage. With more than seven million dollars of a razor-blade firm's money to work with, he went out and made new friends, no doubt. It could, indeed, get him re-elected by a close shave.

Bears Place 3 Men on All-Pro Club Picked by AP

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP).—Three members of the Chicago Bears—Quarterback Johnny Lujack, Tackle George Connor and Guard Dick Barwegan—have been selected for the Associated Press 1950 All-Pro football team announced today.

Four other players in the National Conference of the National Football League are on the first team. They are Ends Tom Fears of the Los Angeles Rams and Dan Edwards of the New York Yanks, Guard Joe Signaigo of the Yanks and Doak Walker of the Detroit Lions.

The American Conference of the league gained four places—Center Charley (Chuck) Dednarik of the Philadelphia Eagles, Tackle Arnie Weinmeister of the New York Giants and Backs Joe Geri of the Pittsburgh Steelers and Marion Motley of the Cleveland Browns.

B	Geri	Steelers	5.10	185	Georgia
B	Motley	Browns	6- 1	238	Nevada

SECOND TEAM

Ends—Speedie, Browns, and Box, Lions.
Tackles—Huffman, Rams, and Reinhard, Rams.
Guards—Bray, Bears, and Ramsey, Cardinals.
Center—Tonnemaker, Packers.
Backs — Waterfield, Rams; Grimes, Packers; Strzykalski, 49ers; and Hoerner, Rams.

Repeaters from the 1949 team are Weinmeister, who played with the New York Yankees, and Barwegan, former member of the Baltimore Colts. Barwegan also made the All-Pro team in 1948, as did Motley.

The first team includes four former All-America men in Connor and Lujack of Notre Dame, Bednarik of Penn and Walker of Southern Methodist.

Lone Washington Redskin to receive as much as honorable mention was Tackle Lauri Niemi. Two Baltimore Colts were in his category, Back Billy Stone and End Paul Salata.

The All-Pro members were voted by Associated Press sports writers in 11 National League cities. Fears, Walker, Geri and Motley were unanimous choices in that they drew first place votes in every city in which they played.

Fears set a new NFL record by catching 84 passes for the Rams. Walker is the only freshman to make the first team which automatically makes him the pro rookie of the year. He led the scores by tallying 128 points for the Lions.

Wee Willie Misses Tie By Losing Photo in 8th

From Wire Dispatches

Only a losing photo decision in the eighth race at Fair Grounds kept Jockey Willie Shoemaker from tying Jockey Joe Culmone for the Nation's riding leadership yesterday.

The little Texan had a hot hand at the New Orleans track, riding four winners. Culmone wasn't exactly idle himself, booting home three.

Culmone's total for the year shot to 378; Shoemaker's is 377.

In that eighth at Fair Grounds, Shoemaker, aboard Tootsie Mc-Cabe, was nosed out at the wire by Jockey Hal Keene aboard Mescara. Keene, incidentally, is the third leading rider with 266 winners.

How They Stand:

	Mounts.	1st.	2d.	3d.
Culmone	1644	378	279	211
Shoemaker	1600	377	258	223
Miller (1906)	1384	333	300	199

10 Under Miller's Record

Earlier, Shoemaker got home with Carters Oats ($3.60), Some Friend ($8.40), Bigdome ($8.40) and in the feature race, Frost Bitten ($5.20).

Cocky Culmone, 19-year-old Sicilian, won aboard Swan Dive $9.50), Seventy-Seven ($20.10) and Respingo ($5.70).

The two eager jockeys have just four days left in their personal race that may be decided in photos on Sunday, December 31.

Shoemaker plans definitely to fly to Agua Caliente, Mexico, for the Sunday card there in an effort to top Culmone.

Culmone, who isn't anxious to fly, previously said if his margin isn't decisive by Saturday night, he will take a place to Havana and ride there Sunday.

Shoemaker Plans Full Slate Next Four Days

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 27 (AP).—Harry Silbert, agent for Jockey Willie Shoemaker, said tonight that he has "six or seven mounts" scheduled for Shoemaker at the Fair Grounds tomorrow.

"And I believe I have a full card for both Friday and Saturday (eight mounts each day)," Silbert said.

The agent added that Shoemaker will leave here after Saturday's racing and fly to Agua Caliente, Mexico, to ride Sunday in an attempt to overtake Jockey Joe Culmone.

Silbert said was trying to get a full card of mounts for Shoemaker Sunday.

Lakers Rally, Win, 81-63, Over Baltimore

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 27 (AP).—A third quarter surge broke open a tight defensive game and sent the Minneapolis Lakers away to an 81-63 victory over Baltimore in a National Basketball Association game tonight.

After the Lakers led 22-20 at the half, they came back to outscore the visitors 12 points to 2 in the first 4 minutes of the third period. Then the Lakers coasted to their ninth victory in their last 13 games.

Lake scoring was split among all nine players, George Mikan got 19 and Vern Mikkelson 17.

Knicks Knock Philly Out of Lead, 79-74

HERSHEY, Pa., Dec. 27 (AP).—The New York Knickerbockers wiped out a 13-point third-quarter deficit tonight to beat the Philadelphia Warriors for the third time in five days, 79-74.

The setback bumped the Warriors out of first place in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association. The idle Boston Celtics moved ahead of them.

3000 Overflow Funeral Rites For Sonny Boy West Here

Alfred (Sonny Boy) West, 20, Washington's ranking lightweight boxer, was laid to rest here yesterday after an hour and a half funeral service, attended by 500 relatives, friends and figures of the ring world.

Five hundred more persons were jammed into the first floor of the Friendship Baptist Church, 1st and H sts., sw., and an estimated 2000 milled in the streets. They heard the services over several loudspeakers.

Among boxing figures who spoke were Harry Markson, general manager of Madison Square Garden, and Col. Harvey L. Miller, chairman of the D. C. Boxing Commission.

Miller said, "The sport of boxing offers a great challenge. The greater the challenge the greater the men accepting it. Sonny Boy West was a great man . . .

He added, "He need not have died in vain if boxing's new experiment with the head harness proves successful and saves lives."

Introduction of speakers was made by Washington's veteran ring announcer, Jimmy Lake.

Services were conducted by Rev. Benjamin H. Whiting, pastor of Friendship Baptist Church. Interment was in Lincoln Memorial Cemetery. The funeral procession comprised about 60 automobiles.

Pallbearers were Elkins Brothers, Julian Keene, Jimmy Cooper, Marshall Clayton, all local boxers, Billy Banks, a boxing manager, and Johnny Sullivan, one of West's handlers, last Wednesday when he suffered his fatal ring injury in a bout with Percy Bassett in St. Nicholas Arena, New York.

Rev J. S. Swann of Berryville, Va., read the Scriptures. Rev C. C. Scott, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church, and Rev. R. P. Gainey, pastor of Corinthian Church, also participated in the services.

A mixed choir of 40 voices and soloists Preston Ashton and Vivian Harrison sang.

Sonny Boy's survivors are Mr. and Mrs. James F. West, his parents, Mrs. Jessie West, his wife, Sharon, his two-year-old daughter, Robert, Carlton and James, his brothers, Norma, Dorothy and Ardell, his sisters and Frank West, his grandfather, all of Washington.

3 Theaters Collect For West's Family

Collections for the benefit of Sonny Boy West's family will be held in the Republic Theatre, 11:30, Friday; the Howard Theatre at its Midnight Show, Saturday, and the Lincoln at its New Year's Eve show Sunday.

Cherry Point Marine Wants to Help a Bit

(The following letter was received by The Washington Post yesterday.)

Cherry Point, N. C.,
26 Dec., 1950.

Dear Sirs:

Its not much but it may help a bit at a time like this.

I would appreciate your seeing Sonny Boy West's family gets this $2. Maybe for a belated Christmas present for his little girl.

When we think we have it tough, it's a tragedy such as West's death that makes us wonder why we always gripe over so many incidental things, when actually we're damn well off!

(Signed) A MARINE.

Nardiello Cautious

Flood TKOs Diamond in 8

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP).—Jimmy Flood slugged his way to a technical knockout over Artie Diamond tonight when Dr. Vincent Nardiello stopped the sensational brawl at the end of the eighth round because of Diamond's badly cut right eye. Flood weighed 162½, Diamond 160.

Nardiello, the New York State Athletic Commission physician said he ended the brawl because Diamond's seconds were unable to stop the flow of blood.

Diamond floundered in the eighth and Nariello feared a possible serious injury.

The fight, a scheduled 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena went as an eighth round technical knockout.

Diamond was ahead on points when the head to head battle was stopped. Judges Jack Gordon and Charley Shortell had it 4-3 in favor of Diamond with 1 even. Referee Ruby Goldstein had Flood ahead 4-3-1.

The pair of 21-year-old oldsters kept the crowd of 2268 that paid $5170 rocking and roaring. Both are New York kids with large following in the small clubs.

Flood's right eye was practically closed from the fifth on and his left was swollen. Diamond's right eye, gashed open in the fourth, bled the rest of the fight.

Nardiello examined Artie after the fourth, sixth, seventh and eighth rounds.

Diamond said he thought the fight should not have been stopped. But after last week's accident in the same arena where Sonny Boy West was fatally injured nobody was taking any chances.

Bassett Will Box Ted Davis In Benefit Bout

The Boxing Commission yesterday found an opponent for Percy Bassett on the Sonny Boy West Benefit card January 4 at Uline Arena.

His name is Ted (Red Top) Davis. He's a featherweight from Hartford, Conn., a conquerer of the highly regarded Paddy DeMarco four months ago.

Last January, in St. Louis, Red Top was outpointed by Willie Pep. Willie was so impressed with the 23-year-old Davis' possibilities that he bought 50 percent of his contract from Manager Mushky Salow.

Willie has been in Red Top's corner in every fight since then.

Davis was originally booked to fight Charlie Titone in a January 8 feature bout in Baltimore, but the promoter there, Benny Trotter, released Davis, and cancelled his card to help the District benefit program.

Pep and Davis will pull into town within the next day or so to begin training. Bassett, meanwhile, is remaining in seclusion, trying to stay out of the reach of curious fans and newspapermen, who want to ask about his fight with West which resulted in Sonny Boy's death in New York last week.

Since he was outpointed by Pep, Davis has had 10 fights, most of them in New England. He has won eight, two by knockouts, and he lost two to lefthanders. Bobby Lloyd and Snuffy Smith, in over-the-limit lightweight matches.

Davis' knockout victims were Aponte Torres in six rounds, and Massino Sanna in eight rounds. He decisioned Ellis Ask, Jack Dempsey's featherweight protege; Jackie Kogan, Paddy DeMarco, Reggie Martini, Dennis Pat Brady and Danny Colletti.

Lovellette's 30 Points Set Mark

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 27 (AP).—Heavyweight Center Clyde Lovellette pumped in 30 points for a new meet record as the Kansas Jayhawks overwhelmed Iowa State, 75 to 51, in the opening game of the Big Seven Conference basketball tournament tonight.

Rogers Wins, Coss Ousted

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 27 (AP).—Unseeded Bob Green of West Palm Beach, Fla., today upset fourth seeded Tim Coss of Washington, D. C., in a third round match of the annual Orange Bowl Junior Tennis Tournament.

In another third round match, Ted Rogers, another Washingtonian, defeated Bernard Friedman, Miami Beach, 6—1, 6—3.

Reynaldo Garrido of Havana, Cuba, remained the sole foreign entrant in junior boys' play and reached the quarter finals by beating Dick Rutledge of Coral Gables, Fla., 7—5, 6—2.

In junior girls' play, top-seeded Mary Slaughter of Charlottesville, Va., defeated Karol Fageros, Miami junior champion, 6—2, 6—1.

Marshall Talks To McMillin; Not About Job, He Says

Washington Redskin President George P. Marshall talked by phone with Bo McMillan yesterday but insisted the conversation had nothing to do with the deposed Detroit Lion coach coming here.

Marshall insisted they discussed a completely different matter.

Herman Ball, still the Redskin coach, currently is on the West Coast.

Marshall hints that he will make a definite decision on the 1951 Redskin coach shortly after the New Year—before the annual National Football League meeting in Chicago.

Texas, Arkansas Win in Tourney

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 27 (AP).—Texas pulled ahead of Vanderbilt in a see-saw finish 55-49 here today to go into the semifinals of the All-College basketball tournament.

Bradley Wins 10th Straight, 64-62

PEORIA, Ill., Dec. 27 (AP).—Charley Grover's field goal with 14 seconds left to play gave Bradley University its tenth straight basketball victory tonight, 64-62, over previously unbeaten Indiana.

Navy Gets Ready for Opener With North Carolina Tonight

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 27 (AP).—Eight basketball squads held final workouts today in preparation for the starting tomorrow of the second annual Dixie Basketball classic.

Teams from Rhode Island State, Colgate, Navy and Tulane arrived during the day and took turns with North Carolina State in holding practice sessions in big Reynolds Coliseum, site of the 12-game, double elimination tourney.

The other three teams which will play in the tourney—Duke, North Carolina and Wake Forest—held their practice sessions on their home courts.

North Carolina State, with a record of seven wins in eight starts and rated sixth nationally in the Associated Press poll, was still favored to stage a repeat act and win first place in the tournament. North Carolina State, host team for the invitational meet, won the first tourney last year.

Duke's Blue Devils, who also boast a record of seven wins and one loss, are considered a strong darkhorse possibility. Duke was knocked from the undefeated ranks last Saturday by Bradley, which is ranked number two nationally.

The tournament will get underway at 2 p. m. tomorrow with Rhode Island State meeting Wake Forest. N. C. State and Tulane's strong team meet at 3:30 p. m.

The night session tomorrow calls for North Carolina and unbeaten Navy to meet at 7:30 and for Duke and Colgate to square off at 9 o'clock.

St. Louis Whips Holy Cross, 57-49

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 27 (AP).—Ray Sonnenberg paced the St. Louis University basketball team to a 57-49 victory over the Holy Cross Crusaders tonight.

Sonnenberg pushed in 20 points. The Billikens were hot in the first half, cooled off in the third quarter but stayed in the lead and strengthened their margin in the final minutes.

Sugar Bowl Opens Today

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 27 (AP).—Two sideshows open the Sugar Bowl's annual sports carnival tomorrow and begin the build-up for the main tent event on Monday—the football game between Oklahoma and Kentucky.

Eight boxing and eight tennis matches start the five-day program which Orleanians have justification for calling "the biggest annual sports week in America."

The boxing matches are between fighters from the University of Idaho, co-champions with Gonzaga of the NCAA, and Louisiana State, once the absolute ruler of college fighting now coming back in a hurry.

The 16 entries in the three-day tennis tournament include some of the best amateurs available. Sidney Schwartz of New York is seeded first and meets Hal Burrows, Charlottesville, Va., in the opening match.

Lord Carlton Pins Roland Meeker

Proud Lord Carlton made his last local video appearance a good one, pinning Roland Meeker in 30 minutes with a body press last night at Turner's Arena.

Some 1260 watched the last mat program that will be televised from Turner's. In the semifinal, the (Great) Scott drew in a 30-minute match with Ioanis Kostlias. Stu Hart and Ken Ackles defeated Jim Austeri and Abe Stein in the team affair and Neil Stewart pinned Millie Stamford in 15 minutes in the ladies' division.

Caps 'Grads,' Scranton Miners Top Big Bill Tonight at Uline's

Six former Washington Capitols will play for the Washington Professional All-Stars tonight when they duel the American League champion Scranton Miners in the 9 o'clock finale of a holiday basketball carnival at Uline Arena.

Ten percent of tonight's receipts will be donated to the family of Sonny Boy West.

The All-Stars will field a squad that will spotlight former Caps Chick Reiser, Leo Katkaveck, Jack Nichols, Dick O'Keefe, Earl Lloyd and Johnny Norlander.

Steve Bagarus, former Washington Redskin favorite, and William "Sugar" Cain, popular one-time Washington Bear, complete the squad.

The Scrantonians boast one of the American Basketball League's all-time combinations. They not only won their League's regular season and playoff championships in 1949-50, but again are setting the pace this season following 14 victories in their first 15 games. Dolly King, LIU star, leads the visitors.

Garvin's Grill and O'Donnell's Restaurant girls open tonight's action at 7 o'clock and D. C. Skaters and Merrick Boy's Club clash an hour later.

Eastern and Western Branch 80-pound combinations of the Boys' Club of Washington will play two periods of six minutes each between halves of the feature game.

Bragg, Whitfield Bow in Auckland

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Dec. 27 (AP).—Art Bragg of Morgan State, National AAU sprint champion, and Mal Whitfield, former Ohio State runner who won the 1948 Olympic crown in the 800 meter event, both were defeated today in the opening races the Canterbury Centennial Games at Christchurch.

Bragg was beaten in a :09.7 100-yard dash that was won by Bill Degruchy of Australia. McDonald Bailey of England, was third.

Whitfield was second to Arthur Wint of Jamaica, Olympic 400-meter king. Wint traveled the 400-meter distance today in a torrid :46.9. Whitfield started slowly and fell 8 feet short of victory with a blazing finish. John Voight of Oklahoma A. & M. was third.

Browns Salt NFL Wounds

And So the A-AC Had Last Word in Pro War

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (NYHT).—Just when it seemed it would be necessary to blast to get professional football off the playgrounds in time for the baseball openings, the Cleveland Browns ended the battle royal by stiffening the Los Angeles Rams.

While natives of Cleveland carried Paul Brown, the coach, in triumph from the field, representatives of the one original National League turned and wiped away a surreptitious tear.

Red Smith

The playoff which Cleveland won in the last 20 seconds was not only one of the most flamboyant productions that ever brought the television public up yelling out of its armchairs.

It was a case of the All-America Conference, mouldering in the grave for a whole year, rising from the dead and delivering the blow which it hadn't been able to land in four years of sparring with the National League.

Pro football's war of words and dollars ended a year ago with the capitulation of the All-America.

Cleveland and two other members of the conference became lodge brothers in the National League, and theoretically all have lived together since in sweet and loving accord.

ACTUALLY, the old wounds have not yet healed and great gobs of salt were rubbed into them when Cleveland was installed as champion.

During the years when the National League was the only major league in football, its members grew to feel that they owned the game, by something approaching divine right. "There is but one league," went the first tenet of their faith, "and Elmer Layden is its prophet."

Their attitude toward trespassers was expressed by Layden, then the National League commissioner, when the All-America Conference was being organized and he was asked whether the new group would be accepted as a major league.

"Let 'em buy a football first," he sniffed.

National League club owners swelled the derisive chorus. "That W.P.A. project," Bert Bell used to call the new league. He didn't know how apt the term was; this outfit ultimately was to cost more than the original WPA. It was bankrolled by men able to buy not only a football but also a good many of the National League's best football players.

ALL THROUGH the war, a National Leaguer would have plucked out his tongue sooner than admit the weakest team in his lodge couldn't smack the All-America's best plumb out of its underwear. It soon became apparent that the All-America's best was the team operated by Paul Brown, whose pupils won all four championships in the A.A.C.'s four years of life.

Some people thought Cleveland had the best team in the world. But that notion was jeered down in the National League.

At the start of the 1950 season when the Browns went to Philadelphia to play the National League's defending champions, players, coaches, owners and fans pledged to the older league were confident the Eagles would win cantering. The score was: Cleveland, 35; Philadelphia, 10.

That blow was softened somewhat when the Browns, who'd never been held scoreless by any opponent in all their existence, were shut out by the Giants.

National Leaguers gloated more loudly when the Giants won a second meeting, becoming the first team ever to defeat Cleveland twice in one season.

WHEN THE GIANTS and Browns met for a third time, this time with the title of the league's American Division at stake, Brown still hadn't found a way to contrive a touchdown against Steve Owen's defense. But he found a way to win, on two field goals and a safety.

That is the lesson that Paul Brown's record as a coach teaches: He finds a way to beat you.

He always has, whether he was coaching the Navy farm team at Severn Prep or Massillon High in Ohio or the Gobs at Great Lakes or Ohio State or the pros.

His team shouldn't have won the divisional playoff from the Giants, whose winning touchdown was ruled out because a New York player was offside. But his team did.

IT SHOULDN'T have won the league title against the Rams, who had the winning points on the scoreboard and Cleveland bottled up deep in its own territory with less than two minutes to play. But the Browns moved into scoring territory and their coach, reaching out for the winning play with that sure judgement of his, called on Lou Groza, the placement kicker.

Earlier in the game the Rams' Bob Waterfield had missed a field goal from the 16-yard line. Now Groza kicked from the 16-yard line, and made it. It was Cleveland's game, 30 to 28.

Football never put two more evenly matched teams on a field than the Rams and Browns were last Sunday. But when the teams are at dead level in quality, the one that has Paul Brown on the bench has something extra going for it. Or so the records force one to conclude. On the record, Brown finds a way to beat you.

$13 Victor Comes From Away Back

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 27.—Whirlaway wasn't here this afternoon but he had a worthy son in action—Joe Mauro's Othello.

The 3-year-old isn't a very big chip off the old block, but had speed enough to come from last position in a field of seven to win by three lengths in going away fashion.

Second money in the James F. Sager Purse went to Natali Stable's Once Only, 2½ lengths in advance of C. E. George's Baby Song.

Othello, out of the mare Dark Love, was making his fifth start of the meeting. He was beaten off four times while performing on a variety of muddy and slow tracks. Today the going was fast and proved right up his alley. He was clocked in 1:26 for the about 7 furlongs and brought a $13.80 win mutuel.

In addition to Othello, three horses got to the front at some stage. In order of their appearance in the lead, they were Baby Song, Devon Belle and Once Only. However, when Jockey George Cardoza finally got Othello under way it was all over, as far as the win position was concerned, but the pay-off.

Double Pays $77.80

The program was marked by a thrilling dead heat. Mrs. Mary Brining's Sun Baby, doing her best to cling to the lead, and the Natali Stable's My Willow, closing fast, hit the wire as one and the judges could not separate them.

Patsy Grant rode Sun Baby and Darrell Hartley had the mount on My Willow. Third position was taken by L. Higgin's Sky Pattern in another tight photo with M. Chew's Sylvia's Boy. Sun Baby paid $4.40 and My Willow returned $5.80. The winning time was 1:17 2-5 for the about 6 furlongs.

The daily double paid $77.80, despite an even money winner in the first race, Teaville Farm's Kitty Kilts. It was the second in a row for the filly. Stanley Austin accounted for the second event with Miss C. Marshall's Dividandy, $25.20 winner, who accounted for the sizable double.

W & L Defense In Spotlight

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 27 (AP).—The "stop 'em" platoon of Washington and Lee's football forces was in the spotlight today as the Generals drilled on their defense to stoy Wyoming in the Gator Bowl New Year's Day.

The offensive unit, meanwhile, stood by and chided the defensive eleven's efforts against the scrubs in a dummy drill.

Coach George Barclay said his squad, already crippled by the loss of Fullback Wally Michaels with appendicitis and slight injuries to Ends Bob Goldsmith and Jim Carpenter would have no further rough work this week.

Line coach Russ Crane, who handles the squad in conditioning drills, said he thought the 38 men were improving physically.

"Their legs were not loose enough earlier in the week but it appears that we are getting in shape and will be ready for the maximum effort," Crane said.

The Virginians were guests tonight at a dog racing program at a kennel club here.

Meanwhile, the Wyoming Cowpokes went through a typical Monday drill—kickoffs and returns, punts and returns, passing and pass defense and offensive assignments—but there was no scrimmage.

Terps' Garabito Back in Action In All-Army Tourney Today

FORT MEADE, Md., Dec. 27.—The Korean war has prevented the Far Eastern Command from sending a team over this year, but soldiers from all over the rest of the world will compete here tomorrow in the fourth annual All-Army boxing tournament.

Ten teams, including fighters from the six continental armies, the Alaskan Command, the Military District of Washington, the European Command, and the Carribbean Command will participate.

Three champions are among the contestants. Washington area interest will center on the bantamweight and middleweight divisions where District boys are titleholders and are expected to win again.

Defending bantamweight champion Pete Garabito, who a few months ago was on the University of Maryland boxing team, is back fighting as a Second Army representative.

Garabito won the bantamweight title last year, was discharged from the Army, and enrolled at Maryland. Then he was recalled to active military duty as an enlisted reservist. Pete was named the outstanding boxer of last year's tournament.

Another Washington boxer who is defending an All-Army title is Sergt. Larry Jones of 442 6½ st. sw. Larry is the mainstay of the Third Army team which is defending the team title.

Jones has walked away with the All-Army middleweight championship for the last two years and the Third Army middleweight title for the last three straight years.

Pvt. Bob Bickle of Hoisington, Kansas, is the only other champion back. Bickle is a lightweight.

FLYWEIGHT—Tito Mirafuentes (First Army, Honolulu) vs. Carlo Fusco (Europe, Bronx).
BANTAMWEIGHT—Bernie Salazar (Fourth Army, Santa Fe) vs. Sam Price (Europe, Knoxville); Lou Gonsalez (Caribbean, Utuado, Puerto Rico) vs. Pete Garabito (Second Army, Stockton, Calif.).
FEATHERWEIGHT—Jose Galez (Third Army, Phoenix) vs. Ray De La Portilla (Europe, Houston); Johnny Valentine (Sixth Army, Detroit) vs. James Theri (First Army, Philadelphia).
WELTERWEIGHT—Fleming Butler (Second Army, Cleveland) vs. Norman Clark (Third Army, Kansas City); Frank Wheeler (Military District of Washington, Owens, N. J. vs. Marcello Morales (Carribbean, Aguntabs, Puerto Rico).
MIDDLEWEIGHT—Glenn Graham (Alaska, Elkwood, Pa.) vs. Charles Roberts (Europe, St. Louis); John Hawthorne (Second Army, Cleveland) vs. Richard Ducaworth (Fifth Army, Chicago).
LIGHTHEAVYWEIGHT—Louis Andrade (Sixth Army, Fresno, Calif.) vs. James Busch (Alaska, Omaha); Albert McDowell (Military District of Washington, Miami, Okla.) vs. Earl Churity (Third Army, Youngstown, Ohio).
HEAVYWEIGHT—Roland Watkins (Second Army, Los Angeles) vs. Herbert Tate (Sixth Army, Los Angeles); James Williams (Third Army, Birmingham, Ala.) vs. Nicholas Georgiade (Europe, New York).

1949 Heavy Titlist Killed in Korea

FORT MEADE, Md., Dec. 27. All-Army Heavyweight Champion Levi Jackson who won the title last year for the Far Eastern Command, was killed last August in Korea. A medical corpsman, he was ripped to pieces by mortar fire as he tried to drag two wounded comrades to safety. Jackson was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

Kentucky 1st, Bradley 2d In AP Poll

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP).—Kentucky and Bradley, ranked one-two among the Nation's college basketball teams for the second straight week, may have it out during the weekend in the New Orleans' Sugar Bowl tournament.

Kentucky was the No. 1 choice of 105 of the 167 sports writers and sportscasters from coast to coast who voted in the Associated Press' weekly poll. Bradley was picked first by 37 but drew plenty of second place votes to give the Wildcats a close tussle in points, 1498 to 1432. Points are based on 10 for first, nine for second, and so on.

If the two powers win Friday night semifinals they will clash Saturday night, thus giving Bradley a chance to avenge its 71-66 loss to Kentucky in the Sugar Bowl finale last season.

Kentucky (6-0) faces Syracuse (6-2) and Bradley (9-0) goes against St. Louis' slick Billikens (7-1) Friday night.

Oklahoma A. & M. (9-0) was a trailing third with one first placer and 947 points. Long Island University's towering Blackbirds (6-0) rated fourth place with 11 top ballots and 899 points.

Behind Indiana came North Carolina State, 6; Villanova, 7; Columbia, 8; Missouri, 9, and Kansas, 10. C.C.N.Y.'s grand slam champions, hobbled by the temporary loss of Ed Warner, dropped to eleventh place.

How They Rank

(The leaders, with first-place votes, records including games of Tuesday, December 26, in parentheses, and total points.)

TOP TEN

Joe Louis Opens 4-Stitch Gash on Sparmate's Chin

DETROIT, Dec. 27 (AP).—Former heavyweight champion Joe Louis inflicted a four-stitch cut in the chin of sparring partner McKinley English today as he continued his tune-up for a January 3 fight here with Harrisburg's Fred Beshore.

Louis caught English with a left uppercut in their first minute of sparring. He battered his other sparring partners Odell Riley and Dutch Culbertson in the rest of his workout

Beshore weighed 187 today and said he planned to come in at 185 at ringtime. That means he will give away about 25 pounds to Louis who rated a solid 3-1 favorite in light betting today.

CCNY, LIU Picked Tonight

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP).—Long Island University's tall, high-scoring Blackbirds and CCNY's grand-slam champions are favored to defeat Western Kentucky and Arizona in a Madison Square Garden basketball doubleheader tomorrow night.

LIU, with a double threat in 6-7 Sherman White and Ray Felix, its 6-11 sophomore star has zoomed to fourth place in the AP's National rankings on the basis of a 6-0 record. Western Kentucky, building around the 6-5 Rip Gish and 6-3½ Jack Turner, knocked Lasalle out of the unbeaten class last night with a 73-63 victory. The improving Kentuckians now have a 6-2 record.

CCNY (5-2) with the limping Ed Warner set to do at least part-time duty, will be out to rebuild its reputation. Dumped by Missouri and Oklahoma, the Beavers slipped to an 11th ranking this week.

Arizona, after running up six wins in a row, was whipped for the first time by Canisius in Buffalo last night, 55-52.

Merrick Wins Over Western

Merrick Boys Club coasted to a 51-30 victory over Western Branch yesterday in a 105-pound class basketball game at Eastern Branch gym and gained the semifinals of the Boys Club of Washington annual Christmas Tournament.

Yesterday's results:
80-POUND CLASS—Eastern Branch defeated Alexandria Boys Club, 40-16.
105-POUND CLASS—Merrick defeated Western Branch, 51-30; Police Boys Club No. 10 defeated Alexandria, 37-26.
120-POUND CLASS—Merrick defeated Alexandria, 43-40.
Today's semifinal pairings:
1 p. m., 80-pound class, Eastern vs. Police Boys Club No. 10.
2 p. m., 80-pound class, Merrick vs. Western Branch.
3 p. m., 105-pound class, Trinidad vs. Merrick.
7 p. m., 135-pound class, Merrick vs. Eastern.

Football Jersies May Be Standardized

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 27 (AP).—The old trick of wearing football jersies the same color as the ball to create deception may be on its way out in high school circles.

Delegates to the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations were told today there was an increasing demand from coaches and officials to standardize the colors of football uniforms.

Washburn, Arkansas Tech Win at Enid

ENID, Okla., Dec. 27 (AP).—Washburn defeated Northwestern Louisiana, 59-50, and Arkansas Tech beat Northwestern Missouri Teachers, 79-68, to reach the second round today of the Enid Intercollegiate Basketball Tournament.

Washburn and Arkansas Tech will meet winners of tonight's Phillips-Pittsburgh and Central Oklahoma State-Regis game in semfinal play tomorrow.

Strike Threatened

Horsemen Want $300 Raise In Minimum Purses at Tropical

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27 (AP).—The threat of a horsemen's strike hung over Tropical Park race course today.

W. E. Charles, secretary of the Florida Division, Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Assn., delivered to Tropical President Nathan Herzfeld a letter informing him horsemen would meet Friday night to vote whether to strike.

The horsemen are demanding a $300 per race increase on minimum purses for all races under $5000. The demand stipulates the increase will be retroactive to December 23.

Charles said the purse distribution increase would amount to $54,000. Minimum purses now are $1800. If Herzfeld accedes to the HBPA demands, the minimum will be $2100.

Herzfeld contends the track is unable to meet the purse demands because increased operating costs have offset an almost 25 percent increase in mutuel handle over last season.

The letter to Herzfeld, a copy of which was sent to the state racing commission, said the meeting—scheduled for 7:30 p. m. (E.S.T.) Friday night in the Hialeah City Hall—had been called "for the purpose of voting on the question of whether or not they (the horsemen) will take drastic action against Tropical Park . . ."

If three-fourths of the members vote to strike horsemen will not enter horses for racing after Saturday's program.

At a meeting last night of the HBPA, some members urged an immediate strike vote. But President Dan Chappell of Miami pointed out a constitutional clause requiring a three-day notice must be given the track and racing commission before a strike vote can be taken.

There appeared little likelihood HBPA and Tropical Park officials would get together before the Friday night meeting.

Herzfeld was in New York and was expected to fly back tomorrow (Thursday).

Racing Commission Chairman Leo Edwards reiterated his opinion that "something will be worked out to the satisfaction of both parties."

"We have had differences like this before," Edwards recalled, "and always have managed to smooth them over. I'm sure this will work out well, too."

J. T. Ross Will Sub In Garden Windup

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP).—J. T. Ross, San Jose, Calif., middleweight, today was substituted for ailing Walter Cartier as a Friday night opponent for Gene (Silent) Hairston of New York at Madison Square Garden.

Cartier was forced to withdraw because of a severe cold. The International Boxing Club signed Ross on short notice. He is flying from California, arriving tomorrow morning.

Jerry Niles Killed, Former Iowa Gridder

SUMTER, S. C., Dec. 27 (AP).—Jerry Niles, 31, former Iowa football player, died early today in a hospital of injuries received in an auto accident. Niles has been living in Florence, S. C.

AT CHARLES TOWN.

Dear Folks:

Horsemen with the Florida urge were pleased to hear that Tampa's Sunshine Park will open as scheduled January 27. There had been some apprehension. However, many trainers will keep their charges right here until March 3 when racing will be resumed. There's nothing to a rumor that Charles Town will run next week. The sire Vincentive had two winners in a row on the Wednesday program — New Centive and Curiosity. Former Jockey Beverley Hacker is doing okay as a trainer, having saddled four winners here. Jimmy Sager came up to see the race named for him and for the fourth time in 10 runnings failed to pick the winner, Othello. Three more racing days here. See you on the rail. BILL.

Navy Plans to Hire About 60,000 Civilians To Speed Expansion

The Navy is moving ahead rapidly on a vast expansion program of its civilian personnel. Its goal is to hire about 60,000 civilans by next June 30, raising the number of civilian employes in the Navy to 424,000.

At headquarters here, office space has been requested for 3000 new employes, civilian as well as military, to be brought here in the next six months.

Several thousand more civilians will be hired in Navy's many activities in and nearby the Capital City.

The big Naval Gun Factory here has 9000 civilians and it has been given authority to build up to 10,643 by June 30.

The Naval Powder Factory at nearby Indian Head, Md., has been given an okay to increase its 1300-man staff to 1585 by June 30. The Navy Hospital and Naval Medical Research Institute at Bethesda will each add several hundred new employes. The Naval Mine Depot at Yorktown, Va., will be built up from a 1100-man staff to 1500.

The Navy Hydrographic Office at Suitland, Md., is expanding its activities. It will set up a West Coast distribution center, soon at Clearfield, Utah, to relieve the huge work load at its Suitland headquarters.

The Naval Research Laboratory in Anacostia has been given $1,400,000 to hire several hundred new employes. The Naval Ordnance Laboratory at nearby White Oak, Md., and its David Taylor Model Basin also have been allotted additional funds to expand and to speed up their activities.

The largest single increase in Naval civilian personnel is in its Navy yards where ships are built and repaired. These shipyards had 70,000 civilians as of last July 1; they now have an 88,000-man staff, and plans call for 101,000 by June 30, an over-all boost of 31,000. Also in the shipyards will be upward of 10,000 new civilians who will be assigned to Navy's Supplies & Accounts and other activities.

Also slated for a big increase in civilian personnel is Navy's ammunition depots which now have 13,000 employes. By June 30, they expect to have 20,500. Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics is adding 3167 new civilians.

At the Marine Corps headquarters here, 300 new civilian employes will be added before June 30.

STORY: Will Rogers, special assistant to the Agriculture Secretary and a former Democratic member of Congress from Oklahoma, had the remarkable experience the other day of reading his obituary in The New York Times and in other newspapers. He had been confused with a former State senator from Oklahoma by the same name who died in a New York hospital.

"I saw my picture and read where I had died. Most of the article was about me but some of it referred to the other fellow. But after I finished it," he happily told friends, "I concluded it was the other fellow who died."

PHS: Charles Kannard, an assistant personnel officer at Public Health, has been appointed administrative officer of his agency's Paris office. A career civil servant, Kannard has served PHS for 15 years.

Surgeon-General Scheele made an inquiry of the Paris job opening when it was first proposed that a PHS commissioned officer, a pharmacist, be appointed to it. The appointment of Kannard will boost the morale of civil servants in PHS.

OHE: Congress has voted to strike out its restriction against any and all-grade promotions for employes in the Office of the Housing Expeditor. The restriction prevented any OHE employe from being paid a higher salary than he received on last May 22. Under the amendment, any OHE employe can be promoted to a "bona fide" vacancy.

LABOR: Employes in Labor's Wage and Hour and Public Contracts divisions have joined the Health Insurance Plan of Greater New York, the first Federal agencies to join it. The plan provides medical care for its members on a prepayment basis.

POST OFFICE: The new postal efficiency rating system that knocks out the old system of merits and demerits has been hailed by William C. Armbrust, president of the United National Association of Post Office Clerks.

Dog Gets His Hair Parted

By William Klemm-The Washington Post

TAIL CAUGHT—Skipper, 17-year-old Pekingese and blind, too, got his flowing tail caught in a fan under a washing machine at his home at 304 10th st. se. yesterday. Mrs. Dolores Ferris, his mistress, said he was lifted off the floor by the fan and set up quite a din about the whole thing. When she stopped the washing machine she eased his pain but Police Pvts. C. L. Langley and A. H. Boggs of the 5th Precinct had to release him. Mrs. Ferris said she found Skipper in the snow in 1933

At School Dance

Alumni 'Play' Police; Law Wins Brawl

A brawl at the Wardman Park Hotel at 1:30 a. m. yesterday simmered down to two Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School graduates pleading guilty to assault, and a third forfeiting $25 collateral for disorderly conduct.

It was a hectic fist-flinging match until police—a dozen of them—got things under control. This is what happened, according to Municipal Court testimony yesterday:

Someone called police, saying that there was a fight at the hotel following an alumni dance. Responding to the call were Police Pvts. Eugene D. Gooding and Robert Shuttleworth. They tried to soothe the angry participants.

They arrested Jack Poulter, 23, of 6721 Strathmore st., Chevy Chase, and several graduates jumped the policemen.

"About 25 or 30 men threatened to join in, and their girl friends were sort of agitating," Pvt. Gooding said.

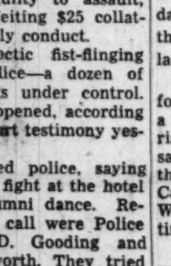
When a "policeman in trouble" call went over the air, the scout-cars came a-screaming. The officers placed Michael J. Downey, 25, of 136 Leland st., Chevy Chase, under arrest, and the crowd dispersed. The hotel residents were able to go back to sleep.

Poulter was fined $35 on assault, drunk and disorderly conduct charges. Downey pleaded guilty to assault and his case was referred to the probation office by Judge Andrew J. Howard.

A third alumnus, Herbert J. Spain, 19, of 6441 Fairfax rd., Bethesda, forfeited $25 collateral on a disorderly conduct charge.

Administrator To Retire From U. S. Engineers

Sacket L. Duryee, 70, will retire Sunday from the post of top civilian administrator of the Washington office of the Army Engineer Corps after more than a half century of service.



Duryee

He began as a messenger when the office had less than a dozen employes. He has worked in every administrative capacity until he rose to his present position as Administrative Assistant to the District Engineers 30 years ago.

Duryee, who lives at 126 Sixth st. ne., has contributed to such projects as the Key and Memorial bridges, Mount Vernon Memorial Dalecarlia and McMillan Filtration plants, land reclamation for the National Airport, Potomac and Anacostia parks, and numerous harbor and flood control projects.

A native of Washington, Duryee plans to spend some time on continuing the preparation of a history of the Washington District Engineer Office, dating from 1852.

A banquet will be held in his honor today at 7 p. m. at the Kenwood Country Club. He lives with his daughter, Mrs. Gertrude E. Smith, and her husband at the Sixth st. address.

Wilson Cadets Elect

The Woodrow Wilson Cadet Alumni Association elected J. Hayden Moore president last night at its second annual banquet. Also elected were Malcolm Clark, vice president, and Alan Eden, secretary-treasurer. The meeting was held in the Romany Room of the Roumanian Inn.

7 Central Graduates Honored

More Than 500 Attend 43d Annual Alumni Reunion; Dickinson Elected

Seven distinguished graduates of Central High School were honored last night in the alumni association's largest reunion in 25 years.

More than 500 persons packed the meeting room at the Carlton Hotel to attend the forty-third reunion and the first since Central was transferred to use of Cardozo High School earlier this year.

The turnout was more than twice the size of last year's reunion. The alumni present ranged from Mrs. Adelle Hammett Myers, class of '83 to a large contingent of young 1950 graduates.

Mother of Judge

Mrs. Myers, in addition to representing the oldest class present, is also the mother of one of the seven honorees, Municipal Court Judge Frank H. Myers, class of '15.

Among the others who received the certificates of distinction as outstanding graduates were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Tompkins, both of '02 who became acquainted in the Central blacksmith shop.

They went on to become president and vice president, respectively, of the Charles H. Tompkins Construction Co.

Also honored were James H. Lemon, '13, an investment broker and president of the board of irectors of Chilren's Hospital; James M. Mitchell, '26, member of the Civil Service Commission; directors of Children's Hospital; Miss Alma Preinkert, '13, president of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, and Rudolph E. Schoenfeld, '12, former American Minister to Rumania.

Eldred Dickinson, '24, an insurance man, was elected to succeed Edward T. Dunlap as president of the association.

Sharpe a Guest

Reelected were Robert E. Newby, '20; Mrs. Elizabeth Sharp Riley, '24; Miss Katherine Summy, '06, and Miss Bessie Whitford, '02, vice presidents; Ernest F. Williams, '15, treasurer, and Mrs. Martha Baker, of the Central faculty, secretary.

Among the guests at the meeting were C. Melvin Sharpe, president of the school board, and Albert Steinem, a member of the board.

Harry S. Werner, '25, who introduced the guests, announced that the association soon hopes to hold meetings in the three rooms at Western High School which the school board has allotted for the preservation of Central memorabilia.

Christmas selections by the alumni chorus led by Jeannette Wells opened the meeting and dancing concluded it.

Cosmopolitan Club Meets

The final meeting of 1950 will be held by the Cosmopolitan Club of Washington today at 12:30 p. m., in the Carlton Hotel.

Cold Weather Relief Today Is Foreseen

Area Temperatures May Soar to Mild 34 This Afternoon

Washingtonians can expect some relief today from the two-day cold wave which has gripped the area, the weatherman said last night.

The Weather Bureau forecast is for fair and warmer weather, with a chance the temperature may rise to 34 this afternoon. At the same time, bureau officials said, the cold air which moved in from Canada on Tuesday will leave Washington for the coast some time this afternoon.

Yesterday, the temperature never got higher than 28 degrees, at 3:50 p. m., and registered 15 at 6:45 a. m. Last night, the thermometer was supposed to drop to 12 degrees in Washington, and to anywhere from 5 to 8 degrees in the suburbs.

Despite frigid temperatures here, however, bureau officials said no weather records have been broken in Washington this week. Coldest December 27 was in 1914, when the temperature was two above zero. Coldest December day was Dcember 31, 1880, when the temperature was 13 below.

Childbirth Is Made Easier By Music, Doctor Reports

By Paul Hume

If your wife had lived in Philadelphia in 1806 and was going to have a baby, just how much do you think the best doctors in the City of Brotherly Love could do to ease her discomfort?

Well, Dr. Peter Miller of Philadelphia turned out the first treatise on "The Relief of Pain for Women in Childbirth." He said, 144 years ago, there were three things to do for women to relieve their pain: First, nauseate them violently with emetics; second, starve them throughout the last month of pregnancy; and third, resort to bloodletting.

To cause fainting, or loss of consciousness, the doctor would let as much as 800 ccs. and if that was not enough, then out would come another 400 or so.

Things are different today.

Yesterday, Dr. Robert A. Hingson, associate professor of obstetrics at Johns Hopkins Hospital, told about current tests being conducted in connection with the psychology of childbirth.

Dr. Hingson spoke to the first annual meeting of the National Association for Music Therapy, meeting at the Shoreham and Wardman Park Hotels in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Music Teachers National Association.

Dr. Hingson reported on "Music Therapy During Labor and Delivery in the Johns Hopkins and Sinai Hospital Obstetrical Anesthesia Research."

Nowadays, when the future mothers of America enter hospitals, things are different from the days of 1806, or, for that matter, 1906.

Labor rooms look different and feel different. Air conditioning, color schemes, new drapes, paintings, mirrors, and modern lighting have all been planned to give relaxation and a sense of comfort to something that has for centuries been regarded as thoroughly uncomfortable, particularly by its principal participants, the mothers.

Into all this changing scene, music, too, has come. As Dr. Hingson said, "We know that cows give more milk if they hear the right kind of music. Workers in wartime factories maintained higher output level when they worked to music. And we know now that women feel less discomfort and annoyance, especially during the early hours of labor, if they can hear music."

After conducting various tests concerning the relative merits of differing kinds of anesthetics, the doctors and nurses began checking with the patients to see what effect the accessory factors of color, surroundings, and music had.

The results were more than just encouraging.

One woman said, "I had no medicine so therefore I could feel all of my pains. I think the music helped me more than anything. I played a little game with each pain. I would try to keep time with the music with my breathing. I had to give so much thought to that, that before I knew it my pain was gone."

Next to having a doctor or nurse in the room during the early hours of labor, most of the women said drugs or anesthetics and music were most helpful.

The music that works best is what the hospital people call semi-classical. By that they mean the sort of soothing style and sound that Muzak gives on its quiet, luncheon programs.

When my wife made her now historical trip to a local hospital about 10 weeks ago, she walked into the place equipped with radio (FM), a book, and a magazine. The hospital nurses were glad to see here well prepared.

In Johns Hopkins, she would not now need the radio. Music would be brought to her. She might not like Muzak's selections, but then, she had to turn off the radio here, too, because she said the programs got excessivly romantic.

So when you are lining up dates and hospitals for your next baby, see if the hospital has music in its labor rooms. If not, send along a radio.

Polio Victim Hospitalized

Sen. Chavez' Son Is Fined In Drunk Case

Convicted When Police Testify He 'Staggered' After Auto Crash

Dennis Chavez, jr., 38, son of Senator Chavez (D., N. M.) yesterday was fined $100 and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence in Arlington County Court on a charge of driving while drunk.

Chavez

After hearing nearly four hours of testimony, judge Hugh Reid declared he could draw "only one conclusion" from the evidence—that young Chavez was intoxicated when his auto crashed into the rear of another vehicle on November 22.

During the hearing, four Arlington policemen testified that Chavez "staggered" after the accident, that his voice was "blurred" and his eyes "droopy."

One of them, Pvt. Leroy Rasmussen, told the Judge Chavez smelled of alcohol.

When police officers put Chavez into a scout car to take him to police headquarters, Rasmussen testified, the senator's son "told us we'd be sorry for what we'd done and that we didn't know who he was."

According to Rasmussen, young Chavez resisted attempts of police to take and hold his personal effects for him when he was jailed briefly after the accident.

Rasmussen said Chavez shoved him away, then swung at police Pvt. William Dinsmore. In throwing up his hands to protect himself, Rasmussen said, Dinsmore "accidently" hit Chavez in the face.

But Chavez, when he took the stand, denied he tried to strike Dinsmore. Instead, he said, "two officers were holding me while another officer hit me in the mouth with his fist."

Chavez denied flatly he was intoxicated, but said the impact of the crash shook him up "very severely." He said he struck the car ahead after it stopped "very suddenly."

Before the accident, he said he had "two drinks" of bourbon and water at a party given by Mrs. Leigh H. Endweiss at her home, 1014 Todd st., Falls Church. Mrs. Endweiss supported his claim.

She testified she served the thirty party guests nearly a half-gallon of martinis, three bottles of bourbon and one of scotch.

Judge Reid later observed "it must have been a good party," since, by his calculations, every guest must have consumed "five ounces of spirits and 1½ ounces of martinis."

Conrad E. Winslow of Vienna, Va., driver of the car struck by the Chavez vehicle on Lee blvd. at Columbus st., testified the impact knocked his car 60 feet.

Kids Compete

Train Show Frustrates Eager Dads

Muttering to their neighbors, "two to one, my kid beats your kid," 40-odd anxious but frustrated fathers last night watched as their offspring competed in the third annual citywide electric train race.

Their fingers twitching for the control panels they couldn't touch, the dads watched anxiously from the sidelines along the perimeter of the 42-foot track set up in the Central YMCA gym.

The youngsters made up in vocal steam what their iron horses lacked in the stretch.

The fathers groaned and avoided their neighbors when their sons came in second.

There were all types of trains, some taken brand-new from under the Christmas tree and others dug up from the basement. The owners of the sleek streamliners looked with disdain upon the stubby freight engines—until the little workhorses hit the track.

Then, shades of Casey Jones, the freights and the light passenger locomotives left the heavy streamliners in a trail of smoke.

When the smoke cleared, the following were declared winners:

Freight division: Jimmy King, 13, of 4204 Russell ave., Mount Rainier, Md., with a time of 4.7 seconds for the 42-foot track.

Passenger division: Douglas Moore, 11, of 1404 Martha Custis dr., Alexandria, 4.5 seconds.

Streamliner division: Richard Tayman, 12, of 3512 Carpenter st. se., 7.2 seconds.

Each contestant entered a locomotive and fuel tender. Prizes, furnished by Corr's Hobby Supply Co., 818 9th st. nw., were awarded the four boys in each division having the fastest times.

The prizes? Train equipment, naturally.

Thieves Get Binoculars, $100 in Cash

Opticians Robbed; $500 Worth of Merchandise Taken

'Twas the night after Christmas and all through 1760 K st. nw. somebody was mighty busy.

Police would like to know who. Someone with busy fingers got away with about $100 in cash and an estimated $500 in merchandise.

Police believe this is what happened sometime Tuesday night or early yesterday:

Thieves entered the K st. building by breaking through a window on the rear door of Parkwood Opticians. The firm occupies the first and second floors of the building.

In the office of manager Nevin W. Oldt, they found some keys which they used to open a workshop door. Inside they found a hidden wall safe, took it off at the hinges, and removed about $100 in bills, leaving small change and checks. They also made off with two pairs of binoculars worth about $400 and four pairs of field glasses worth about $100.

Next, using Oldt's keys, they ransacked the real estate office of Hackman & Scheuch, but found nothing they wanted.

On the third floor, they entered the office of the British West Indies Central Labor Organization, and ripped open a safe. They left a petty cash box containing about $6, which was all they found there, police said.

Watchman Dies In Junk Yard Fire

A night watchman at a junk yard was burned to death early today in a fire at the yard at 309 First st. sw. when an oil stove exploded, police reported.

The stove blew up in the watchman's wooden shack, which was destroyed in the fire, police said. Firemen fought the blaze for almost an hour and confined the fire to a small area around the shack.

Identity of the dead man was not immediately established. He was removed to the morgue.

Case Hings on Whether Woman Has Mole on Face

The $64 question in Montgomery County Circuit Court yesterday was whether Mrs. Sara Edith Millett, 29, of East Riverdale had a mole on her face.

Charged with forging a $64 check and passing it at the Sterling Kiddie Shop, 8711 Flower ave., Silver Spring, Mrs. Millett denied the charge.

Ira Gulickson, chief of the questioned documents division of the Metropolitan Police, said the writing on the check did not match Mrs. Millett's.

Leonard Levi, proprietor of the shop, said he was sure of Mrs. Millett's identity except that she had a mole on the right side of her face. She denied this and the court then ordered her to wash her face to make sure she did not have a mole covered by grease paint. She obeyed, and when she returned there still was no mole.

A police photo made at the time of her arrest in September showed a mark on her face, but Detective Sergt. Earl Stern was not sure whether it was a mole or a pimple, he admitted on cross-examination by Defense Attorney Joseph B. Simpson, jr.

Judge Charles W. Woodward said he was ready to turn Mrs. Millett loose until he saw the picture which showed her with the mole." He postponed sentence until January 3 at the request of her attorney.

Simpson said he plans to seek the records at the Maryland House of Correction, where she served a term in 1947 for check charges, to see whether she had a mole then.

One Killed, 7 Injured In Accidents

Springfield, Va., Man Dies After Being Struck by Auto Near His Home

One person died yesterday and seven others were injured, two of them seriously, as the result of traffic accidents in the Washington area.

Dead was Austin Gienger, 65, who was injured at about 10 p. m. Tuesday when he was struck by an automobile on Springfield rd., near his home in Springfield, Va.

Fairfax County police said Mr. Gienger was hit by a car operated by William E. Broyhill, 22, of Newington, Va. No charges have been placed. They said Broyhill told them Gienger stepped into the path of his car as he drove over the crest of a hill. Gienger died in Alexandria Hospital at about 1:45 p. m. of internal injuries.

Seven persons were admitted to Fort Belvoir Hospital as the result of a two-car collision on Route 1 at Woodbridge, Va., yesterday afternoon.

Virginia State Police said those most seriously hurt were Mrs. Margaret M. Rabator, 21, of Providence, R. I., driver of one of the cars, who suffered a possible skull fracture, and James J. Reid, 22, of Camp Pickett, Va., with a possible broken neck.

Also admitted were Mrs. Rabator's husband, Norman, of Camp Pickett, cuts on the head and face; Mrs. Ruth A. Bryant, 34, of the Bel Aire Trailer Court, Woodbridge, driver of the second car, cuts on the left hand and arm; Mrs. Mickey Lee Wall, 22, of Woodbridge, undetermined injuries; Charlotte L. Wall, 6 months, forehead cuts, and Mary Bryant, 7, face and forehead cuts.

Police said the accident occurred when the Bryant car, traveling south, made a left turn into the Bel Aire Trailer Court and collided with the car driven by Mrs. Rabator.

Friday Funeral Rites For Elizabeth Agnew

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p. m. for Mrs. Elizabeth Agnew, 52, clerk of the Arlington County Board and secretary to three county managers, who died at Emergency Hospital early yesterday of injuries sustained in an automobile accident on Sunday.

Mrs. Agnew

Mrs. Agnew, who lived at 3116 Columbia Pike, Arlington, was critically injured in a four-car collision on Mount Vernon blvd., near Roaches Run.

The funeral will be held at the Arlington Methodist Church, 716 S. Glebe rd., with burial in the family plot at the Presbyterian Cemetery in Alexandria.

Born near Leesburg, Va., Mrs. Agnew moved with her family to Falls Church when she was 11 years old and later attended Western High School in Washington.

In 1920, she married the late John P. Agnew, who worked for years as manager of several Arlington coal companies and was an auditor for the General Accounting Office at his death in 1946.

Mrs. Agnew began working for Arlington County in 1929 as clerk to the Board of Supervisors. When the present county manager system was established in 1932, she became clerk to the County Board and secretary to Roy S. Braden, the first Arlington County Manager.

She leaves a son, U. S. Army Capt. John P. Agnew, now stationed at Camp McCoy, Wisc., her mother, Mrs. Frances Herndon Smith, who lives at the Columbia Pike address, and a granddaughter, 4-month-old Ann Carr Agnew.

Penny Milk Costs Up; D. C. to Absorb Boost

Cost of the District public school "penny milk program" is going up for the first three months of 1951, District Purchasing Officer Roland M. Brennan said yesterday.

Brennan said a $94,000 contract with local dairies to furnish milk for the program during the first quarter of 1951 represents an average increase of about half-a-cent per half pint. However, cost to school children in the program will remain the same, he said. The increase will be absorbed by the District.

Approximately 31,000 children in District public and parochial schools are participating in the penny milk program, officials said. It is financed by a 2-cent contribution per child from the Agriculture Department, one cent from each child and the balance from District funds.

Brennan noted, meanwhile, that the Districts child day care centers can still benefit under contracts already signed for food during the first quarter of 1951, should the centers reopen within the next three months.

He said that contracts already signed with firms which are to supply District institutions stipulate that food needed for lunches should be provided if needed during the next three months' period.

The six centers were closed last week for lack of funds. Since that time, the Commissioners have asked Congress for $50,000 to continue the program for another six months.

At the same time, Brennan announced that the city has approved a contract for $11,768 to supply District institutions with eggs during January. The contract, signed yesterday, followed rejection two weeks ago of a bid of $12,821 for the egg supply.

USO Successor

Matthews Asks Support For ASAF

Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews yesterday urged public support of Associated Services for the Armed Forces as the best means of providing a home-away-from-home atmosphere for servicemen.

Matthews, co-chairman of ASAF, explained at a press conference that organization is the peacetime successor to the USO. It was formed last spring from three of the six groups that comprised the wartime USO. Purpose of ASAF is "to meet the religious, morals and welfare needs of all servicemen."

Member groups of ASAF are the Armed Forces YMCA, National Catholic Community Services, and the National Jewish Welfare Board. It now operates more than 100 clubs for servicemen in this country and overseas.

Nationally, ASAF has a 1951 budget of $9,600,000—compared with a peak 60-million-dollar USO budget. Most of the ASAF budget is expected to come from club earnings or Community Chests.

Private contributions are more than welcome, officials said. The first private benefit in Washington for ASAF will be the "VIP Amateur Hour," sponsored by the Women's National Press Club on January 25 at Constitution Hall, with Cabinet members, Congressmen and military leaders due to appear.

Miss Bunker lived at 309 E st. nw. for many years. Until recently, she had contributed poetry and feature articles to newspapers and magazines. She was a memberof the Universalist National Memorial Church, 1810 16th st. nw.

'Hey, Rube! Still Rings in Marylander's Ears, So He Builds Working Replica of Carousel

The Washington Post

MERRY-GO-LAPPS—Milton J. Lapp, sr., whipped up this colorful merry-go-round for his grandchildren (and maybe himself) to enjoy. The different Lapps are, left to right, Bernadette, 10; Catherine, 6; Anne Marie, 11, and Tommy, 2. In the background with Mr. Lapp is Mrs. Claude Lapp and Teresa Rose, six months. All the kids except Bernadette are Mrs. Claude Lapps'

Sawdust is like printer's ink. You just can't get it out of your system.

At least 63-year-old Milton J. Lapp, sr., of Edgewater Beach, Md., has found it thus. Since his retirement from the carnival business in 1931, he hasn't been able to forget "the business" entirely.

Lapp, a caretaker at the beach resort, has constructed a miniature carousel, faithful in every detail to the ones he put up and took down for 23 years in his road show, the M. J. Lapp Greater Shows. It is built on a scale of one eighth inch to each foot.

He set it up recently at the home of his son, Claude F. Lapp, 6800 Bradley blvd., Chevy Chase, Md.

The little merry-go-round has 20 carved horses that move up and down in approved carousel style while a tiny music box provides the music. Power comes from a motor that once ran a dentist's drill.

Lapp began work on the carousel in October. On some days he worked as long as 14 hours on it. Now it is providing entertainment for the children of the neighborhood in the recreation room of the younger Lapp's home. The son and his wife plan to admit the children all through the holiday season. They have six children of their own.

Lapp said yesterday on a visit to his son's home that he plans to construct all of the various features of a miniature carnival. He hopes to take a full, small-scale cernival to children's hospital wards.

The carousel can be taken apart in about two hours and reconstructed in about the same time. Each piece is numbered with Roman numerals just like its bigger prototype in the show business.

No Tax Boost Necessary In Maryland, McKeldin Says

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27 (AP).—Governor-elect Theodore R. McKeldin said today Maryland can continue spending at its present rate without boosting taxes.

"There will not be any tax increase from my knowledge of the budget up to this point," McKeldin said. "We can hold the line."

McKeldin's tax announcement came after a new report by the board of estimates that the State can look for more income in the next eighteen months than it had anticipated.

The Governor-elect scorned tax hikes despite a gap of some 15 million dollars between revenue anticipated for the 1952 period and $92,468,444 requested by State departments that operate on general funds.

"We can draw in here and there without calling for any additional taxes," he said.

"Holding the line would kill off most departmental bids for more money than they now receive, he added. It might also require some shifting between general funds and dedicated revenues.

The Governor-elect also declared at a news conference that he will study a wholesale reorganization of the State government.

Decision Day On Maryland Roads Looms

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27 (AP).—The 1951 Maryland Legislature will have to decide whether to continue the State's present highway modernization program even though the money is running out, Robert M. Reindollar, former Roads Commission chairman, said today.

But if the lawmakers decide to go ahead, they may run into trouble from Maryland's incoming Governor, Theodore R. McKeldin, who is opposed to major parts of the current program.

The highway modernization program, launched with a 110-million-dollar bond issue in 1947, is only about half finished. And now the question is, Reindollar said, whether Maryland wants to continue to spend 40 million dollars annually to continue the project.

"That decision must be made by the coming Legislature because highway funds will be spent before the 1952 Assembly meets," he said.

Reindollar has been succeeded as State Roads Commission chairman by Assistant Attorney General Joseph D. Buscher. But McKeldin soon is expected to name Russell H. McCain of Frederick as chairman. McCain currently is a member of the commission.

McKeldin said the State roads plan was such a tremendous program that it cannot be carried out the way they have planned the thing—it is impossible."

McKeldin added that he favored the Baltimore-Washington expressway.

If no changes are made in the current program, available money remaining through 1951 will make it possible to push ahead work on the five expressways. It would:

1. Complete the Baltimore-Washington expressway to Jessups, where it will be linked to the still-to-be-built Federal parkway to Washington.
2. Finish the Baltimore-Frederick pike to Ridgeville, two thirds of the way.
3. Finish the Annapolis-Washington dual highway to Route 301, more than half the distance.
4. Finish the Frederick-Washington pike to Clarksville, a little less than half the distance.
5. Finish the York road from Timonium to Hereford, about two thirds of the way.

S. L. Garrity, Legal Adviser For VA, Dies

Stephen J. Garrity, 55, a legal adviser for the Veterans Administration and a popular local entertainer, died Tuesday at his home, 4604 8th st. nw., after six weeks' treatment for a heart condition.

Mr. Garrity

An accomplished pianist, organist and singer, Mr. Garrity was once an accompanist for Kate Smith. He appeared with the late George H. O'Connor and the St. Patrick Players here, and was organist for the Manresa Clubs of the Nativity and St. Gabriel's Catholic Churches.

Mr. Garrity had been with the VA and its predecessor agencies since 1920 when he joined the War Risk Insurance Agency. At the time of his death he was the senior legal adviser for the Insurance Claims Service.

In his earlier years, Mr. Garrity was known for his baseball ability. He played on the Georgetown University team while working for his law degree, which he received in 1923, and he also played for the War Risk Insurance team and the Mohawks, a semi-professional team.

Born in Newton, Mass., he moved with his parents to Bristol, R. I. He attended Manhattan College in New York City on a baseball scholarship. He was in his senior year when the United States entered World War I. He saw action as a sergeant in the Coast Artillery in France.

Mr. Garrity was a member of the Phi Alpha Delta national law fraternity and the American Legion. He belonged to the Holy Name Society at St. Gabriel's and organized the first group there that went to the Manresa Retreat House near Annapolis.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna E. Garrity, and three daughters, Mary C. Garrity, Martha E. Garrity, and Ellen L. Garrity, all of the 8th st. address. Six sisters and two brothers of Providence, R. I., also survive.

The funeral will be held from Collins' funeral home, 3821 14th st. nw., at 8:30 a. m., Friday. Requiem mass will be celebrated at St. Gabriel's Church, 26 Grant circle nw., at 9 a. m., Friday Burial will be in Glennwood Cemetery.

St. Johns Student Bucks Draft Law, Arrested by FBI

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27 (U.P.).—The FBI said tonight it has arrested 18-year-old Larry Adkins as the first draft-dodger in Maryland under the present Selective Service law.

Adkins, a St. Johns College student, had written to President Truman that his scruples prevented him from participating in military preparedness. But agents who detained him reported he would give no explanation, saying only:

"I will expound upon my theories in court."

The Baltimore youth was arraigned before United States Commissioner Ernest Volkhart, who ordered him held in $5000 bail for a further hearing tomorrow. He was charged with failing to register under the 1948 Selective Service Act.

Kellner Leaves Reform Temple Position Here

SPICER, J

Stone of Scone Clew Asked by Abbey Dean

LONDON, Dec. 27 (U.P.).—The Very Rev. Alan Campbell Don, dean of Westminster Abbey, broadcast an emotional appeal tonight for the recovery of the ancient "Stone of Scone" which was stolen from under the Abbey's coronation chair Christmas morning.

Appealing to listeners over the British Broadcasting Corporation to "keep your eyes and ears open," he asked that any information be given to the police or to him.

The dean told how an aide burst into his bedroom in the Abbey buildings Christmas morning and told him of the theft. Expressing horror that "sacrilegious hands" had touched the stone, he said he knew that King George was "greatly distressed" over its loss.

Scotland Yard broadcast a national alert for a yellow three-ton truck and the owner of a wrist watch as the most promising clues in the search for the stone. It was said 70,837 policemen throughout the country had been ordered to join in the search.

Stolen Truck Found

The truck in question was stolen in Glasgow, Scotland, December 23. It was found late tonight in South London and towed to Scotland Yard for fingerprinting.

The wristwatch, of Swiss make, was found with a crow bar near the coronation chair. Police believe the thieves might have used it to synchronize their movements with the driver of a waiting escape-car.

Jewelers were asked to check their records for any repair work which might have been done on the watch, an inexpensive one of stainless steel.

An anonymous caller telephoned the Glasgow Bulletin last night from Newcastle in northwestern England, identified himself as one of the "liberators" and said the stone was in Scotland "as safe as if it were under lock and key."

Scots nationalists claim as theirs the stone which King Edward I took from Scotland in 1297 to put under the coronation chair as a symbol that Kings of England crowned over it would be Kings of Scotland as well.

Road-Blocks Set Up

Police continued road-blocks and searches of suspicious looking vehicles throughout England, Wales and Scotland. A watch was kept also on weighty objects being put on trains, ships and planes.

But police tend to believe that the stone might never have been taken far from London.

They also are toying with the idea that if Scots pranksters took the stone, it may turn up on New Year Eve, the gay Scots "Hogmanay," for which tens of thousands of men from north of the Tweed mass in and around St. Paul's Cathedral to see the New Year in.

To the "Yard," however, this is an extremely serious business. Those who took the stone might be sent to prison for 10 years on a felony charge. If charged with sacrilege, they might be sentenced to life imprisonment.

King George is being kept advised of the search for the stone, on which he was crowned.

Chief Superintendent Thomas Barrett and other Scotland Yard chiefs held a conference to map further strategy and tactics in the search.

"We are leaving no stone unturned," a spokesman cracked. "But you can imagine what a job we will have if the thieves simply took the stone a few miles outside of London and dumped it on a hillside littered with other rocks."

U. S. Attorney In Louisiana Suspended

Harvey L. Carey was suspended by Attorney General McGrath yesterday from his office as United States attorney for the Western District of Louisiana.

A statement said the Shreveport official was being placed on temporary leave status pending investigation into "allegations concerning the conduct of his office."

The attorney general declined to elaborate.

Tuesday night a newsman had told McGrath there was a report the Justice Department was investigating "an attempt at a bribe" involving a Federal official.

McGrath replied that an official was under investigation. The reporter quoted him as saying: "I think we are on the way toward uncovering an attempt at a bribe. We may know in two or three days."

McGrath said yesterday he did not recall using the word "bribe" but that, since the Carey case "is the only case involving an employe of my department, which has been under investigation, I assumed this was what they were referring to."

McGrath added:

"I do not think it fair to discuss the Louisiana inquiry until it is completed. However, I felt that the matter had gone far enough to justify, in the public interest, my announcement that Carey had been placed on temporary leave status."

The attorney general directed that affairs of the office be taken over temporarily by William J. Fleniken, assistant U. S. Attorney.

Carey had held the office since last August 23. Prior to that, he practiced law for about 10 years in Baton Rouge and Shreveport.

Rail Union Heads Mutter Over Pay Pact

CLEVELAND, Dec. 27 (AP).—Mutterings of dissatisfaction over last week's agreement in the rail dispute arose today from union strongholds.

It had appeared the three-year pact between the railroads and four operating brotherhoods had settled the wage disagreement.

But today James P. Shields, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said final acceptance of the agreement was up to union chairmen on each of the railroads.

Some 125 general chairmen of the engineers' union will meet to consider the pact Thursday.

"I'm not very well satisfied with the agreement," Shields said. "We don't like the three-year moratorium on further wage movements. And there are not sufficient increases for road engineers."

He said he would make no recommendation one way or the other to the general chairmen, however.

At Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a spokesman for the Order of Railway Conductors said "we're not satisfied with the peace pact either."

Chairmen of that union decide on the agreement at a meeting in St. Louis on January 7.

The other two unions involved are the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen.

President David B. Robertson of the Firemen and Enginemen reported he had "no opinions to express on the subject" but added:

"When you're under Government control you take what the Government gives you."

He told reporters he would make no recommendations when the general chairmen of his union meet here January 4.

General chairmen of the trainmen will convene on the same day. W. P. Kennedy, president of that union, declined comment.

The agreement announced by the White House last Thursday provides wage increases for 300,000 railroad workers, retroactive to October 1 and calls for future adjustments based on living costs.

Yardmen were granted a boost of 23 cents hourly with another 2 cents to be added January 1. Road service workers received 5 cents plus 5 more cents on January 1.

It also was agreed that if the Government permits productivity allowances during the national emergency, both sides would get together to consider further wage boosts after July 1, 1952.

The railroads, seized last August 26 to halt a strike of trainmen and conductors, still are under Government control.

Cleaning Firm Fined for Work Law Violation

The Home Laundry Dry Cleaning and Dyeing Co., Inc., 1101 Raum st. ne., was fined $300 yesterday in Municipal Court for violating the eight-hour day law for women.

The fine was imposed by Judge Nadine L. Gallagher after the manager, Louis Boltz, pleaded guilty to failing to keep time records showing lunch hours. The company was fined in November, 1949, for a similar violation.

Standard Drug Co., 3122 14th st. nw., was fined $25 for failing to keep time records showing hours of work by women. J. W. Skelly, manager, pleaded guilty.

New York Critics Give 1950 Laurels To 'All About Eve'

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP).—The movie "All About Eve" today was named the best picture of 1950 by the New York film critics. The star, Bette Davis, was named best actress and the director, Joseph L. Mankiewicz, was cited as the year's best.

Gregory Peck was selected as best actor of the year for his role as an Air Force general in "Twelve O'Clock High."

"All About Eve" dealt with an aging actress and her younger rival.

Gloria Swanson's comeback picture, "Sunset Boulevard," was runner-up in the voting, and one ballot each was cast for "Asphalt Jungle" and "Devil's Doorway."

Senate Committee Probing Politics in RFC

By The Associated Press

Senate investigators said yesterday they are looking into charges of political intrigue in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

A special subcommittee investigating the big Government lending agency disclosed it is inquiring into accusations that an RFC personnel shakeup has been used as an excuse to shelve employes whose political views are not "right."

The inquiry arises in part from the recent resignation of L. B. Glidden, loan manager of the RFC's Dallas (Tex.) office. In a public statement Glidden said he was quitting because his authority had been undercut by a subordinate who boasted of close friendship with one of President Truman's White House aides.

"I am completely fed up with politics and politicians," he declared in the statement.

His resignation came at a time when relations between the White House and the subcommittee, headed by Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.), was reported as none too friendly.

Fulbright recently led a delegation to a closed-door meeting with Mr. Truman. Fulbright since has refused to confirm or deny published reports that he told Mr. Truman then that the Senate will not confirm the five men the President has chosen to constitute the RCF board of directors.

Twice the Senate has refrained from approving the nominations of the five-man board which runs RFC affairs.

Meanwhile the RFC confirmed that John J. Hagerty, whose in-again-out-again career with the agency had caused friction with the subcommittee, is out again.

Hagerty, as manager of the RFC's Boston office, figured in negotiations that led to RFC authorization of a six-million-dollar loan to the Waltham Watch Co. Hagerty then resigned, became Waltham's head, and returned to the RFC payroll after the company went into receivership earlier this year.

A spokesman for the subcommittee told a reporter the group is more interested now, however, in Glidden's accusations and the reasons for an RFC personnel shakeup in the Houston, Tex.; Denver, Detroit and Boston branch offices, and in the RFC headquarters here.

The RFC has described the shakeup as an economy move to cut five million dollars a year from its operating costs.

The subcommittee spokesman, declinging to be named, said his group may call Glidden as a witness at a public hearing.

In his public statement Glidden said that a subordinate, John B. Skiles of the Dallas office, hired with the aid of Donald S. Dawson, an assistant to President Truman, schemed to get Glidden fired.

Glidden said he would have been fired except for protests from some Texas businessmen and bankers. Instead, he said, he was ordered transferred to Houston but resigned, instead.

Civil Defense Officers Ordered For Virginians

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 27 (AP).—The State Office of Civilian Defense today called on Virginia localities to appoint three key officers "immediately" for their local defense organizations.

Each city and county was instructed to name a plant protection officer, a chief warden and a communications officer.

In a directive to directors and coordinators of local defense in Virginia, State Defense Coordinator J. H. Wyse said that "each of these officers will be needed in organizing your defense and we request that this be done just as quickly as possible."

Kirk's Twin Nephews Enlist in Air Force

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 27 (AP).—Twin nephews of United States Ambassador to Russia, Alan G. Kirk, enlisted in the United States Air Force today.

They are Donald G. and Richard A. Kirk, both 20, of Morristown.

Recruiting officers said the youths, identical in appearance, also made identical scores on exams to qualify as Air Force cadets.

Contract Awarded On Glebe Rd. Job

A contract to improve seven-tenths of a mile of Glebe rd. in Arlington County has been awarded to W. H. Armstrong Co. of Washington on a low bid of $334,757, the State Highway Commission announced yesterday.

The improvement between Washington blvd. and N. Henderson rd. will replace the present two-lane Glebe rd. with two 22-foot concrete lanes and add curbs, gutters, sidewalks, and landscaping. It also will eliminate a dogleg where Glebe rd. intersects Wilson blvd.

Mrs. Mesta's Niece Engaged In Luxembourg

A ROMANCE which began at the White House two years ago and flowered at the United States Legation in Luxembourg will culminate in marriage in the spring.

The bride-to-be is Mrs. Harriet Elizabeth Tyson Lyeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Tyson of Boston and Newport, and the niece of Mrs. Perle Mesta, United States Minister to Luxembourg. The prospective bridegroom is Maj. Lewis Ellis, Assistant Air Attache of the Luxembourg Legation. The couple first met at a New Year's Eve party where they were introduced by Margaret Truman.

Betty Tyson, as she's more frequently called, has been living in Luxembourg with her small daughter for the past year. She has an apartment near the legation. Betty made her debut at a large and lavish ball at Newport in 1945 and the following year was married to J. Richardson Lyeth of Detroit. She received her divorce in 1948.

ONE SOLUTION—

Washington Post Want Ads

• Now that all the tinsel and tissue paper have been swept away, you may find some of your families' Christmas presents presenting problems similar to the ones above.

• Don't send these discarded articles to the attic, and waste valuable storage space keeping things you'll never need. It's easier and more economical to place them in a Washington Post want ad, and turn them all into cash. That cash could come in mighty handy to take care of any bills that might have run up during the Christmas shopping season.

• No matter how useless a discarded article might be for you, if it's in good condition, someone else can use it. And they'd be willing to pay good green dollars to come and take it off your hands.

• So get rid of unneeded items at a profit. Place a Washington Post want ad at once, by calling NAtional 4200. Ask for Classified. A trained ad writer will help you word your ad for maximum results.

Tydings' Dance Touches Off Gala Round

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

FORMER AMBASSADOR and Mrs. Joseph Davies and Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings entertained at a dance last evening at the Chevy Chase Club for Mr. Davies' granddaughter and Senator and Mrs. Tydings' daughter, Eleanor.

The party for this most-feted debutante of the season had originally been planned as a large and lavish ball to be held at the Mayflower for young people and the many friends of both the Davies and the Tydings. The ballroom and adjoining rooms had been engaged two years in advance. Meyer Davies and his orchestra also had saved the date many months ago. A large number of guests were expected from out of town and almost every feminine guest had ordered a new gown.

Then, last week Mr. and Mrs. Davies and Senator and Mrs. Tydings, after careful consideration, issued a statement that world conditions and the national emergency made it advisable to cancel plans for a big party. And instead, only young people would be asked to the dance.

MEYER DAVIS kept his date to play; wrote a song dedicated to "Ellie" Tydings which was played and sung last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Davies also gave a buffet supper before the dance with Mrs. Davies' granddaughter, Miss Marjorie Durant, as honor guest.

Mrs. Dwight Davis kept a dinner date, also. She entertained for her postdeb granddaughter, Sheila Morton Smith, and for Miss Tydings with some 40 other young people in the group. Miss Mathilde Johnson, a debutante in Baltimore this season, was among those from out-of-town at Mrs. Davis' dinner.

Miss Smith, standing with her grandmother as guests arrived, wore a bouffant pink tulle gown from Paris, with pink roses on the skirt and pale blue ribbon sash.

ELEANOR TYDINGS, as blond and pretty as her mother, was enchanting in white tulle, with a wide, wide, skirt and tight silver bodice embroidered in red jewels. She held a round, old fashioned bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

To the dance for Eleanor, Mrs. Tydings wore her daughter's favorite gown—a period frock of emerald green satin. Mrs. Davis was in pale blue.

MISS ROSE HILDRETH BULLARD was presented yesterday by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Dexter Means Bullard. Older friends as well as young were invited to a tea dance at the Chevy Chase Club from 5 to 7 p. m.

The debutante received standing with her mother before a screen of holly by the fireplace. Miss Bullard's gown was of shell pink lace with a corsage of sweetheart roses pinned at the waist. Her mother wore a gown of blue lace with bronze shoes and bronze orchids.

MRS. MILLARD TYDINGS AND DAUGHTER ELEANOR
. . . Chevy Chase Club dance instead of formal debut

The large center room of the clubroom was given over to dancing to the music of Meyer Davis and his orchestra. Green boughs and bright red ribbon decked the white panelled walls, and a fat Christmas tree stood in the entrance hall.

IN ANOTHER ROOM, refreshments were served from a buffet centered with red poinsettias and white candles. Friends of Mrs. Bullard who took a turn at presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Wilson L. Townsend, Mrs. James Parker Nolan, Mrs. William Carter Bowles, Mrs. Minier Hostetter, Mrs. Valcoulon L. Ellicott and Mrs. Clyde M. Stout.

MISS SARAH ROBINSON made her bow to society yesterday at a tea dance given by her parents, Maj. Gen. Clinton F. Robinson, USA (ret.), and Mrs. Robinson. The dance was at Fort Lesley J. McNair Officers Club from 5 to 7 p. m. Sidney's orchestra played and the ballroom was decorated with wreaths of holly and a brightly lighted Christmas tree.

The debutante received with her mother standing before a screen of flowers. Miss Robinson's frock was of white nylon tulle with bouffant skirt patterned in sequins and rhinestones, and she carried a colonial bouquet of sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots. Mrs. Robinson wore an olive green brocade gown with slight train and bustle back caught with roses. Rose slippers and a rose tulle stole completed her costume.

The party was well attended by members of the young set, including many of the season's debutantes. In the group of older friends were many officials and servicemen and their wives.

FOR HER DEBUT tea dance yesterday at the Columbia Country Club, blonde and blue-eyed Bette-Barron Smith wore an ankle-length white lace frock fashioned with double peplums and tiny sleeves, which she detached to make a strapless gown when she went on to Eleanor Tydings' debut ball at the Chevy Chase Club.

Miss Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Louis Smith, accented her costume with pale blue satin slippers and wore a lei of white carnations flown from Hawaii as the gift of Mr. and Mrs. William Dougherty. Her uncle, Vinson Guntzer, also sent an Hawaiian lei which she wore part of the afternoon.

Mrs. Smith's gown was dark brown lace over ice blue satin with ice blue satin slippers and she had pinned a brace of brown orchids at the shoulder.

A dozen girls served as assistants to the debutante and a matching number of young men made up a floor committee. In the first group were Miss Louise Cahill, Miss Nancy Kear, Miss Mary Ann Robb, Miss Peggy Hines, Miss Joan Conger, all this season's debs; Miss Elizabeth Phelps Silver, Miss Elizabeth MacGowan and Miss Margaret Smith, sister of the debutante, from the postdeb set; Paula Steward, Anne Showell and subdeb Ilse Scholten, all wearing wristbands of white carnations.

FOLLOWING THE TEA, Mr. and Mrs. Smith entertained their daughter, her assistants and the floor committee at dinner in the Palladian Room of the Shoreham.

Among out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. L. Francis Carr and their son, Louis Carr, and Mr. and Mrs. George Harvey Porter 3d of Baltimore. Frank Barron, grandfather of Miss Smith, who lives in Alexandria, attended the party, and Miss Smith's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Smith, were also there.

Bette-Baron, known to her friends as B-B, was graduated in June from Holton-Arms School and is in her freshman year at Sweet Briar.

THREE DEBUTANTES were honored yesterday at a tea given at the Colonial Dames clubhouse on S. St. The hostess was Mrs. Harry Robinson, and the honorees were Miss Jane McAtee, Miss Margaret Wall (Peggy) Hines and Miss Sarah Zantzinger, all granddaughters of Colonial Dames.

Miss McAtee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Camden Riley McAtee, and her grandmother was Mrs. George Whitecotton. Miss Hines is the daughter of Mrs. Frances Wall Hines and the granddaughter of Mrs. Joseph Stiles Wall. Sarah Zantzinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Chew Zantzinger, is the granddaughter of the late Mrs. Devereux Green.

PARTY PARADE:

THE PARTY given yesterday by Clovis McSoud at his 16th st. apartment marked two important occasions. A portrait of Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of the Associate Justice, was unveiled, and the host's engagement was announced.

Mr. McSoud, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McSoud of Lebanon, will marry Miss Rosemary Curry, daughter of Mrs. Mary Saba Curry of Johnstown, Pa., formerly of Lebanon. No definite date has been set for the wedding.

At yesterday's party, Miss Curry and Mrs. William B. Allen, jr., were hostesses. Saliba Douhihy, artist of the portrait, was among the guests, and Miss Mildred Douglas unveiled her mother's portrait. After the announcement and unveiling, cocktails were served with Arabic hors d'oeuvres.

MR. AND MRS. Arthur Middleton Hill, who canceled the dinner which they were to have given before the Tydings dance last night, had dining with them Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, here for a short stay from New York.

MIDDLE AISLE

MR. AND MRS. Daniel E. Collingwood of Silver Spring, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Bernice Blease, to Lieut. (j. g.) Richard Edwards Rumble, USN, son of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cyril A. Rumble of Chevy Chase. The wedding will take place in June.

Ambassador Gifford's Wife Meets the London Press

LONDON, Dec. 27 (AP).—Mrs. Walter S. Gifford, wife of the new U. S. Ambassador to Britain, created a diplomatic precedent of sorts today by holding a full dress news conference.

Normally the wives of Ambassadors prefer to be seen and not heard in this city, where diplomacy is a delicate and highly responsible occupation.

But the new Ambassador's wife is big news to the British press and so many journalists had sought to meet her that she decided to meet the whole group at once.

In the drawing rom of her new home in Prince's Gate, she welcomed photographers and stood up to questioning by 35 newspaper men and women.

"My name is Augustine and let's have no more confusion about that," she said. "I am not very interesting. I was born and reared in New York. I am the Ambassador's second wife and, between us, we have 10 grandchildren."

For the conference she wore a simple afternoon gown, a single string of pearls about her neck, pearl earrings and a diamond-decorated wrist watch. Her graying black hair was swept off her forehead in waves to the left.

Jean Benton, W. M. Waterous Married at St. Margaret's

MISS Jean Elizabeth Benton and Willard Mills Waterous were married yesterday in St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Malcolm Marshall officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John E. Benton of Chevy Chase, Md., and the late Mr. Benton. Her husband is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Willard H. Waterous of Manila, Philippines, and Stanford, Calif.

A RECEPTION followed the ceremony at the Mayflower Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Waterous will reside in Kingscote Gardens, Stanford University, Calif.

The bride is a graduate of the National Cathedral School and of Mount Holyoke College. She received her master's degree from George Washington University where she is now working toward her doctorate in history.

Her husband is a graduate of Williston Academy and Harvard University and received his M. A. degree from Columbia University. He is assistant dean of men and foreign student adviser at Stanford University. During the war he served as lieutenant in the Navy in the Pacific.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Childless in 23 Years' Marriage, Wife of Doctor Asks Objective Slant on Her Husband's Latterday Sentimental Interest in His Longtime Office Girl

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My doctor husband is a general practitioner in our small town, and he has his offices in our house. We have been married 23 years. We have no children. I have worked very hard with my home and church and clubs to further my husband's interests. I am considered a good cook and homemaker; and my home and husband have always led my list of interests.

For some time John has been finding fault with my cooking and other things I know I do well. In short, I cannot please him any more. He doesn't care if we never see anyone socially, and when he's not busy in the evenings he just goes to bed and leaves me sitting up.

He has an office girl, now 28, who has been with him about seven years. He spends an endless amount of time talking over the girl's affairs with her, straightening out any difficulties for her, and I have come upon them when she was literally crying on his shoulder. At his suggestion we've taken her with us many times on social excursions; have introduced her to men and have fed her and her boy friends.

She has her morning coffee when we have breakfast, and more coffee several times during the day. John's only interest seems to be insuring her every comfort. Talking to him about all this just makes him angry; and of course in his eyes I'm the jealous wife. I have kept my figure and look 35 instead of almost 50. I am considered attractive and people like me. But what's wrong?

I am not possessive, and I try to do as John wishes. But I feel I am getting the brush-off and I don't like it. I am not desperate but would appreciate your viewpoint. I don't relish my own reflections at this time.

C. D.

DEAR C. D.: When you take John to task about this unseemly sentimental coddling of Betty (let's call her), he gets angry involuntarily, as a defensive reaction, because he feels guilty and anxious about the triangle. His conscience—or his sense of "what people would say"—tells him that his conduct is censurable. But on the other hand, he feels that both you and Betty mean too much to him, in entirely different ways, for him to dispense with either relationship. Maybe he hasn't thought it through, but that is the gist of his conflicted emotional drive.

It appears that Betty has intercepted the love that John once gave you. In consequence, the emotional climate of your marriage has cooled to mutual indifference, I think; for it is my impression that you've never felt very intensely about him. That is, you probably never were head-over-heels "in love" with him, in the yearning Romeo-Juliet manner. And I doubt that you've ever loved him truly,—i. e., with warmhearted aware acceptance of his personality, his special combination of needs and virtues and shortcomings.

The very candor of John's endless attentions to Betty nowadays suggests that he must have been an ardently attentive suitor and tenderly thoughtful husband in relation to you, in other years. This is his way of reaching out for psychological closeness to the person he loves; and I gather you've always been more strongly self-reliant in attitude than eager for—or seemingly needful of—that kind of coddling. That's where you differ from Betty. She eats it up. She campaigns for it, encourages John to play God in her affairs, and by her dependent attitude gives his ego a great puff.

It is my guess that Betty's parasitical technique hooks John chiefly because it makes him feel superior to her, whereas with you he may always have felt apologetically inferior, vaguely incompetent, by comparison. Perhaps he has long assumed that he might have been a failure, professionally or economically, if it weren't for your strong enterprise in organizing community support for him,—building for him a clientele, and personal prestige, in church and club and social circles. Or perhaps this has been more your conviction than his,—and if so, it would leave him even more vulnerable to Betty's clinging vine tactics.

Even now it appears that you are striving to maintain an aloof superior attitude towards the problem of John's involvement with Betty. Though you hint at wry displeasure, you aren't desperate, you say. Why not? It is hardly human to be so bland in the circumstances. I should think you'd be suffering greatly, from inner loneliness, rage at the interloper, etc., if your husband means anything to you. The fact that you fancy yourself to be emotionally above the storm suggests that you're unconsciously steeled against caring deeply for anybody,—doubtless for fear of getting hurt. And probably this is "what's wrong" in the conjugal relationship. To get your bearings, study "The Challenge of Marriage" (Duell, Sloan & Pearce), an absorbing book by Dr. Rudolf Dreikurs.

Experiment Agnes

Eye Makeup Needed to Go With Glasses

By Ann Lawrence

(First day of Agnes' beauty program.)

AT FIRST GLANCE, there didn't seem to be so much wrong with Agnes to warrant her being chosen as an experiment subject. In her early 20s, she stands about 5' 8" and is a little overweight, although she is fairly well proportioned. But like most girls and women who are aware of themselves and the impressions they make on society, Agnes thought there was room for improvement—and there was.

Her hair, a pretty brown shade with a faint red glint and several gray hairs in the back, has a slight curl but Agnes wore it, as shown in the picture, in too much of a "down" manner. Her face, which is long anyway, is thus made to seem even longer. And because her hair grows too far forward on her temples, it narrows an area that needs width to help foreshorten her face.

BUT THE MOST important thing that Agnes needs is a lesson in makeup. She is required to wear eye-glasses all the time and she had come to the conclusion that she had "a stupid look" when she applied makeup to her eyes. She was aware that eye makeup is an essential for eye-glass wearers because reflected light on the lenses often seems to blank out eyes and make them wishy-washy looking.

So this is what we decided to do. First we would restyle her hair in a way that would take away from the length in her face and bleach off the hair that grew too low on her forehead; then we would teach her how to make up so that her eyes would look alive behind her glasses; and thirdly, we would make a change in the shape of her eyeglass frames. Her own are lacking in sufficient width, although they are not disfiguring in any way.

Here's How to Bake the Light, Yeast Cake Once Sold by the Lady of Bath

DEAR ANNE:

As a child, I used to eat Sally Lunn at my grandmother's house. Can you tell me how to make it? I suppose it would be termed a sort of coffee cake now, though it did not have sugar on top.

T. W., Bethesda, Md.

Sally Lunn, I understand, was originally named for a woman of Bath, England, who sold this bread (or cake) on the street. Sometimes it is baked in a shallow loaf pan and served in squares, sometimes in muffin pans.

SALLY LUNN

1 yeast cake
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
3 eggs, well-beaten
3¾ cups sifted flour

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk and add butter, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm, then add softened yeast and eggs. Add flour and beat well. Let rise until light. Beat well and fill greased muffin pans 2/3 full (or shallow loaf pans). Let rise again and bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for about 20 minutes.

DEAR ANNE:

What can I do to remove the musty, moldy odor from trunks? We are moving and the clothes we'll put in them will remain stored for almost three months. How can the clothing be protected?

A. D. C., Silver Spring, Md.

Open the trunks, empty them, and air thoroughly in a warm, dry room. Spraying with the mildew-prevention solution sold in housewares' department will also help. Then, if you pack the clothes with moth flakes, you'll have still another deodorizing influence.

DEAR ANNE:

There are two things Mrs. P. M. (who wrote about her husband's wool underwear making him crabby) can do: One is to have him wear a suit of light cotton underwear next to his skin. The other is to get underwear that is woven in two thicknesses—cotton next to the skin and wool on the outside.

G. S., Washington.

The Stars Are Faded

Do you remember what you said . . . One evening long ago . . . When stars were in the sky and when . . . We sauntered in the snow? . . . Do you remember, darling, that . . . You gave your love to me . . . And that you told me it would last . . . For all eternity? . . . You said it would not matter if . . . The world should disappear . . . Your heart would still be faithful and . . . Your love would be sincere . . . But now the stars are faded and . . . The snow is not the same . . . And empty is the echo when . . . I call your gentle name . . . The shadows lengthen in the night . . . The dawn is cold and gray . . . And I must wonder to myself . . . Why did you go away?

Beer and TV To Be in New Costs Index

By the United Press

The Bureau of Labor Statistics disclosed yesterday that early next year it will start including the cost of beer, television sets and baby foods in computing its cost of living index.

Bureau Commissioner Ewan Clague told a news conferene that other commodities to be considered in the revised index include frozen foods, layer cakes, cola drinks, ice cream and group hospitalization premiums.

The changes are intended to make the index reflect more closely the commodities an average family actually buys.

Wages of more than 1,500,000 workers, mostly in the auto industry, are tied to the index. They slide up and down as it fluctuates. Clague said including the new itms "theoretically" will not affect such contracts, although it may change the speed with which the index moves.

In other economic developments:

The National Production Authority tightened controls over military and civilian use of cadmium to conserve supplies and non-defense use of aluminum by slightly relaxed an order cutting 35 percent in March. The latter move was to permit aluminum users to find substitutes.

Dun & Bradstreet reported in New York that the average price of wholesale foods rose this week to the highest level in more than two years. It increased 10 cents to $6.90, compared to $6.80 a week ago and $5.72 a year ago.

Iron age, metal-working weekly publication, predicted that the government will impose mandatory price controls on steel as soon as it has the machinery to enforce them.

Cadmium, when mixed with other metals, has special corrosion-resisting qualities which make it valuable as a coating for alloys. It has not substitute.

The NPA issued a long list of military and essential civilian products for which it may be used, including pigments for special types of luminescent paint, ink, paper, plastics and coatings; electronic tube parts, alloys for fire protective systems, safety devices and electrical fuses.

After January 1, it may not be use dfor any product not appearing on the list. The order also limited cadmium inventories to a 30-day supply.

The NPA also ruled that in March certain manufacturers and assemblers of finished products may use 75 percent as much aluminum as they averaged in the first six months of this year, provided it goes into functional parts and does not exceed 1 percent of the product's total weight.

The revision of the cost-of-living index is part of a full-scale over-hauling the Bureau of Labor Statistics started last year. The task is expected to be completed in the summer of 1952.

Clague said that within two weeks the bureau will start a wide survey of family spending habits. More than 17,000 families in 91 cities will be asked questions about their incomes and what they put into their market baskets in 1950.

Bulgarian Poet Foresees War Ruin For White House

BELGRADE, Dec. 27 (NYHT).—A prediction that the White House in Washington will be devastated in another world war has appeared in the official organ of the Bulgarian Communist Party in Sofia.

The prediction was made during the current Soviet peace drive in the Bulgarian capital and appeared over the signature of the poet Angel Todorov in Rabotnichesko Delo, the nation's leading paper.

The poet voiced the idea in a rhyme entitled "Standing Before the Destroyed Reichschancellery in Berlin." After reviewing Hitler's criminality, he reviled the present Western enemies of the Soviet Union as "criminals" worse than the Nazi dictator.

Addressing himself to Americans, he said: "I clearly see the day when you will stand in turn before the ruins of the White House in Washington."

Balances Due U. N. Settled by Soviet And 2 Satellites

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 27 (AP).—Russia and three Soviet bloc countries paid nearly two million dollars to the United Nations since November 30 on their 1950 U. N. assessments, according to figures released today.

The Russians paid $1,612,575.50, cleaning up the balance of the Soviet assessment of $2,166,378.

The Soviet Ukraine and White Russia also settled up their balance with payments of $215,271 and $59,432.50 respectively. Poland made a part payment of $100,000 on her $300,776 balance.

Czechoslovakia still owes a balance of $191,005.34.

The paid-up United States assessment for 1950 was $13,596,243.

Most of the other U. N. members still owe 1950 balances, ranging from $2557 for Liberia to $2,028,368 for Nationalist China. The Chinese paid only $21,832 of their $2,050,200 assessment, the report showed.

Communist Convention Opens in New York

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (NYHT).—The Communist Party of the United States, by its own admission worried about what it calls "liquidationist tendencies" within the party and with most of its top leaders facing jail terms, opened its fifteenth biennial convention here tonight.

The convention, which will continue through Saturday, began with three public rallies. They were the only chance the public will have to see the Communist deliberations.

Coast Guard Tightens Its Security Rule

By The Associated Press

By the Coast Guard's order, all maritime workers became subject yesterday to a security clearance system designed to safeguard America's ships and harbors from sabotage and spying.

All seamen on United States vessels will be required to have security cards, as will all dock workers who wish to enter waterfront areas designated as restricted by captains of the port. The Coast Guard can deny those cards if there are "reasonable grounds" to believe that the applicant has a subversive record or connection. The Coast Guard already is checking foreign ships and their personnel in the anti-sabotage, anti-subversion program.

Vice Admiral Merlin O'Neill, Coast Guard commandant, ordered the new clearance system into effect immediately, even though the reaction of two maritime chiefs to the original draft of the regulations was a threat to strike.

Changes Fail to Satisfy

The final form of the regulations varies considerably from the original wording, but there was no immediate assurance that the changes would satisfy the men who voiced the strike threats—Harry Bridges, head of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU), which claims 70,000 members, and Hugh Bryson, jr., chief of the 10,000-member Marine Cooks and Stewards Union (MCSU).

Both of those unions are active on the West Coast, and both were expelled from the CIO earlier this year on charges of following the Communist Party program.

Bryson said he wanted to analyze the regulations before issuing a formal statement. Meanwhile, he said:

"If the final authority on whether a man can make a living going to sea is up to the Coast Guard Commandant, then the whole thing is a farce."

Emergency Conference

Morris Watson, a spokesman for Bridges' union, said West Coast longshoremen are not going to apply for security cards before January 11, when the union will hold an emergency conference on the regulations at Longview, Wash.

In the meantime, Watson said, "Longshoremen aren't going to commit any sabotage."

Bridges and Bryson objected strongly to several of the proposed provisions at hearings here a month ago. They threatened to lead their unions out on strike if the regulations were not reworded to suit them.

They found particular fault with a proposal which would have denied security cards to a worker "when reasonable grounds are found to warrant the belief that such person is affiliated with, or sympathetic to, any organization, group or combination of persons subversive or disloyal to the Government of the United States."

Bridges, backed by Bryson, argued that this wording was so vague and general that no man could defend himself against such a charge.

Lodge Says U. S. 'Cannot Deliver' On Big Promises

BOSTON, Dec. 27 (AP).—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.), said today the United States "can't deliver" on the promise to "stop aggression at any place and at any time."

"We've got to pull in our horns," Lodge declared in a speech before the Boston Rotary Club. "In the future we must get as strong as possible and as fast as possible."

Lodge criticized the "error of making big statements and big commitments without the strength to back them up." He called it one of the mistakes of United States foreign policy.

"Take the U.N. for instance," he continued. "Where is its force when it comes time to stop aggression? The United States had to put up five-sixths of the U.N. forces finally.

"That was enough for Korea but inadequate for the Chinese Reds. We have promised to stop aggression any place, any time. But we can't deliver."

Studebaker Plans Car Output Cut

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 27 (U.P.).—Studebaker Corp. said today it will cut production of cars and trucks 20 percent in January because of civilian use of defense materials.

Harold S. Vance, board chairman and president, said the auto plant will operate four days a week. The truck plant will remain on a five-day schedule but lay off 20 percent of its workers.

Most of those idled will be absorbed in production of military trucks, Vance said.

Walter Winchell ... In New York

Memos of a Girl Friday

Dear Mr. W: If the following is ever confirmed, it will make General MacArthur a bigger man than ever. Pentagon friends offer this explanation for his slogan: "The boys will be home for Christmas!" . . . MacArthur, they say, shouted it to the world with the hope the Chinese Reds would know we had no intention of invading Manchuria. A sort of public relations angle. Which didn't jell . . . The Republican dilemma on Mr. Acheson is Who to replace him? I hear the Secy. of State will adopt the GOPlatform and try to weather the gale. White Housers still think if Acheson steps down, the post will go to Harriman . . . Dewey men are canvassing Wall Street firms for backers. Does this mean the Governor thinks he can win a third try? . . . The papers just discovered that Italy's Red chief Togliatti is tepeeing with his mistress and that his wife filed for divorce. We used that in May.

The Mayor now hopes to assume leadership of the Democratic Party in N. Y. C. . . . This year's election registration books (out soon) will show that Impellitteri is not enrolled as a Democrat . . . The Miguelito Valdez's are straining at the leash . . . Julie Donahue Higgins, kin of the 5&10 family, and S. Wagstaff are reported altar-shopping . . . The Joe DiMaggio-Dorothy Arnold (his ex-wife) rumors of a re-sealing are rated so much talkee-talk by pals . . . How come no one's reported that "The Thing" song and "I'm a Rambling Wreck from Georgia Tech" are practickly the same difference?

The Chicago man who paid $2500 for Mr. Truman's intemperate letter to Cong. McDonough (about the Marines) agreed not to sell it until after the elections. He now offers it "to help some worthy cause," but his provisions are these: $500 to an attorney, $1000 to a Chicago group and $2500 to himself! How charitable can you get? . . . Woman's Home Companion got Noel Coward's plum. Its a novelette . . . There's an "All About Eve" sitcheeayshun at one of the big mags. In the fiction dep't. . . . "Bushel and a Peck" reached No. 1 on the Hit Parade. The first tune from a B'way hit to make the top slot since "Enchanted Eve'g" . . . Myrna Loy's so maaad about the guy she's settling in Washington, instead of commuting.

How objective can you get? Goodman Ace wrote a love letter in his radio col'm in Sat. Review of Lit. on NBC's "The Big Show." Not once did he mention that he is the chief writer of that program . . . A Coast col'm credits Betty Hutton with this slogan for the community chest: "Don't Give 'Til It Hurts—Give. 'Til It Feels Good!" That's ours, too, dearie . . . "Guys and Dolls" gives its big Runyon Fund performance January 28. That's a Sunday night. $100 per ticket . . . The Stork Club program will soon be kinescoped . . . Is it true you start on teevy in October? That's the talk.

Well, I've finally straightened out that K. Hepburn argument. We three were right. The calla lilies line was originally in Katie's great flop, "The Lake." When she did the film, "Stage Door," a scene had her making her entrance exclaiming: "Hello mother, hello father, the calla lilies are in bloom again!" The legend is that Kate put it in "Stage Door" as a thumb-to-the-nose at the N. Y. critics who panned her in "The Lake." If true, that's a wonderful bit of theatricalia.

Big talk around town that Sullivan County, the heart of the Borscht Belt, will be the preferred metropolitan evacuation area. Accommodations for 700,000 are virtually unused during winter . . . I am told that all the stuff linking Lord Tony Furness to this and that girl is hokum. That the girl he likes most is Stella Boyd of Canada . . . Ronnie Graham, the comic at Le Ruban Bleu, weds Singer Ellen Hanley right after 1951 commences . . . No wonder actors go broke: Sardi's now charges 50c for a cuppacawfee at supper and as much for cake . . . Oh, no! Not in Variety, too? A teevy review included: "One scene was truncated by bad camera work." He means it was cut off.

Lord Rothemere, boss of the London Daily Mail, is toying with a Quick-like mag for Britain . . . Harper's has asked J. Gunther to do some fast rewriting on his MacArthur book, due in a few weeks. The title was changed from "Caesar of the Pacific" to "The Riddle of MacArthur" . . . Communist artist Picasso's London exhibit, I hear, was a huge flop. Sold only 14 of the 89 paintings on view . . . Yolande Donland, just voted England's "most promising actress," is Yankee Doodle . . . The F. Scott Fitzgerald revival is so intense that 3 mags (Life, Atlantic Monthly and Partisan Review) are publishing parts of the same book. It's Arthur Mizener's biog . . . The Max Schmelings are giving it a final attempt. She prefers to monitor their farm of chickens. He prefers the more popular brand.

We are getting great response for Runyon Fund down-front theater tickets in Chicago. The shows there giving us seats are "S. Pacific," "Red, White and Blue," "The Rose Tattoo" and Ballet Theater . . . Pocket Books and Simon & Schuster will give the Runyon Fund 50c from every $1 you receive from readers. The $1 will send 8 books (from novels to whodunits, etc.) to our troops overseas and in camps here. Not sent to individuals—but to all our warriors via the Dept. of Defense. Sounds great. Get it started now . . . There's been little excitement in the Scotch & Sodull Set over who'll be Deb of the Year. That's because none hired press agents . . . Talk about gilding lilies. Edith Piaf is taking vocal lessons. Wants to make like Dinah Shore.

Lots of applause on your suggestion Sunday night that Moscow, Idaho, change its name to Free Moscow, Idaho, to show the difference between Stalin's slave capital . . . I know everyone's had a crack at this, but they now insist Police Commissioner Murphy will retire January 15 . . . Have you ever heard Rita Montoya sing? She's at the Lombardy, Miami Beach, now. Real good.

In its entire 48 years Red Book has never had a movie star on its cover. Ava Gardner will be the first on the February front . . . That reminds me of cover girl Jeanne Williams, now a show-gal in "Bless You All." She gets more fan mail than the stars in it . . . Wanna boost a worthy group? Well, the Actors Fund of America expended over $258,000 assisting the ill, aged and distressed among showfolks this ye . That's more than it takes in! . . . Nijinski's widow is at the St. Moritz. Starts a lecture trail soon . . . Benay Venuta's divorce terms give her custody of the tots, provided she doesn't leave California for more than 6 weeks yearly. That keeps her from taking a Broadway show offer . . . Do you care a hang to be reminded that I started slaving for you in December, 1932? Hmmm, I thawtnut . . . After a 3-year separation, the Jose Morands have reconciled. He's Cugat's partner . . . Didjez see that thing in Variety about a Minneapolis nonsensor? He made them change a film's title from "The Damned Don't Cry" to "The Darned Don't Cry." That's damb silly . . . Then there's the new baby-talk song rage in Britain called: "I Taut I Saw a Puddy Tat" . . . Oh, Dahdeee! I wanna wowwypop!—Your Girl Friday.

Governor Denies Clemency Plea; Slayer Takes Life

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27 (AP).—Edward L. Grear had been in a death cell at the Maryland penitentiary for 18 months while the wheels of justice piled over his conviction on a charge of killing a policeman.

Last night the prison radio reported Governor William P. Lane had signed a death warrant and set the execution for January 27. Grear heard the broadcast.

This morning, the 45-year-old man was found dead in his cell. He had slashed his throat with half of a razor blade.

It was the same way another police killer, Roy Arnold Woods, had committed suicide on July 7, 1949, a few hours before he was to be hanged. Grear had been in the death house two weeks then.

A guard was assigned in front of Grear's cell as soon as the radio broadcast was heard in the prison. The guard said his first indication that anything was wrong was when he heard " a strange noise, like a man strangling."

Upon entering the cell, he found Grear dying from two deep gashes in his neck. Grear died an hour later.

Grear was sentenced to die for the fatal shooting of Patrolman John Arnold on December 12, 1948. Governor Lane said there was "no justifiable reason" for him to change it.

Guards said Grear stayed up until 4:30 o'clock this morning reading a Bible. After his death, they found in the book a piece of scrap paper on which was written: "God has answered my prayers."

Firemen saved the child—and the mother also is doing nicely, thank you.

Penn Daw Firemen Joe Allen and Chester Chinn took the ambulance along when fellow firefighters answered a 7 a. m. alarm yesterday.

They arrived at the Fairfax County home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown just in time to deliver a healthy baby girl at 7:25 a. m.

Both mother and daughter are resting comfortably in Alexandria Hospital while Allen and Chinn are pondering how they can get a faster start next time.

'Hear It Now'

Murrow 'Magazine' A Great Radio Idea

By John Crosby

"ALL THE VOICES and sound you will hear are real and are presented as they were spoken in the heat and confusion of a world in crisis," says the announcer at the opening of "Hear It Now" (CBS-WTOP, 10 p. m. Fridays). While I wish he'd clean up that sentence a bit, that is the essence of this admirable hour-long program which is "a document for ear" (their own phrase), a weekly news magazine of the air and a logical extension of the very successful phonograph album series, "I Can Hear It Now."

CROSBY

"Hear It Now" is produced by the same capable team, Edward R. Murrow and Fred Friendly, who produced the records, and has been assigned an excellent and highly salable time at no little sacrifice, because CBS feels that the people cannot afford not to be well-informed in these hazardous times.

The first one opened with a lucid and concise summation by narrator Murrow of the Marine retreat from the Changjin Reservoir, which was interspersed with comments from Marines recorded in the field. "Like bees they came up at us. Must have been a million of them. How we got out I'll never know. God must have been with us. As for those who didn't get out—God must have been with them, too, because they were dead," in the understated, flat tones of the fighting man.

FROM THE FIGHTING FRONT, Murrow switched abruptly and sternly to what he described as "the arena of words," Lake Success. "The staccato high-pitched voice of Red China's General Wu . . . a barrage of words and unending paragraphs . . . disturbingly like an Oriental Vishinsky." The voice of Wu, speaking Chinese, high pitched, staccato in the background. Then Malik, in Russian, and his infuriating Soviet doubletalk, his interpreter putting it into something that resembled English.

General of the Army Marshall: "The military situation is grave, more grave I fear than the difficult days eight years ago."

A newsboy shouting: "Morning papers! Get ya morning papers . . ." And then a very angry woman newsdealer explaining why she doesn't want to sell The Daily Worker any more.

President Truman's letters: . . . "violent, quarrelsome and astonishingly indiscreet," said Don Hollenbeck, referring not to Truman but to Andrew Jackson. He went on to review Truman's letters not only to Paul Hume, the music critic of The Washington Post, but also the ones about John L. Lewis and the Marines.

THE TRIVIAL SECTION. Faye Emerson got married. The Elizabeth Taylors separated. The Duchess of Windsor counteracted rumors by kissing her husband (the Duke) eight times on the gangplank.

Criticism. Bill Leonard introduced a new wrinkle—and a good one—into movie criticism by running a brief excerpt from the sound track of "Born Yesterday," with Judy Holliday and William Holden, which depicted far better than words the magnificent defiance to literacy of the illiterate female in that play.

"Hear It Now" has struck a note of integrity which, I deeply feel, people will rally around as to a bell. I have two criticisms. It is taking in too large a territory for a single hour. It is not critical enough. The program very definitely has a point of view but, once established, it hedges around a bit, trying not to offend people. Editorially, "Hear It Now" should take off its gloves and swing, once it has decided where it wants to swing.

Migrants Not Eligible

About 850,000 Farm Workers Covered by New Security Act

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

(Fifth in Series)

An estimated 850,000 farm workers will begin paying Social Security tax next week in order to reap retirement benefits later on.

Not all farm employes will be covered. Migratory and casual workers and others who change jobs frequently will not be eligible. Eligibility will be determined by the $50, 60-day" test. This is how it works:

1. Has the farmhand been employed for a full calendar quarter? If so, he has completed the so-called "qualifying quarter." No deductions are made in this period.

2. In the next three months, is he employed by the same farmer for 60 days and paid at least $50 in cash? If so, deductions are made during this period. Room and board are not counted in this sum.

The three-month periods of the test start in January, April, July or October.

One unusual requirement in the Social Security coverage of an agricultural worker is that if the worker leaves one employer to work for another, or works less than 60 days during a quarter he must again serve the "qualifying quarter" before he is "regularly employed" and subject to the tax.

Farmer Jones hires John Doe from October through December, 1950. This is a "qualifying quarter."

In the next quarter, January 1 through March 31, 1951, Doe works on Jones' farm for 65 days on a full-time basis and earns $300. The $300 is taxed because now Doe is considered "regularly employed" and has met the "$50, 60-day" test.

But from April 1 through June 30, the following quarter, Doe works on the farm for 45 days and earns $210. Since he is considered "regularly employed" and earned at least $50, the wages are taxed even though he worked less than 60 days in th quarter.

In the next quarter, Doe works 60 days and earns $275. This amount is not taxable because he lost his "qualifying quarter" standing as "regularly employed," and thus his pay will not be subject to tax until he serves another "qualifying quarter."

The farm workers' tax does not apply to sons or daughters under 21, or to father, mother, wife or husband. It does apply to wages paid to children 21 or over or to other relatives if they meet the test.

Included in the farm worker category are persons working in planting, cultivating or harvesting a farm crop; persons raising or tending livestock, bees, or fur-bearing animals on a farm; persons preparing, processing or delivering crops or livestock to storage or to market, and cooks or household workers on farms.

Another 200,000 workers are brought under compulsory Social Security coverage through a section applying to persons employed off the farms in processing and packing agricultural products. The "$50-60 day" test does not apply to them, except that those employed by cooperatives must earn at least $50 in a quarter to qualify.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Law Sometimes Yields To Common Sense

One of our traffic laws is probably broken thousands of times each day and, unfortunately, even officials aren't agreed as to what constitutes compliance with the law.

It has to do with a motorist's responsibility after stopping at a "Stop" sign. Our local law covering this point is based on the "Uniform Code" which is in effect in most parts of the Nation. It says that the motorist on a side "Stop" street must yield the right of way to vehicles on the main thoroughfare which are either in the intersection or "approaching so closely as to constitute an immediate hazard."

Then the law adds that, "having yielded," the motorist has the right to enter the intersection, and other vehicles on the main street must, in turn, yield to him.

However the Court of Appeals has ruled (in effect) that the second half of the "Uniform Code" language doesn't make sense. The court has stated:

"The driver of an auto who, on arriving at an intersection is confronted by a 'Stop' sign, must 'give the right of way to an approaching vehicle which would constitute an immediate hazard.' By the latter, we think, was meant any vehicle so close to the intersection that, should it continue with undiminished (legal) speed and should the unfavored vehicle start," the two would collide.

The Court of Appeals therefore puts the burden of avoiding a collision on the fellow coming out of the side street, regardless of how long he must wait beside that "Stop" sign.

And Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King says he's got to be guided by that decision. Technically, the law says that if there's a steady stream of traffic on the main street, you must yield only to the few cars that were approaching the intersection at the time you arrived at the "Stop" sign. Thereafter, you have the legal right to bust right out into the line of cars that follow.

"But that doesn't make sense," says King, "and the court has so ruled. We won't even try to make a case against the driver on the main road unless he was speeding, speeded up to try to beat the other car across, or was guilty of some other breach."

In short, despite your legal rights, it still pays to use common sense.

VOICE FROM THE KITCHEN

"The only trouble with your suggestion that we substitute pancakes for high-priced eggs at breakfast," complains Mrs. E. A. Arneson of 5808 Dewey st., Cheverly, Md., "is that I can never make them fast enough or in sufficient volume to keep pace with my family."

A great boost for my morale, that. The same thing happens at our house, but knowing that I'm not the only one who demands seconds and thirds makes me feel less like a hog.

PIED TENANT DEPT.

Thomas Quinn Beesley informs me that on the bulletin board at the Dorchester House, where he lives, four fascinating items are being offered for sale:

"A dressing table with mirrow, a beautiful Chinease chest, an antique brocaide sofa and a small bar with foot-rale."

TWO GOOD REASONS

Ruth H. Lane of 619 N. Jefferson st., Arlington, Va., tells me that when a friend of hers was asked why he didn't buy a television set, he replied:

"I'm waiting for color television. When it's available, I'll start waiting for $300."

THIS IS WASHINGTON

District Commissioner John Russell Young no longer uses license No. 1 on his car, except for official parades and receptions.

He found that No. 1 attracts too much attention. Especially from out-of-towners, who instantly deduce that this must be the President's car.

AUTOMATIC REMINDER

Post Reporter Sam Stavisky hasn't lost a fountain pen in years. He has a system.

"People used to borrow my pen," he explains, "and when they were finished with it they'd stick it in their own pockets. I'd forget to whom I had loaned it, and they'd forget from whom they had borrowed it.

"Now I don't lend the entire pen. I keep the cap in my pocket. When the guy is finished with the pen, he starts looking for the cap—and finds me. It works every time."

Aid to Anti-Peiping Units Urged

By Drew Pearson

Claire Chennault, a big leathery man who speaks with a gruff intensity, has a plan for starting fires against Stalinism in Asia.

Pearson

The famous Flying Tiger general who fought with the Chinese Nationalists, has been pounding on doors in Washington and saying: "Let's arm the hatred against Russia which is spreading across China. The greatest fear of the Communists is of the guerillas—a million of whom hold great pockets on the mainland. We should drop weapons to them and smuggle munitions across the borders."

"The spirit of revolt is so strong in China today," says Chennault, "that Communist members don't dare go out alone for fear of being ambushed. The Communists control only the cities, the rail centers and the ports. The best troops are engaged in Korea, Tibet and along the Indo-Chinese border. But the guerillas have only the arms they can steal. If we give them help, they can take the pressure off Korea."

According to the intelligence slipped out of China to General Chennault, this is the picture on the Chinese mainland:

Mao Tse-tung, the titular boss of Red China, is acting as a moderator between quarreling Communist war lords and pressure from Moscow.

The general in command of Chinese troops fighting in Korea, Lin Piao, is Russian-trained and violently pro-Soviet. When the Kremlin strategy switched this spring, away from the conquest of Hongkong, Lin Piao moved his 350,000 troops north to Manchuria.

Silver Bullets

Protecting the Chinese coastal area in the south, he left playboy Gen. Chen Yi, who has 500,000 troops stretched from Shanghai to Canton. General Chen, noted for his concubines and his drunken parties in Shanghai, has been bitterly accused by General Lin of being a "bad Communist."

Once a Kuomintang leader, General Chen has been susceptible to "silver bullets" in the past, might be so again.

In contrast, Gen. Li Po-chen, the one-eyed Communist war lord directing the invasion of Tibet, is loyal to Moscow.

However, a number of anti-Communist leaders, not tied up with Chiang Kai-shek, are available to foment revolt, according to Chennault. Ma Pu-fang, a Moslem, is now in Cairo asking help from Arab nations. He was the governor of a vast area bordering Tibet and could be a rallying figure for the four million to five million Chinese Moslems. Ma Hung-kwei, the former governor of Ningshia, is in San Francisco, and Chang Fa-kwei, a leader of the Cantonese, is in Hongkong.

General Chennault proposes that the United States arm and supervise the guerillas through a military mission headed by Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of American troops in China during World War II. He also recommends giving the Nationalist forces on Formosa modern planes for raiding the mainland.

"If this is done," says the Flying Tiger, "China will become a flaming hell for the Communists. They won't be able to conquer Korea for putting out fires at home."

Anglo-American Relations

Kenneth Lindsay, a plain-talking British Labor member of Parliament, was talking to a small group at the home of Arthur Goldsmith, when Town-Hall-of-the-Air Moderator George V. Denny asked: "What does Britain feel about the Far Eastern war?"

"I have crossed the ocean many times between England and America, but this is the first time I felt I entered a strange world," commented the member of Parliament. "I can tell you we have no intention of losing thousands of casualties on Chinese soil. We consider MacArthur a stooge of Chiang Kai-shek. And I speak not just for myself, but for members of both Labor and Conservative Parties. We do not want the Korean war to become an Asian war."

One guest countered that British coolness toward Chiang Kai-shek was part of a play to keep the Communists from taking Hongkong.

"We know we cannot hold Hongkong," replied Lindsay, "but we do have great fear for Malaya. If we lose Malaya, we lose the sterling bloc. And there is no better way to lose Malaya than to go to war in China."

"Our greatest need today," Lindsay emphasized, "is to bring the American and British peoples together."

General MacArthur has sent a new and lengthy cable to Defense Secretary Marshall pleading for permission to create a new Japanese army. MacArthur says the Chinese Communist attack on Korea makes it imperative to rearm Japan and forget about all American plans to keep the Japanese permanently demilitarized. Unless his advice is accepted promptly, the general says he will not be responsible for the consequences in the Far East . . . The same day that the first Russian jet fighter showed up in North Korea, General Vandenberg, the Air Force Chief of Staff, picked up the phone and ordered several squadrons of our fastest jets to Korea at once. He didn't waste a minute . . . The man directing all Chinese military moves is Georgi Malenkov, one of Stalin's top deputies. In brief, the Kremlin pulls the strings, and the Chinese people go into battle . . . The savage guerilla attacks being launched against our rear bases and supply lines continue the No. 1 worry of our military men . . . One of the most effective propaganda weapons the Communists are using in Asia is the story that American democracy doesn't apply to Asiatics. Nonetheless, Congress is delaying a bill that would give aged Japanese-Americans and Korean immigrants the right to die as American citizens. Some are parents of Nisei heroes who fought with the famed 442nd Infantry team, most decorated outfit of the last war. Representative Francis Walter (Pa.) forced the bill through the House, giving them United States citizenship, but it's now buried in the Senate . . . The Communists are finding some resistance to drafting Chinese to fight for Stalin. Intelligence reports say a Chinese regiment of so-called volunteers to fight in Indo-China revolted north of Canton on December 2.

MEN'S QUALITY SUITS LIMITED FOR SPRING

A definite tightening of the supply of men's quality suits of domestic wool goods is expected by spring, it was learned from trade sources last week. An adequate supply of medium and low-end suits made from synthetic and mixture fabrics will be available, according to present indications.

Manufacturers said the Government has been increasing its purchases in the clothing field and larger bids are indicated.
